JOHN R. WILKAN.

THE great Improvement made in the Morning Soursel of this city is attracting pub-He attention to its new owner. The task set for Mr. John R. McLean is a severe one, but if there is any man who can accomplish it, this vigorous Western journalist will do so. Mr. McLean, who is a selfmade man to spite of a rick and admiring father, was born in Cincinnati, married in Washington, and recently initiated into the responsibilities of successful newspaper making in New York City. He is an erect, sturdily-proportioned man of some five feet ten. inches in height, short-haired, keen-eyed, and full of the vim of the Scatch-Irishman tempered by the shrewdness of the Buckeye. Washington McLeon, for many years one of the most potent Democratic factors in the public life of Ohio, and a highly estermed citizen of Chermosti, founded there many years ago the Cincinnati Enquirer, a daily newspaper distinctly alone in its class, a great money maker, and a power for good or evil in the Queen City. Into its editorship and ownership John R. McLean grew up, manifesting from the beginning extraordinary segueity in the judgment of men and afform. It: spentily became a very rich man, removed his residence to Washington-else the home of his sister the wife of General Hunen. United States Army-and there married a beautiful and accomplished woman, who has made his handsome rest dence widely known for refined hospitality. Mr. McLean has recently purchased the Marstay Jovenal, a New York. newspaper which needed just such a thorough course of drastles and tonics as that through which he now is putting it with gralifying results. He retains his ownership. of the Enquirer, a most valuable property, and his residence in Washington. The managers of the Journal's eider brothers in the morning field are watching its growth with that delightful mixture of enxisty and edimention which indexes the sincerest respect, Test Irish citizens of the United States have done a good deal to promote the cause of home rule in Ireland, but there are some of them who are apparently anxious to bring both the cause and themselves into contempt. Nothing could be more abound than a proposal to resert to armed intervention is behalf of Irlab enancipation, and yet that to just what was suggested at a recent convention of Irisis American military organizations in this city. At this convention resolutions were adopted declaring that the time has acrived for Irishmen to unite and prepare for a grand armed struggle for the independence of Ireland, and with this end in view all the Irish military organizations in the country are arged to affillate. Whether this means that another Fenian demonstration is to be undertaken from American soil, or some other method is to be adapted for breaking the British hold over Ireland, we have no means of knowing, but any scheme which may lavely so appeal. to force will cover those engaged in it with ridicule, and tend to weaken popular sympathy with the Irish cause.

Done prohibition prohibit? It certainly does not in Matner, where the principle has been applied under the best possible conditions. There, if anywhere is the world, pubtic sentiment has been in sympathy with the law, and the mornillarly for But it is not enforced Proof of this fact is found in the circumstance that in some parts of the State leagues are being formed for the purpose of compelling the authorities to do their duty. In several towns, on a recent Sunday. all the clergy presched on the subject of the violation of the law and the protection of liquor-dealers by "political influence "-one of the number stating that there were in his town forty places which ought to be indicted for the sale of liquor contrary to law. Testimony like this from the friends of prohibition has a significance which cannot be underroted. It may not be concluded, but it certainly demonstrates that the liquor-traffic cannot be suppressed or drankenness cured by legislation, however drastic in character or sumptury in its details. Unloubtedly prohibition has diminished the evils of the traffic and helped to destroy Its influence as a factor in civic affairs, but it does not accomplish what its friends have claimed it would accomptish; it does not prohibit.

A NOVEL industry his recently been discovered by the Post-office Department. It consists in the furnishing of essays upon all sorts of subjects by a firm which has gone regularly into the business of supplementing the mental indolence of college and high-school students. The circulars of the firm, which have love wide't distributed, conalderstely offer to supply neutions, essays, and delutes at figures within the much of the most impressions student. Thus, for instance, an essay can be had as how as thirty-five cents a hundred words. Algh-school prations range from three to right dollars, while rollege resors go as high as fifteen dollars. It does not appear or better the tendency to athleties in our institutions of learning is responsible for the growth of this particular industry, but it is may to see that it will be of very great value to students who are more disposed to out-four sports of one sort or another than to the close study of their books. It is said that some of the college authorities have been anxious to secure the exclusion of literature of this kind from the mails, but it will gratify all friends of (at-licetua) freedom to learn that they have failed in their effort. Why should burriers be utted in the way of an enterprise of this character, which is so obviously designed to promote the literary prodes any of the rising generation?

THE international convention, recordly held in Lendon. of names interested in the temperature work was a witable demonstration of the deepening and widening interest which women are taking in all reformatory movements. Probably there has never from assembled in firest Reitain a gathering so truly representative of the Christian and philanthropic wistinest of the collections) women of the world as this, in which one handred and fifty American delegates actively participated. One of the striking incidents of the convention was that, on the opening Sunday, two hundred London pulpits were occupied by women. But, notable as the gathering was, the Lowlen presuse and to have given it little consideration, and the notice beatowed upon it was in some cases a great deal more insulting than connectatory is character. One conservative journal characterized the convenion as reseposed of "blatum female agitation to whom taste and propriety are imply When the Christian Endruymers awarmed shows upon this perferpolis by the ten thousand, some two or three years ago, the shelly re-wayagers were as much our prised and paraled by the demonstration as the London journals seem to face from by the women's white-ribben gathering, but New York journalism, buttent of criti-bing and belittling, welcomed, and devoted itself to netting forth copiously the achievements of the entities cremirations, thereby not only maintaining its self-despect, but ruming the hearty gratitude of a cost multitude of readers. English newspapers would do well to consiste this example of sourtesy and true journalistic curbolicity

But now Monte, Word, Lock, and Bowman have brought these together in one volume under the title of "The Tale of Chier, and Other Stories," and three very excellent examples of the great prevelet's work are restored to readers a to could ill spare the slightest scrop. The ride! value of their stories in conjunction is that they offer a most admirated opportunity to see the man in his different mouds and surfinds. They are an epiteme of the man's genius. "The Hense on the Beach" is the least characteristic of the titre stories, and therefore the least valuable. He calls it a realistic tale, but that is morely a satisfic touch for there is, in fact, but little realism in it, and but little reality. "The Case of General Ople and Lady Compres Monigh, is Mendith in one of his delightful states on many of quad-cup humor and banter. The whole is a delicious force, varried through to the highest most of receip; absurily, irresistildy funny, full of potent, pungent satire and brilliant opigeam. You are mounted on a wave of houghter from the opening clupter, that crisps and curic under you till the very end is reached, and the purely comic aspect of the between these two and the other, "The Tale of Chice," is incalculable. As a recent approximator said : " It is Meredith consermate." And so one feels at the Enlish of this early energy trapely, told with all the master-craft of genius. It is full of subtlety and definess to the delines tion of character shades; there is a simple, beautiful pution in the fated Chlee, a very delicate touch of comedy in Bosts Beamish and his troublesome charge, the ducless; and lastly, a tragic note which is social from the very leginning, hardly perceptible, though, at first, but growing stronger and more firm, pervading own's senses rather than attracting the attention potit it startles with distinctures. at the culmination in the midnight seems in Chlor's chamher. The whole effect is one of exquisite perfection, and, as is the case with all works of flawless art; it is difficult to speak of this in a temperate manner. To lavers of Merco dith it is useless to recommend it; to all others I urge its reading as a duty due to literature.

I should think that the femor conferred by an election to the penterny would be looked upon with some dublety. by French men of letters in these recent years, when two such men as Zola and Daudet pennin without the fold.

Dandet's well-known letters to the Figure, in 1883, I think it was, in which he said, " Je ne me prisente pas, je ne me suis presente, je ne me presenteuxi jamais à l'académie." of course entirely precludes any idea of his present or future candidature for membership; but Zols is evidently a man of conser sensibility, for year after year, nothing clausted by rebuil and failure, he has knocked for admission among the " immortals," only to be refused, and to find mediocrity, or at least lesser ability, exalted over his head. At one time it was Pierre Loti, at another José Heridia, and ness it is Paul Bourget who has attained the covered election to the "Forty" If it is a principle that he is contending for a firm conviction that his position in French literature demands his place among those who are supposed to represent what is highest and best in that Sterature, then let him continue persistently and with energy to force his claims, but if it is the honor be seeks, the impulpable bouble which could add nothing to his fame, let him desist and his name will be forever linked with thus other immerials who in times past have failed to be considered worthy of a place among the ever living. Among them Mollière, Pascal, Descaries. Beaumarchais. Bidgar, and Alexander Dumas.

Non-that a general reorganization and regeneration of our various courts is taking place, it seems to me that the time is very opportune for a change in the methods of procedure in favor with many of the numberiess lawyers who practice in these courts. An evil that particularly plends for attention and then abolition is the handling of witnesses by the attorneys of opposing sides. Intimidation, ridicule, and healt are reserted to with hapunity, with little or no restraint from Judges. It is only on the pression of some notorious trial that those "roastings" of witnesses are brought to the public attention; but they are just as essumen in trials of little moment as they are in these of importance. Recorder Goff's tactics with the witnesses in the revert police investigation are a fair example of what I mean, though there was special excuse for him; considering the class of individuals he had to deal with. There is no excuse, however, for the treatment seconded to Mr. Sage in the recent trial of Laidlaw or Sage. by one of our most eminent lawyers. Mr. Joseph II. Chonto. That a man of the quality of mind and schlevement should stoop to the methods of some pettiforging police-court hanger on is ample argument in favor of restriction of the license countenanced by our courts.

-The claborate celebration of the twenty fifth analyerary of Professor C. C. Langdell's appointment as dean of the Harvard low school is a memorable event in its way. It must have given the venerable professor a firm conviction of the value of a first impression. While he was a academ to the Harvard law school he happened to be cuting his support of brown brend and milk as he stood before the fire in a class mate's room in the Divinity. school, and his appearance and his manner of talking about the law durply impressed a young juster named Elict, who was prograt. "This is genius," sold the junior to biraself, and afterward, when he had become president of Harvard, he sought ont Mr. Langdell in his New York law-office and offered him a professorship. His confidence in the lawyer was well repaid, for Professor Langdeli put new life into the law school, and established there the scientific study of the law from its sources-from setual cases rather than From brooks

-Henry George has retired to his country home in Sulavan County to put the finishing touches on a book of political economy which is to be published in the fall. He is happily situated there among a colony of single-tax believers, to whose communicating presence, perhaps, is due the fact of his expanding his new volume, originally dos comprehensive we not by remembered that Mr. George was an early convert to fuith in the bicycle as a prophylactic against ductors' bills, Herestoned his broken health by riding a wheel long before it had attained its present high rank as a vehicle.

-M. de Heridis, the new member of the Fronch Acadcuty, was in his youth a singularly handsome man-one who, according to François Coppee, "combined the nobility at the hidalgo and the grace of the creole," He is a Culum by birth, but sufficiently in love with his adopted land to call her language "the finest that has issued from human lips since Homer." M. de Hérédin owes his literary rank in France to his sonnets, which, because of their pullsh and vigor, hold a high place in contemporary French

-George W. Julian, who was surveyor-general of New Mexico under Mr. Cleveland's first administration, and who lives in a suburb of Indiampolis, is the only survivor of the prominent leaders of the Free Soil party. Mr. Julian is now seventy eight years old, but he is in excellent health and active with his pen, his name appearing frequently in the pages of the magazines. It is fifty years since he went to Congress for the first time, and forty since his candidacy for the Vice Presidency.

by would be an assuming task for a statisticion with an original total to estimate how many pairs of eyes looked critically at the sky on the recently of Varnishing Day. So much depend of on the one ! Rolat, good frame, the epheneeral delicacy of pair, wilt gowns, all model upon the bearficent made of the round-fored murch of the beatens, who, also I voteld not be capited by the subtlest of feminise arts.

He was kind, however; he was in a most belitting the unboring in of May. Puris, with the millions of trees aldoom and its muestle far-stretching streets where light and shadow played, was a dream of beauty; a night to trouble and delight the senses like a vanishing, classics perfuses, or a strain of music which awaicras without satisfying. "All the world goes to Vernissage" No I had offen been told, yet scarrely realized how true it was until after a drive down the Change Elyers, the soler, gray lamiting with flag-forked entruses cause to sight. All the world was there indeed. On both rider of the futures avenue " the turner " were por and, test days , parriages of every description crawled in s long line, like a black serrout, around the Posed of the Place and respised their contents. before the great doors; the clurion-like calls of members willing catalogues, and the warring voice of heligerest consters struggling for position at the curb, filled the warm, syrings-

relati Entreve

The crowd was divided into two classes these who wout and those who remilie't. The first was composed of group ladies of family whose mages remainted with " its," and studie militaries of the old report, of the hardy wealthy; of substruction from atrilier and thousay, or whose sames were household words on the rowner of books; of long lines of structures deliver who have their reorgained place to Paryasa life, and who set the Indiana for the aformant blim-blisshot dames; of risking American and English, with a quankling of more northern and Oriental races, of the artto themselves, to whom this was the day of days, the fulfillment of device and effort.

And the crossed watching ! At, how adort in the parement record of Paris -- quiet, well continued, publicul, soft of voice massed there were worth studying. For you sure throughors, wintful-cycli students, have bound blenchisewers and shop-largers, young soldliers femb from the country in uniforms much beleig, street gundus in the ineritable "beret," like our Tain O'Shanter, and part-faced milliners' approation in chesp, many beauth, and there to make make on the spring tealers which made their delet from the padeboard leases that day.

The vertibule was a great, graveled space Blief with a bittering, gossiping crowd. It was dudy, but no one thought of lifting a skirt-sat least, not may Parising this; pure, soft hancopy crepens and silks bearing the inimital in bruch of Donnet or Nagarage Private Francisco Commis-Rus de la Patt were ruttdenly trutted along the puths. It is this to be extravagued in Paris: And the penistings, the sculpture, the minintures.) They are issuing in proper sequence, for Lamure you it is a regretted fact, they do ted hold the supreme place at Vernisage-the grows first, art atherward. Unit cross.

Dartner, among the ambitum on the ground floor, and where the freezed light from a bush dome made a glory around for lifted, inspired lead, was the figure of Jone of Arc by Paul Dalwin. She was so martial as a man astroic her howe, her caligue covering an imbomitable heart. Just beneath the charger's little bout lay, us a tribute a less bunch of suporb red ross. Sawing like blood-drive nearest the bronne. The French lave and reversely, beyond expression, the impired unid of Orleans, her statue to the poblic square is never without its memoriam of fresh flowers, placed there quietly by private citizens.

Why do you all adore her so ?" I noted the little French woman beside up. "Why even mere timo Naredean C the claused through her dotted vell at an Englishwoman inoving stowly along, her chigmen or " English bun" very pressureed under a magazine atther hat.

"Dies." she said, and all her feathers rus tief. "We would have been English but for the great Jeanne. I might have been happy with a couffing like that."

Betting on the Races.

The adoption of the constitutional amendment produbiting back making and jassi-setting has produced a wonderful change on the racetracks of New York. Racing in this State is now in the hands of gentlemen and sportsmen instead of being conducted by professional gameiders and sporting men. At the meetings so far held since the adoption of the amendment to the State conditation and the quantiment of the racing statute under it, there has been betting, to be sure, but it has been betting of an entirely different character than over before. It is against the law to take money when bets are recorded, or to give any evidence of the transaction on either side. The operations are based on credit, to hear. An unknown man, an uncound man, cannot bet, however much he would like to: Then, egain, the back-makers not of sound and established rejustation council get betters to trust them. This bare out the small betters who cannot be trusted in make good their losses, and it shuts out also the dishoned book-makers, who have been a disgrare even to the ranks of gamthere. For a gentleman to let what he chooses now it is meesary that he should have an noquaintance with a book maker and be considered by him a man of punctilious honor in the settlement of ruring debts and gambling debts. In the almone of this acquaintance, an introhistion by some one in whom the book-maker has confidence would be enough. That introdineer, in case his friend lost and did not pay, would probably be called on to acttle, and probably, also, he would feel that he were see our responsible. When each bet in mails such party reverts it, with the address of the other. The next day the loser is expected to and a rheek to the winner. Now, in case t person who is not known to a book-maker and manuf get a miniarinty introduction wishes to let, that person can easily establish a credit with the land-maker by making a deposit with him to the amount he wides to bet. This die post simult be made in town before the rnces, is it is specifically against the law for money to be passed in the rare-course.

This is very similar to the English method of beiting except that the English settle once a cole, on Mondays, at Tatternett's. Very likely there will be established in New York a club at which settlements can be made, and where also book-uniters can be seen the day before and the orning of the care and a credit arranged for. In England a man who defaults in his racing bets is called a "meletier," and a "welcher " to considered of all new the mest-coundrelly. No one is so mean as to take bus part, and whether he he hard or tradesman or petty tout, he is thermiter beyond the pair of decency, and over theres of the higher scale would refuse to sometists with him.

Whather public opinion in America will over take this view of "metalling" or not it is based to my ; if it does, however, the credit systems of belling on movements is likely to prove popular and entirely intisfactory. And it is libely, also, to sproud, and for used in either States, for New York and New Jersey are not above storing the States as to statutes against. intring at howe-races. In Manachusetta, Couposticut, Penneylvania, Maryland, Illineds, Virginia, besides in many other States, there are awangainst perioding and best-making. It is likely that the credit method of feeting would not in any of these States he constraind by the mores as an infringement of the statutes. The system is out trial now in New York. So far it has worked with unconsumen smoothness. Cornmay back from the cases the men's cabins of the force lends are used to some extent by the bookunikers as places for settlement. This probably will not be done when the erstem is better undeposed by both beak-makers and speculators.

The attendance at the races this year is not so great as it was in provious years, when any ope with a two-dollar bill at command could became in an offset to rick a winner. Now the horset sum a book maker will wager against is tive dellars. It is a pity that thus minimum should not be raised to ten. That could but out the small people who on every account should not be given any facilities to bot. It was among persons of moderate means, mass of small salaries and uncertain income, that the old-time raving methods were especially mischievous. Though the attendance is not so great. as formerly, it has in it a greater percentage of entirely respectable people. Indeed, pretty nearly every one in attendance appears to be respectable, and the fleshy women who used to keep an army of messenger-loys busy taking their money from the grand-stand to the bettingring are completions by their absence. The touts, too, who used to be on the lookout for greenhorns, are no lenger in evidence, and the classe long known as " rail-tairds "appear to have variished entirely. The race-courses are healthner, more wholesome, and pleasanter places than they larve been in many years, and it is to be hoped that the regime of the sportsmen will be long and prosperous. WEST-END VIGNETTES.

To an observant visitor who is in London even for the first time, it soon becomes abvious why the West End is the nare attractive part of the metropolis. It has not fully as many antiquarian interests as the East Central division, which is much older, and includes the city of London with the Tower and the funs of Court: It has, however, infinite interests for any one at all exponinted with English history and literature of a later period, or for the stadent of present-day English life; and even as regards antiquarian interests, this end of London presence the Abbey and the great hall of Westminster, while its briblings of a more modern date to which historic interest attaches are innonverable. It is the brightest and most open region of central Leceka. It has its dismalresurts and its back streets; no city with a history is without these; but it is intersected by numerous broad, sweeping thoroughfures ; it is dutied all over with great residential squares. and it explains more than three thousand arresof parks and public gardens. It is the political and official, as well as the residential and planare end of Lomien , and its streets are stanged with these characteristics. The Parliament Houses and Whitehall, Suckingham and Keusington palaces, Pall Mall and Childani, Mayfair, Beigravia and Tilearnia, Tenfaigne Square, Charles Crew and Regent Street, and all that these fauntus pinces turnin, are retire princi in the western half of London.

Its landmarks are familiar to people all over the world, to thomsands who server set foot on English will. Two of the great landmarks are illustrated in Mr. Heronout's pictures. Westnumber Abbey and Piccaliffy Circus are funding to even those who know London only from its literature. To people who have lived in Lowlon this view of the abbey remile an exhilateiting prospect, record only. If not oqual, to that to be ned to a work from Brooklyn to New York across the great bridge. It is taken from the St. Stephen's and of Westminster Bridge. the most airy and graceful of the Thomas iron bridges, and from a vuntage-point which in one direction commands a view of the House of Parliament on the morticbanh of the river, with the amountheest brepital of St. Thomas' and the old reclementical paints of Lambeth on the waith side. These are to be seen leading seen ward from the bridge. Eastward is the Thomes Endankment, extending from Westerinster to Blackfriage, and Durning the flaret benferred in the matropolo , while beyond Blackfrines tirridge runs the dome of St. Paulz. To the right of the picture is the Incode of the Sit. Supplier's Link Home; while to the left is Pulare Yard, now included in the provincts of the Himses of Purliments, but years ago the scene of great meetings of the circum of Westman ster, and of the old-fusioned electioneering for which the city of Wastmander was famous in the days when Kurlish politics find not assumed. their present time of drule, and other the ideations more pictures one and lively.

Placedally Circus is for the West End what the Bank and the Masson House are in matera London It terminates one of the greatest fashioushlo shopping streets of London, and from the Sha/teslury memerial fountain, which informs the circus, connections our bemade by manifus with any part of the metroprdrs. Laudoners are jealous of their streets, and of none more so thus of the thereeghfores of West London. On the porth side of the Thoron in the western bull of Landon there is not a angle street milway, ultilough for six miss westward from Piccodilly Circus there extends a thickly-peopled district in which are togeted at least one-overth of Landon's five millions of (sombified. Contributes are the only lines of marface travel in this cust englou, and it is no doned owing to the unique position they hold be the resmony of London that London ones have come to be the most pleasant rand vehicles in the world. A ride on any of the thousands of well-horsel and well-appointed munifores which make Presedilly Circus a stopping-point In admost as engageable as a west on a private drag. In codmary weather travel is pleasant inside or autable of those vulbeles, and at any tions it is infinitely preferable to travel on the underground milnod.

Within the last ion years there has been a complete revolution in the style of the London complete. Then it was not considered halylike for a woman terrile on the outside. Normalays women go in or out messate their famey, and it often happens that a man who desires to be polite most take an inside sent in under to oblige a haly who wants to ride on the outside. This change in the traditions and stepartte of street travel is due almost entirely to the evalution of the London opinions. Outside passengers formerly sat back to back on seats down the middie of the roof. Now, on all the modern omnibuses, the passengers face forward, and instead of the old risky ladder by which people climbed to seats on lop, there is a spaceton back platform and a stairway which a lady can account with as much gence and dignity as a stairway in teroru buse. The evolution of the bushes condbus was long in coming about, but it has now been curried to such a point as to make the complete not only the local democratic but also the most pleasurable of public street velocies. Its only near competitor in these particulars is the summer-car of the street railreads in America.

Piccodilly Circus is the centre of much that is bright and phiasant in London life, and of much that is of mother and a doubtful character. Its incident and increment change he morning advances into afternoon, as afternoon becomes evening, and as the darkness of night begins to give place to the daylight of the marrow. Half a shown music balls, so many theatres, stores of foshionable restaurants and of West End clube are all grouped in its scraitly. It is, in fact the starting-point he all that is gay in the tife of the English metropole.

Wast End street-some have a good deal of character of their own. Take, for instance, the group of children playing in one of his squares. With the bone-made budy carriage and the steps of an odd-time tunnous as a factor they make a vignette possibar to the West East of London, where rich and poor are neighed together in an extraordinary fashion. It has afways level so in this part of Leveley, and it is probable that it will continue to be se. Both rich and peer use benefitted by this internue gling, and it has long been the nim of practical phinattiropous to manutain these neighborly elationships. They have streamenty appeared any schemes for the latter homing of the working classes which would place the working nce in one part of Leaden and the rich in another. For this manne Pheliamont has for twinty years past huniful that when London's structural improvements had to the demonstran of the house of the humbler closes, dwellings for the same class of people and for a mothing like an equal number to those displaced that! be erected on the chared sites. It is this more mingling of the classes which in some respects differentiates West Lendon from East London; for in East London there are square miles of had covered with forces in which how but poor people live, and where a mixilie-class or a well-to-do Leadouve is server soon enough on business or as a cusual visitor.

FOWARD POSSETT.

The New York School of Design for Women.

OF New York's countless philanthropic proj erts, new has justified their more specify or more thoroughly than the School of Applied Design for Women, founded by Mrs. Irradian Hopkins, at 300 West Twenty third Street. Deeligning is taught, or advertised to be taught, in several large technical schools. The unique feature of this school is that the instructure in the advanced classes are practical teachers. taken from the large manufacturing firms, so. that the young woman who wishes to design carpete is taught what designs can be wriven in see style of loon and what in number, and the reason for the distinction; while the girl who wishes to draw for wall-papers learns to distragants the style which can be made to pay to a fifteen-cont paper from that entable for civilhangings. The school started two years ago with forty-two disdouts, and now has over two hundred, drawn from all parts of the company, to be mer. Positioner. supporting.

You art which, however well drawing may be morbt in them, have impractice to the asplication of organisated design to humana ture and the arts. That is a separate art by itself, formed to be to head disposition which and be anderstood in order to utness now degree of surove. Trade signands a ponetant surcession of navelties in designs of all sorts, making the orenpation of a expalsite designer constant. Manafacturers are frequently obliged to import their designs and oftentous their designers, because of the lack of those properly trained in this mentry; which shows how wide a field in opeund to trained workers in dissurance. The work is well adopted the women who have the taste and manual desterity for it, and, overpared with other work of women, or is well paid. Designs suitable for draping-ellis and chintes command from fifteen to iwenty-five dollars in their trade season of Polaruary and March. Descrip for wall-papers are better paid—from thirty-five to fifty dollars—and they have two trade seasons, September and October, and January and Polaruary; while designs for beak-covers being from ten to twenty five dellars. Beselve, it is a sheltered occupation. The work can be done at home or in a quiet tenth, and the worker is shelded from the templations and discomforts so often an accomparament of Tousen's efforts to sure a livelihood in a crowded city.

The instruction in this school is divided broadly into two parts, the elementary and the advanced departments, but it is entirely indivisited. Fire students apply who are able to ender at once the advanced departments, becoose curtain fractures of the beclushpe of appliet design must be conquered first. How long a student stays in the elementary classes depends typic her abilities, her industry, and bealth. Whosever she can pass the examinations required she can immediately enter the advanced class of her closes. A stickent who has buil on previous instruction generally has to remain in the elementary class a year. The teachers, Miss. Grace Town and Miss Charlotte Overbury, who have these classer in charge, come twice a week for criticism and direction in drawing from governtrival which, shired and raid drawing, conventionalization of national forms, perspective and free drawing, and the us of instruments, the beginnings of architectunal drawing The class-risons are a pinesunt place to succ. The school bries to help the scholars to sell their duncts by bringing them to the instituted the councils for ers, although it does not provpt pay remanances for such subs. Many stockeds have already from able to help themselves in this way. The length of the advanced courses is two years. and at the end of the three years, including the propagation year, a regulation to given the student. The this in documing of wall papers to namely the charge of Mr. Paul Urethe, a room of nurked shifts. The department of applirations of their an except in material by Mr. Marcali, from W. J. The third regular solvaneed class is that which trains the young woman in the work of the underted a dealbrons, under the rate of Mr. Howert, Mr. A. W. Lord, from the firm of McKing, Montl & White, linving taken a rigidle position in the Oslage of Archibecture in Rouge The matrix thin here the bules free-hand, linear pen and peacel drawing, and the study of build ling materials and construction, architectural orders, details and plans, while brating, ventilating, and planeting are not forgotten. Women are by manual home building, and the many of demostic architecture is especially suited to Owne. Almost every that one will find a large class working awar on plans for occurred fence would cittage or molest from or even extruspting a topotal. Mr. J. Carroll Beckwith committees to the sorpe of feedbyes,

Each year there is given a course of lectures and leaching in historic ornaement by Miss Williams for heavily of Croper Institute. It begins with the describers of primitive times and continues down through the Asverian Eryptian Greek, and Boums styles to the present day. This course is unpertant, and is required of every student.

The cost of instruction to this which is much sexts. The traffirm for the year, including the course in ludery, ornaught, is fifty declars. If the student rate only take a term at a time it testa twenty dollars per term, or sixty dollars for the time terms. From melte to fifteen dollars will supply the revenuery systemals for one year which the sindent is unkel to key at whilesale rate from the dealers. There are several messy prites given by individuals, by the wheel and by business fitnes, such year, in the various departments, but the best original designs, and also five-scholarships of fifty didlars. each, which greatly aid the fortunate wanters. The wheel has an excellent library and a flue velicetion of custs and plact-graphs at the servsize of its students.

There are also several special costroes, any one of which costs twenty deliars per term. Mr.

De Lengues has the course in water-colors, Mr. Henry Parkinsel, from Tiffsny & Co., the class in designing of book covers. It is intended to add to those other special courses, such as designing applied to metal work, stained glass, wood curving, and from painting, whenever the growth of the school may warrant it.

Four gold medals were awarded the school's designs by the World's Fair, and three by the San Francisco Midwinter Expedient. The students have furnished plans for a number of public buildings in other cities, and have tilled orders for leading New York time. The first class of graduates, who finished in June last, have obtained positions with architects and singler art firms.

This wheel has been as successful that Mrs. Hopkins, its founder and leading director, has been invited to England to establish a school on the same principles in London, in connection with the Boyal School of Art Noedle Work, which is to have for pair-moses the Queen, the Princess of Wales. Princess Christian, and other moyalties.

Our Foreign Pictures.

THE KIEL PRIMERRATION.

No foreign eyeat of round years has attracted the attention which offscied to the opinion of the North Son Bultic Canal. In a sense it was an event of bearing wide interest, because it brought together representatives of the navies of all the great foreers to existing the completion of an enterprise which must contribute to the welfare of all. The therman Enqueron expresed the thought when he said in his address. nt the Integret which followed the savai review | "We open to the penceful intercourse of nations, one with another, the backs of the cause, and it will be a somere of perful satisfaction to mill a renotantly increasing utilization of the work bears witness that the intention with which we have been galded has not above been understook but his abic proved fruitful in advancing the welfare of the peoples." The moval display as Kirl excessied any amiliar display of the kind ever witnessed, and it is grutifring to knew that the American vessels were reported objects of interest and admiration. In the protechale and obstructioning of the even ing of the for day, they are said to have attemporary flag-ship of the squadrou, had a magwith ent design, winty best long, as note. It rend: 1 America outle bearty greeting to Cormony upon the completion of the same. Set garres, partners of the Emperce and Presidont Clevriand, each forty test square, were nia displayed.

DIVERSORS OF EXCLISIC VARIETY UNION

We give a timely picture of dispussions of the Empiric university errors at the ford, at the close of a race on the Thomes. The Landon Graphic describes the seems deported in those words: "When the leasts have passed the winning posts, which are some distance beyond the barges, the crows panche showly back to their barge bout-house to be chosened or and to their partial. The crowd which has been removing in the tow path absorpted than returns the race their set of pure lightness of boart the members opened a very happy half least in familiarizing each other with the closer acquaintence of the list. It is thought the right thing to throw one another into the water, if possible; and if only a pant can be overturned, or an eight, then the moment is complete with enjoyment. Small boats which are returning from the starting-point or the finishing-post share in this carnival, which is a very pleasant thing in warm weather, and designed to remove-quickly any modus stiffness on the part of accidental participants."

A MILITARY SALUTE.

Another of our pictures shows the method of making a salute at the Royal Military Eucumpment at Aldershot. The men drop suddenly prostrate on the ground, and then lifting their rigid bodies, lower thes, several times in our cossion by pure force of muscle. The spectacle is apt to provoke assument at first, but this soon changes to admiration on the part of teholders.

August Races at Newport.

SOME time ago Newport, Rhode Islami, was spoken of in these columns as the future Cowes of America. All arrangements have now been completed for a series of races in August at that charming and popular port; the conditions governing them settled, as well as prizes and the courses to be suited. This apparently establisher the racing week as a regular sumusi affair.

The contests this year will begin on the day after the return of the New York Yacht Club fleet from the eastward-Vineyard Haven. Thus the first of the series will take place on or about August 7th. Bonts belonging to any recognised yacht club are eligible to sail, and under the direction of the regular committee of the New York Yacht Club:

AN AVOIDABLE ACCIDENT.

The Cornell - Penssylvania - Columbia race: would have been a matter of history not later than 5:30 on the afternion of Friday, June 21st. had the courtesies which should murk the conduct of craft of all kinds which attended the affair been observed. It was, however, a case of every fellow for himself, and the fruit shell had no chance whatsever. If ever a best meels unruffled waters that boat is a racing-shell. Heavy swells which a monster tag raises carry death with them, and so it came about that the Ponncylvania boat was badly bettered, and in consequence was rendered unfit to start the race. This accident caused disappointment to several thousand people, who retired from the scene pretty well disguster.

Cornell was the favorite with the impact, and the exhibition which Columbia gave in rowing to their quarters when the race had been declared postponed till Monday, June 58th, showed conclusively that, so far as her chances with Cornell were concerned, the blue-and-white oursmen were out of it. So far as Pennerlyania was concerned - though they did not get a chance to show their form-it seemed to be the general belief that they were better than reported, and would give Cornell the row of their lives. Cornell men, however, were most unguine of victory. Indeed, their own were in such fine physical condition, and the conditions for fast rowing worn as good, that they hoped to establish almost a record, or if not, to come within a few seconds of the record time—twenty minutes, ten seconds when the 1886 Yale crew made at New London.

The appointments for the race were simply line, the many high places along the shore affurting excellent views, and the West House Hallroad observation train showed that it rould affind a far better view of a four-toile race than the railroad litte at New London

In fact, the marse and its surroundings impresed those present so favorably that comments were many to the effect that all future college rowing contests would be decided there. This, however, semied too rusy a view, for the fart must be considered that New Lendon offers opportunities for sailing craft and vessels of all descriptions which Poughkeepsie never could

Following are some interesting statistics of the Cornell crew, favorite in the besting-

CORNELL "HOURT" IN RES PURCEE.

Apropre of Cornell and her Henley crow it may be of interest to remark that they are daily improving under the careful coaching of Courtney and Mr. Prenets; and while English newing critics seem unfavorably impressed with their style of rowing, they are going aloud seroundy and confidently.

The gravest criticism, up to this time, which tions critics have made in that their stroke is too short ; that is to say, they do not reach out mongh in series to give the binder a lask of the water far enough forward. And there is much truth in this, her; no much, in fact, as he heal see to doubt the shifty of the American to bold their English country, more the care is onder full hondway. Last year the Vale even ever underdistelly rowing "short," and this fact would have counted beavily against them had the Harvard year less anywhere mar their equals. He far so "force" green codding can be said detrimental to Currell in compart son to any of the crown entered for the grand challengy-vep rare, and if they has, it will be more on account of the elections of their danks than all other things combined.

THE COLLEGE BASE VALL SEASON.

The Vale nine deserve no little credit for the rinning fight which they have made sgatnet infrere niretimetanies. It does not seem probable that they will less the second game with flarvard, insecucio as the first was some on the home grounds of the crimen non-

Hence their record at the close of the season will be an enviable use, made particularly bediant from the fact that the extra strong Princeton sine successful twice in succession. It has been a long while since the Tigers have placed in the field a nine of the butting and fielding strength of this year's nine.

With Curter of Yalo in Best-class shape, experts and others looked for a possible Yale victory at least in the New Haven game with Princeton. Few thought, however, that Trudean could fill Curter's slows, and the glowing fact that he did is glory enough for may two

Where Yale proved beneff unmoally strong was in her hatting at opportune times, and Carter, though he could not help out in the bear, was able to play in the field, and by his great stick work contribute largely to victory.

The story of the breakdown of Carter is well known, and should prove a lesson to those amlations to win glory in the early sessen, while the throwing arm is yet mused to the extra exertion. Had the Vale men not been able to but more than passing well the accident to Carter would have mount defeat surely at the hands of the Princeton men. Thus, in a way, Carter Islamed would have had to bear the brunt of the blame. But all's well that ends well, and the Vale nine must be ranked easily first of the amateur teams of 1805, with Princeton a strong second, and Williams, Brown, and Pennsylvania fighting hard for third honors.

For the ensuing year at Princeton, Bradley has been chosen by his mates to the emphainty. This year Readley showed binnelf a strong fielder and a superb batter. He will undoubtwilly prove a worthy successor to former Cantain.

Harvard's showing, on the whole, was distreesingly peer, even though she had in Highlands a first-cises pitcher, equal to the best of the anateurs, with the proper lucking. The play of Tennis Champson Wrenn at second for Harvard is deserving of much favorable comment. The fair name be made for himself in feed-ball test fall he only made more brilliant, and proved coordinately that he is an all-round man of the first water.

The Liberal Downfall in England.

THE downfall of the Liberal government in Ragiand has not been unexperted, but it came somewhat somer than its friends untiripated. It came ever an item of the army estimates, when the Commons, by a majority of seven, should to cut shows the marry of the reigister of our by five tomored deliars. That official at once resigned, and two days later Lard Rosebery bendered the resignation of the ministry and Lord Salisbury was empressed by the Queen to form a new Cirbinet.

The start perfectness of this rould is shown by the fact that at the imment of the division in the Commons there was, according to the Liberal whips, a majority of sixteen for the gov-Notwepently it was select where the mining members were. Home of them had slipped out of the flowe sussess. The whips row langing and musking on the terrmovers looking the Thance. Others had gone away. thinking that soutters were all right. As a matter of fact, the party were caught suppling. finne members of the Liberal party felt lint. under the ricconstances, the minuters would be justified in helding on, but the susperity argued that it would be unwise to persist in a struggle in which the conditions were increase ingly leatile to the permanency of their tenure in office. It is said that the Queen accepted Lord Reselvery's resignation us she shi that of Mr. (stadelone-without the expression of rebecause with which she favored Lord Salieharry when he retired from office. It has been rependedly said, and as often denied, that Lord Bowlery was anxious to drop the carm of office, and it was thought probable by many persons that he would retire during or after his recent filters, without scaling for an adverse vote in the Bount of Commons. This tended to weaken the administration. It was also midthat there was presiderable friction between Lord Residery and Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, who had at one time from regarded by many so Mr. Gindstone's legitimate successor in the premiership. Mr. Gladsteas's alleged disagreement with the Liberal policy also sperated against the pyrermanut.

In the materi which will follow, the Conservative and Liberal Chimists will memorate, and the probabilities are that ther will carry the

If you do not meet his demands for food he is sometimes violent, and usually abusive, particularly if a mon, or the large dog, or the coincident call of a wapertable neighbor does not prevent his charilition. He is a keen critic of cutting, and will resent the absence of ment or butter when even one is backing in what you offer. Where he lodges is frequently a wonder, but the interior of a harn or the side of last year's haystack will do, or some friendly shed—a roof being needed only when there is a storm.

But the transpidoes not altogether go singly on his summer's riwnit. Sometimes there are two or three tramps, or even more, in a group. Then the hen-rousts in country places are apt to suffer, and depredations of anno suct are to brexpected. It has always been salif and believed, in rural neighborhoods, that the tramp contingent is really an organized fraternity. Certain caballatic marks which are often seen on gate-posts, fences, and heldges are supposed to be their recorded history of the people and neighborhood where they appear. It is told in eigher, to be sure, but it is plainly read by the initiated comrades in aginese. They can tell, by these marks, where is a hospitable door; where you will get nothing if you stop , where there is a big dog where the town officers are strict on fellows of this peripatetic permanion, and so on. There is a hear executive among them, like the king or queen of the gypsles, who rules so much trouble does it take to organits for doing and tring nothing in the world except becauelector the welal ander and the state

The title of Mr. Henry James's new book which has just been issued will sound ominously on the ears of all those who, like myself, place his work with that of to-day's few who are really worth while. If there is any significance in the same of "Terminations," which he gives to this collection of four stories, it will be consolation to know that the end was with two such admirable examples of his art as "The Death of a Lion" and "The Middle Years." It is this last-named, full of tenderness and pathos, that. strangely, so few find in his work, that gives the sinister foreboding any semblance of a prevision that this is to be the last we are to have from him. To lovers of James the reading of these two will bring a few of those supreme moments, to he found only with the great. As for "The Coxon Fund" and "The Alter of the Dead," I can only say that they demand the enthusiasm of the strongest admirer for the slightest approviation. This I have, but my recommendation only extends to the first two. They are in his "spienstid "last manner." The success of "Trilby" has led Du Maurier to gravify the desire of his family, and take a house in London. He has lived at Hampstend for twenty one years, in an old fashioned villa, roomy and not very interesting externally, but charming within, and with a pretty garden in the rear. An American who recently had the pleasure of a visit with the artist-author describes him as smaller of stature than one would think, and quiet and retiring in manner. He venchsafed the information that the young man who posed for Little Billier is only twenty, and is about to guess the stage.

The West has been profife in "boy preachers," but the most precodents of them all appears to be Master Ray York, who has been conducting a series of revivals in Missouri. This remarkable boy, a child of thirteen, in knickerbookers and Fauntleroy collar, talks to multitudes in a simple, clear, childish voice that somehow persuades, with its expressions and sincerity, and draws sinners to the bar of confession. He was converted to the Baptist faith at the upon of six, promised his first extraca at twelve, and is come a capatarly ordinard minister.

BLAKE, OF BLAKE'S HALL.

ADY DULCIE, wending her way back from the shelsen to the castle, under the escort of Rosic and the faithful Larry, dried her tears resolutely, and did her best-no hard task at sweet eighborn with love as an ally-to look on the bright side of things. Desmond could never leave her for long; of that she felt assared. He nuclit yo out into the world to seek his fortime, and of yourse one se brave, generous, bundsome, and altogether admirable could hardly full to find it, but his moves or failure should never, she told hereoff, make any difference to her. The day was not far off when she would be her own mistress, and then no spite of necident or design should hold her from her lover's arms.

As she and her companions came upon the confines of the castle grounds two dusky figures approached them, and she made out by the faint light of the rising meen that they were Mr. Conseltine and his and Higherst. They substed her silently, to her great roller.

"She's look to next that blackguard hestard, I suppose," saying a little. The game's only begun. Henry's fond of the

With all my heart ?" responded his senior. " Curse him, by all areass. Your Monder of the morning has turned out better thun I had dared to keps. But it was a bounder all the sums."

"It might have been a blender," returned Birhard, "but as far it's answered. We're got the brute out of the house, and it won't he my fault if he gets in again." "Twu too beld a street, Dick," sald Consoltine, "You show your cards too openly—you play too buildly. If the proud-strumched young no had only had a little common sense be might have consolidated his position with your track. Henry was in a most to do anything, to commit any felly, after you invalling the here."

"I couldn't belo it." returned Richard. "I hate the carl to such an extent that I'd have shouted his shame in his face if it. had cost me every pemy I have and every penny I expert from

You're a foot, Duck," said his father, smoothly as ever. It required a good deal to shake the elder Conseiting from his calm. " And if we think the game's won just because ye've insulted the squireen and got him out of the castle for a single day you're a bigger look than I ever thought you and that's not brut absence will make him dearer still. It's quite on the cards that he may have every stick and stone of his property to him and strand you with the barren title. Keep out of his way! He never liked you, and now be likes ye less than ever. Leave him to me. Leave Duicis alone, too. Don't be trying to excuse yourself, or trying to make here to her; you'll only make had a deal worse. Who's that in front of us? Your eyes are younger than mine."

"It's that drunken secondrel, Blake."

"Blake !" regented Conseittine, and fell into a slower step. Well, the backy, on the whole. 'The as well be should know,"
"Know what I asked Richard, Know all there is to be known about this business of the agnirous," answered the elder. " What affair is it of his !"

"That you'll not learn from the," responded his father. "Not yet, at least. If it's ever necessary ye should know, I'll tell ye. Meanwhile keep a still toughe and an open eye. We to the shebeen he's going; we'll follow him."

They were close behind Blake's heels by the time he had reached the sloor of the ale-house. He lurched round and faced politic salutation, and stumbled across the threshold with no further greeting than a drunken Isogh.

Peebles was in the kitchen, finishing a drink of whisky and chatting with the widow.

"Hullo! my king of Scota," hiscoughed Blake. "You here! Drinkin', not! Ye've taken to dacent habits in yer old age. Here? Ye'll have another drink with me."

"Indeed, but I'll not," responded the sententions old Scot.

"Ye won't! Ye won't drink "

"Yes, with my friends," returned Peebles, " but I see more of them here

He set his gives upon the table, nodded to the widow, and went out to keep his already recorded interview with Moya in the churchyand. State laughed with drunken good burner.

'Tis a brave boy, old Postiles. He down't like me, but after all 'tis a question of taste, and as gottleman quarrels on such a ground. Bedied, I'm dhey." He warehed his pocketsand found them empty. "Here, ye little spaineen," be continued, according litelant, "pay for a drink for me. Sure, 'twill be a luxury for ye. and one ye don't offen enjoy."

"Bring some whisky, if you please, Mrs. Daly," said Conseitme, emosthly, before Richard could minter bis leavy wite to retort. "Bit down, Blake, and listen to the. Are ye other enough to talk bosiness ?"

"The as solver as I need be," responded Blake. " and more other than I want to be at this hour of the night."

Cornell and the Henley Regatta.

It has been said, and with truth, that the Benky regulate the pride of all English encmen, and the race for the tirand Challenge rup, in which Cornell is entered, is remaidered by exjects to be the fastest race in the world. Seltion, indeed, are the competting crews more than a half-inogth apart, and the pace is, in consequence, asthing but a sport from start to finish. It is estimated that not less than minety the scand people yearly witness this one one, to any nothing of the groud total who go to make up the attendance for the week.

The going of Cornell to England several weeks ago, and the reasons other inspired her to such an adventurous end, have already recover attention. It would seem, hereever, in order new to speak more particularly of the regulation which they are a comparison matry, and to whom many and today an American books to either our the great race, or row a race reflecting only the greatest credit upon American methods and the science of resting.

The Henley course is reacted from London by a thirty-five-mile ride through the most benetiful country in lower Rucland. During the week of racing some two drawn trains are run daily to the fairyland woon, where home house, gayly deried and extended with guests, line the river banks, as shown in the illestrations on page 24. While originally the course was over a mile and a quarter against a our treet and affected with sharp turns, time and referred have abortioned the course to one mile. five hoteless and fifty yards, causing but a slight bend at the start, the remainder of the course being straight away. States on either sult, one hundred and thirty fort agart and meanifed with white flags, mark the course upmistalishing.

The mainter of drawing for places, right or left lank, is interesting, and shows the extent to which lock otders the races. First, each even is alletted a number, and a ward bearing that number is placed in a test. Two little girls than those from the lat each a number and the errors representing those numbers meet in the first pant. A second loss is arranged in little first pant, offer which cards of the winners of basis per drawn.

Headly the signest of chance in the drawings there enters mother; for whereas, under ordimary conditions, the Berkishire side is the better, when the wind thous so so to make it a lor slope, the core baring the blacking-ham doors are considered in have the selvantage by at least eventy feet.

in explanation of the isologistics of three of Coverella best mon-from competition at Henley, the following from the Washington Stor, will be read with interest:

in The English deduction of an amount requires that an expectant shall better have worked on an artisal forsupport, even for a day the total never have been enplayed in the construction of finals; he mile knyrr have been an instruction to heading or others apare. of any disparent, and he must were have compress. with professional correspons. The employment regard ing foreign varieties in strict. Applications for admission titler to filed by foreign errors tierre installe to school of the date reprinct for entered of English This is to give the regular committee time to unity the affiliavits made by those desiring in cases that they are it from appelent stateding. The rule was adopted in 1979, when it was bosoned that one of the speeds showsersements four from this country, who had entered the fluidry, had worked for a firthe-Englishmen, more determined that each a clim elecció. mit to reported "

The sense at Henley may be briefly described as follows: Along the Beyindain banks begroups of needing greenessed trees which are kind enough to permit plinipses. From the crime of widening, withly green tawn and undefining field. Timber the share, and more than a mile in extent, lies an unbroken string of college barges and bosse-boule, all decked out in a perfect giving of finewers, whiles and flaring red and schild awaings.

The Beckingtamships side of the course is the more popular of the two, for its gradually stoping aboves offer to the wayfarer, the boys, and the college men a chance to run along, and, heeping up with the etems, for a time cheer their favorites to received effort.

Back of this class of race estimains are the carriages, oscilos, and the magnificent private equipages of the rich and the noblity of all England. Further removed still from the water are the thousand and one anowner, takins all, peddlers, and best-makers.

(if course the Grand Chailenge cup race for band email, which is out figure) but with which Council is entered in the race of the work, great accuracy, and, employer with a very still there are other famous races to be brished a lint claim the interest of all. As an instance, there are the Ladies' challenge plate for eight ours, established in 1845, the Thannes cap for eight ours (1865); Mewards rhadience cup for fours (1865); the Vailters' challenge cup for fours (1865); the Vailters' challenge cup for fours (1866); the Wybatt challenge cup for fours (1866), which was retablished in 1876. Then there is the silver goldets mere for past ours, and the diament's selle for vingle turn, which was retablished in early as 1841.

The Higgish storms has been uptly described by an old thatoric corresponse as a spirit strains and a formy one with a torry long white, which turns, of course according to the make up of the maximum according to the make up of the most to pulling from part and starbourd, and not off directly in time over the first. It is said upon accellent authority that few creases ever row the race at less than forty strakes to the mixture, whate the recent down that as high in itself, and therefore here been taken as the first two to farth-from more magnituded to the Smith.

The following record of the past few years will give one as excellent, idea of the time the winners of the Grand Challenge cup have reads:

That the initial trial of Defender, which covered on the afterwood of July 8th, about have presed eminently covered in mit to be wondered at when the genine who planted and built her is consistered. Just prior to her homeling, these experts in yacid architecture who were granted the privilege of a page at her above were unanimous in the equation that each a bounty could not possibly prove other than, a wonder. When, on Sunday afterways, the 7th instant, who seet in her second trial Colorsia and practically saided all around her, the options was confirmed in no uncertain way. Of course Colorsia is not a flyer, neither is also as fast a heat to-day by a private or as as Topional, still it speaks pretty well for any best to show Colorsia the way in currently fashion. The most caruful estimate makes before to-day a faster best over a cup course by twenty minutes, a most remarkable result when it is considered that Defender's sails do not assist her suprement what they will have on, when use and possible alternations make them fit perfectly.

Like Valleyrie III., she is very fast in light winds—though, unlike Valleyris III., she gives greater precise of standing to be work in a blow. He entrance is of the custom kind, and the standing and without kirking up a sec. In windward work she points coroning as high as Vigilant, and in order about the customs about one-third the time. In running the ir fast, though not quite proportionality as to her windward work.

HERE is some ground for encounterement as to the fature of Republicanism in New York in the fact that practically all the influential party horders are maked to opprodition to the numberation for it election In the Laglabiture of persons who disfinguished themselves by butdein't to the party at the recent asseton. Mr. Warner Milier, Mr. Platt, and Mr. Hackett, chairman of the executive State remainter. have all coleyd the options that it would he in every respect marks he permit these gentlemen reexture to the places they have dishonered. There tought to be no doubt at all about the result of the contests which are now in progress in the interior countles. No non-who has failed his party, who has played but the hands of the Homortary, or whom mored integrity is in the food degree doubtful, should be imminuted in may behaterful or Asweather district. The Republican party contact official to: sanction of interestings the debugs here of the public service. if compet afford, very in order to occur a temporary head sucress; to combine disloyable or impurity on the part of max man who has ever exposed its favor. It must image and epitomize in its nominations and in the policy the highest popular medianor and the post elevated public medmout. It is in that they only that it one beld he over before the people, and peopletunte to influence on a domimust factor in public affairs. It is by be hoped that hight-Minhing Republicans in the districts where descriptions non are needing telephological will seem themselves in a positive and organized instance, boths and that all a fermes which would bring dishonor upon the party may be overwholmingly defeated:

It is said that our population is so polyglot in character, and the Sumlay low so utterly. antagonines personal rights, that a decent regard for public scational departs this particular name. Of course this is an entire begging of the question. The statute with reference to the observance of Sunday is a law of the State. The authorities are as solemnly bound to enforce it as they are to sufarre any other law on the samue book. If it is a hall low, if it interferes with the comfort and convenience of eltirons, the proper course is to demand its repeal. But while it remains a law, one ilement that it shall be openly distreported and chalcoed with impunity is a formand which proposes asurely and Sevise. The request recently made to the mayor that he would call off the policy commissionits from their parties to includ upon the enforcement of this law was a deliberate insult, and the persons who were ragaged in it were guilt's of autotantially the same offense sa the South Caroline Fillowolles in their proposition to brisste the law as to the vigids of suffrage.

It is time that the letter achtiment of the community should assert itself with reference to this question of the militaryoner of law and the administration of justice There will be no safety in any individual no public interest so long as the existing ansesses prior of the obligations of public officials and the prevalent tendencies in lawlessness and editate are permitted to so underked.

On the other hand, a dissolution might have involved some years of waiting before a similar boonr would full to his lot. Lord Roschery adopted the first course. He essayed to go on with things as they were in the House of Commons, and as a result be has made the poorest record of any primeminister for seventy or eighty years past. Nothing marks his term of office either as regards legislation or administration; for the only great legislative success of the Liberal ministry, the reform of roral local government by the Parish Councils act, was achieved in Mr. Gladstone's time: and it was while Mr. Gladstone was still premier that the administrative species of the late government were achieved. For his permunent place among English statesmen if would have been far better for Lord Resolvey II. when Mr. Ghabstone retired, he had insisted on a dissolution. A general election at that time might have placed the Liberale in a minority; but it would have consolidated the party and erected out the faddlets, and a few years later Lord Rosebery might have been at the head of a party spon which he could rely. Now that chance is gone for

An Opportunity for Enterprise.

TWESTY-RIGHT Chinese ports are now open to trade, as the result of the recent war, and every country having the favored ration" clause in its treaties has equal privileges with Japan. Here is an opportunity for American enterprise which ought not to be neglected. European nations will be quick to assil themselves of the opening. Doubt less English and German traders are already exploring the field. American capitalists and merchants should hestir themselves in the same direction, first making a close and coreful study of the conditions with which they will have to deal, and then utilizing the knowledge so obtained as the basis of intelligent investments and of artive efforts to supply the needs of the Chinese market

It is well understood in financial circles that China has been backing with some confidence to this requiry for the money required to meet the Japanese indennity. Apparoptic be amount meded to reinforce Japan for relinquish. ing the Late-Tong promouls has been obtained in Russia. but the you'r larger sum which must be juid in jurniumer of the terms of prace is yet to be accured, and it is not at all impossible that when the matter is taken up to the fall the loan may be effected here. Such a consummation would have a mon important bearing upon our future reade reliations with China; it would, in fact, give Amerirun capitalities a prestige and an advantage which sould early more than offset the greater commercial enterprise and artifety of rather countries in serbing the conquest of the new market. But even if American money should not loop decisively to relieve China of her present financial embarrassements, there is no reason why we should not enter promptly upon a rigorous competition for a share; and a large share, of the trude which is now within our reach and which, in the monre of things, will grow and expand with every advancing year. There is, on the contreey, every remem who we alloudd punk our way into the thick of the struggle and who in that field, as we have done in eilers, a practical supremary for the products of our inception and skill

Woman and the Atlanta Exposition.

Of briter evidence of the social changes of the present day can be found thanin the port taken by Southern women in the making of the Cotton States and International Expendition at Aclimits. Not that there is any particulher novelty to the fact. The Woman's building at the Columbian World's Pair to Chicago will long be remornbered as a wanderful management to woman by woman. It has put the south to line with the rest of the Union, and opened up a new era for its people,

The story is brief and interesting. When the male directors began their plans and arrangements for the expoactor there was 100 to by suspensiving much for what is now ferres as a Wester's repercuent. The imposition directors being make to largest a building the wester raises, by finds con offices the same of offices, foreigned deliver, to which the directory afterward made an addition of ten thousand dollars. Then the energetic woman's board opened a competition for female architects, and selected the design of one of the competitors, Miss Mercur, of Pittsburg, for the Woman's building. This much accomplished, the board formulated a plan of action to far-reaching and comprehensive as to equal that of the Chicago fair. A hourd of victors was established, consisting of Mrs. Cleveland, the Countess of Aberdeen, a dozen distinguished society wamen from the great cities of the hand, and another dense from Georgia. This gave the woman's department a social time and character of the best type. A second move was to enilst the interest of the many women's organizations of the country; a third, to obtain the invaluable and of the press, domestic and foreign; a fourth, to attract exhibitors from distant points, both at home and abroad; and a fifth, to increase the attractiveness, variety, beauty, and utility of the exhibits to be shown in the Wisman's building. Along all these lines work is new going on continuously. Assuring responses have come from every quarter in the New World and the Old

But it is in regard to the exhibition of woman's bulgstry and work that the largest labor has been done. The more list of the committees affords a good insight into what is being accomplished. Practically excepthing in which woman is concerned is envered. Among others there are committees on decorative and applied art, floriculture, agriculture and pomology, flue art, sculpture, hospitals and charities, kindergertens, day nurseries and children's achools, woman's professions, patents, inventions and discoveries, literature and the press, architecture, building and housekeeping, bee culture, poultry and omithology, cooking, embroidery and education, music, normal schools and rolleges, and household emnomics.

The Winnag's building under such anspires promises in be the feature of the exposition. It is artistic home-like, and elegant. The exhibits will be enough in member and interest to stock a great museum. It will undoubtedly be an important factor in improving the condition of the women in the South, and especially of those who are dependent. Credit for these achievements must be given to the members of the beant of lady managers, and particubirly to Mrs. Joseph Thompson, the president, Mrs. Mande Andrews Ohl, Mrs. W. M. Dielouin, Mrs. A. B. Steele, Mrs. A. E. Thornton, Mrs. W. H. Felton, Mrs. W. D. Great, Mrs. W. A. Hempfillt, Mrs. L. M. Gordon, and Mrs. W. C. Lanler.

MR. JAMES PAYS, who supplies the entertaining editorial page of the Hustrated Leader Acre, attenues in a recent issue of that paper that " in the State of Albuny a law against fadles wearing tall hate in thoutres was recently proposed in the Legislature." Some generous American ought to enrich Mr. Payn's library by the gift of a gazetteer.

A GRATIFYING cylidence of the improved condition of bond ness is afforded by the fact that an increase in the wages of operatives is reported from nearly all the important manufactoring centres in New England. Pennsylvania, Ohio, and other States. The advance in some cures in as much as twenty per cent , and in pone is it follow his per cent. These advances appear to have been voluntarily made in every instance. Such a fact goes to show a restoration of confidence between employers and employes, and justifies the belief that industrial relations are gradually being adjusted to a standard of justice and fair play. There is every ground to believe that business generally will from this time forward show steady improvement, and that the producing chases will not again be reduced to the extremities of the last year or two, unless the persistent agitation of the sliver question shall operate to repress intelligent and generous enterprise.

> It is very ungracious to look a gift-horse in the face, no doubt, but in the case of the late Mr. James Henwick's collection of old masters, which, with certain restrictions, he bequesthed to the Metropolitan Museum, I think that a rather close scratley—even though there was seeming ingratitude in it-us to the authenticity of the various pictupon is very desirable before they are accepted by the trustees. There is too much worthless truck in the musents , too much valuable space taken up with psenda old masters, and now that there is such a nucleus of really fine and exceptional pictures to be found there, it would be advisable, I think, to institute a randul supervision over all bequests and gifts. This is all brought forth by the imposing list of names to be found in the Benwick collection. Correggio Rubens, Tinturetto, Paul Veronese, Grenze, and Raysdar! being among them. It is certainly too good to be true, and I quote the opinion of an expert regarding. it : "I have not seen the paintings left by Mr. Renwick, but it is highly probable that there is not in the entire outbection a single work of art, whether it he the work of the moster to whom it is attributed or a later copy, which is mittled to be rissed as a 'museum picture. IS WHICH MISCHIEF IS RESWING

It was late in the afternoon of the same day when Mr. Blake rose from his led in the tenement to which he gave the someons and impressive title of Blake's Hall, a tombledown but of two stories which long years of neglect had reduced to a condition of almost complete run. The ground floor was occupied by Blake himself, the upper portion by an ancient peasent woman who acted as his rook, housemand, enterer, and general factorins. There was not a whole pane of glass or an unbroken article of farniture in the whole building, and the little plot of ground in which it sto 1 was a wilderness of stones and woods

Riddy was made aware of her employer's awakening in the fashion familiar to her for years past, by his rearing at the full stretch of his image for a draught of whisky. That dispationed, he areas, and proceeded with shaking limbs to shave and dress. He was still occupied with his toilet when the voice of the elder Conseiting was heard in the outer vocas, demanding him.

"Give him a gian of punch," Blake called out to Blakty. "Till be with him in the squaring of a lemon. So," he continued, realing out of his bedroom a minute later, "ye've brought the rule with ye, though I forbade ye."

Richard, sufferly flicking at his boot with his riding-whip, looked at Blake from under his lowering systrows, but took no further head of his ambiguous volcome. Blake unsteadily poured out a second bumper of spirit, and the glass rattled against his testh as he drained it.

"And what's the news with his lordship this day?" he asked.
"Still very ill," answered Consoltine. "He's been upon by that old fool Poebles, wher's been hammering at him all day long to recall that brat of a boy-love of his."

"Faith!" returned Rake, "and he might do worse, by a great deal. "Tis a fine last, Desmond; as clever and handsome as that cub of yours is stupid and ugly. Don't shtand there, ye imp of perdition, glowering at me like a ghost. Sit down and dhrink like a Christian,"

Richard obeyed a scarcely perceptible motion of his father's eyelrows, sat at the hattered table, and poured out for himself a glass of whicky, to which he put his lips with an awkward affectation of good fellowskip.

"Have ye got that two hundred pounds?" asked Blake,
"I have," said Consoltine; "I've brought it with me."

He unbuttoued his coax and took a bundle of bank papers from the inner breast pocket. Blake took it with shaking lands and runmed it in a crumpled mass into his breeches pocket without counting it.

"You're as good as your word, Dick Conseitine, for once in your life," said be "Have another dhrink."

Conseitine profited by Biake raising his glass to his lips to fling the contents of the tumbler which Biddy had filled for him on to the earthen floor of the hat, and filled it again, principally with water

"Why," said Blake, "ye're gettin' friendly and neighborly in your outd age. Ye'll be a darent man before or die, if ye live long enough."

"Blake," said Conseltine, "I want to talk to you. Did ye ever think of emigration ?

"Did I eyer think o' what !" asked Blake, pausing with his fourth tumbler half way to his "Emigration," repeated Conseltine.

"Sure, I never did," returned Blake. "Why

"Well," said his companion, "there are many reasons why ye might think of it. Ye're just spoiling here-wasting yourself. If you go out wort, a man of your abilities, with a little capital, would do well. Land and hirting are chesp, it's a lovely climate, and there are no end of chances for making money. " Be jabers " suid Blake, " ye're mighty ginerons all of a sudden. Ye want to get rid of me. Spake the truth new, bu't that it !"

"Well," said Conselline, with a great appearance of candor, " that is it. I'd rather have ye out of the country. You're dangerous here, Blake, -dangerons to us and to yourself."

"To meself !" echiest Blake. " And how any I dangerous to meself !"

"Ye'll be splitting some day on a certain matter that we know of -any now, we usedn't name names and if ye did speak, 'twould be as land for you as for us."

Make that good," and Binke.

Well," said Consettine, "ye'd very hindy get a bandsome issue of messey down from the other parties, but that once spent- and ye know. it wouldn't take ye long to spend any sum ye might get-yo'd get no more. Now, so long as you're faithful to our cause, you know you have a loyal friend in me. I'll give ye five himdred down to go to America, and another two hundred a year as long as you live. Queen Victoria as Seen by an American Girl.

It is not, perhaps, generally known to the New Yorkers and others who were delighted during the last senson by Mile. Zelie de Lussan's singing of "Carmen," that the only Carmen whom the Queen of England associated with the artists who sang it was the New York girl of whom we are all proud. Three times her Majesty "commanded" her appearonce at Windoor Castle, a distinction which Patti berself has not enjoyed.

I will use Miss de Lussan's words as near as pessible in telling the story, for they described a most apt and graceful picture of her Majesty as wher he to edity :

Before the performance commenced, an arm-chair was placed vious to the foot-lights, with a small table beside it. This chair was occupied by Queen Victoria, and the table she used to hold her opera-glasses, her fan, ber handkeretief, and her smelling-salts. Her Ma; sety applauded liberally, and compelled curtain calls quite frequently. When the performance was over I was conducted by Sir Henry Ponwithy to the Queen's presence. She had charined me so much by her kindly attention and evideat suppresent of the opera we had just played that I felt I was being presented to some very delightful old buty who understood music.

" Vour Majouty, this is Miss de Lussen," said Bir Henry Ponsenby. I howed very low, and the Queen, with the most welcome smile on her these, came forward, meeting me half way She was most simply powered in black silk; her hair was white and soft; she were a white lace rap with long strings attacted, and hanging besely; and a downstim, a diament star, was on her right side. Her first question was about my mine, where I was been a then she nated me wanthing about my accestry, all in the next natural and chatty fusion. Then she taiked of tours, and paid no some pretty conplumats. Presently the Princess Boutries was prompted to our and, without any further formality, we talked standing. The interview was being but not at all difficult. When I was loaving, Princess Bestrice presented me with a gift. saying . 'The Quota desires that you will accept. this as a token of the pleasure you have given her tide evening.' I accepted it, of course,

Sir Henry Pomonthly asked min later for a photograph, and I sent one to him. Her Majesty and it, and asked him to give it to her. He immediately wrote an, explaining the Queen's request: I had a portrait elegantly painted, set to a costly frame, and sent to her Majosty. shortly afterward, I received a large portrait of the Queen beautifully framed, with her persund autograph upon it.

"A few months later I was commanded to appear again. On that occasion we presented Fra Digwide, After the performance I was again presented, when, to my astenishment, the Queen came forward and, waving her chamserialo aside, said: "I know Miss do Los now; an introduction is not necessary 't and, extending her band, we shook hands like ordinary people. This was a most unusual occurrenor, I was told, as it is the custom always to kies the hand of revalty. The Queen led me to a wat beside her, and we had a long that about mustic in which she is must recoherfully well informed. Her Mayesty is very fond of music, and during the performance has hand would after beat time greatly with her fan. After this performance I received, through No Boary Poperator, a description from her Majesty, heing a ribbes with the monogram, V. R., surmounted by a recess, all set in dispands wear this with much pride. In a short while I appeared again at Windoor Costle.

MANXLAND, OR THE ISLE OF MAN.

ANCIENT TORR AND CHEES.

HE caricutures of Manamen frequantity repreing three-legged; to any one knowing the national emblem this apparently absurd reference is at once approvat. The Many heraidic emblem consists of three legs radiating from a common centre. This device is an alludon to the geographical relation existing between the Tale of Man and the three mighlaring countries; for it is the centre of the British kingdom. A compass placed on the map with this fragment of land as a centre will sweep with its other arm through Scotland, England, Wales, and Ireland. Another ideal in another ers has adopted this same trians emblets. Coincliences in life are more curious than in the tion, but the Trinacria of Sicily has a different significance, being merely a reference to the ships of the bland. The treatment of each emblem expresses each national character; the Manx emblers is made with three armir-covered legs, and is, in consequence, stiff and feeble, while the Bicilian treatment shows three percept, burn limbs, bold, strong, and grace ful, typically tirecton in million.

Although the lab of Man the emply iched in between three larger countries, it is none the low a rejurate outlier, distinct and individual in every way. The Manriago are a separate race from their neighbors; their amily conplexican and pruninent cheek-hopes, approachour the Welsh type, betray their Brandmavian origin. The Norsemen, in their argentic undertaking of exploring and settling Europe, left newhere more marked traces of their race than can be found on this little island, for islanders ching more closely to an original type, from their enforced isolation from the shifting weekl.

The lake of Man lum two great features in gerrernment ... bome role and woman outfrage, of these they are meet promit, and a visitor is not long left in ignorance of Many supersurity. They have retained their separate povernment, despite the nearness of powerful overrenching neighbors. It comists of an executive council which includes two judges on "decenters," and a Parliament called the "Home of Keys"; while the only recognition of the tie which hinds them to their neighbors is the presence in the island of a limitenantgovernor appointed by the crown. Their Parimmus they claim to be the chlost in Europe, duting back some right hundred years. It consists of twesty-four members who are elected be men and western voters, women homeboldere having equal rights with the men, despite the name of the island : for the Managemen dist mit intend to reflect any glory on their sox when they named the island; the word is only a currentian of the Manx word " Vannin," or "Mannin," messing mobile-a further rongniston of the position of the island-

This agricut " House of Keys " retains many ald-time customs, even to the presculgating of its now have for the year at an open-air mosting on Tynwald filll on the fifth of such July, which is the great national holiday. This hill is the site of the nuclent government by clans, and here, in a covered tent, on this important day, are read all the new regulations to govern the his aldding Manx for the next year custom, a remnant of the days before the newspurser and the railway, has failed into a holice staryates, for moment the great crowd that throngs the hill on this day listens, or even remembers what if going on. As far as utility or information goes, the performance would have been dropped years ago but for the fact that the Manaman is stubbornly conservation.

From first to last the visitor to the fels of Man is curprisel; at every turn his presunarrived notions receive rade shocks. When he leaves Liverpool or Dublin be imagines he is going out of the world, but in four hours' time a powerful steamer has enryted him to Douglas, the principal town of the island. As he draws evar to the buge stone pier he was a bir, benutiful bootling town, running for several miles along the edge of a crossist-shaped bay, while above it lower the cliffs, prowned with custies. once the property of the Dukes of Athol, the former hereditary rulers of the island. Everything is arranged to see Pouglas at its best , even to land here is a delight. Various placerts on the steamer state the porter's charges down to the smallest duty, and inform the traveler that any attempt to overrharge will submit the carrier to a flow, if complaint be made. As a result, the parters are respectful and obedient, never presoming to force their attentions on any one unless hidden. It is the autithmis of the landing at Capri.

Once landed, the visitor's surprise contilarge, well-managed hotels are found everywhere ; the stores and offices are all impo and substantial; the streets are crowded with people and vehicles; the lay is filled with small waft, darting to seel fro; and there is a snip about the place which suggests indescribebly an American town.

The most conspicance feature of the bland at liest sight is the summer visitor. In Douglas they have destroyed the native features of the town; the Many must be a startly people to maintain any individuality at all in such a bamus muchtrum. The traveler who wants to first the natural owners of a place still make turbed would be in despair in Douglas ; but to the wandering philosopher who is disposed to take things as he finds them, this condition of affairs is just as interesting so say other might be, for he is able to study maswares the methode of life and thought of a class of English people well worth the trunkle of observing.

The print majority of these Edictish richness to Man come from the manufacturing districts of Lemmakire and Yorkshire, forming in agpearance and impuage as distinct a type as the Managemen themselves. They are big of frame, slive of increment, slow of thought, penderons to good, and forest in accent. The observer is again impressed with the fact that the middle have English "go in for things," as they term it, by carrence; when they go on a holiday outing they are disposed to become extremely free sucleasy. The English victors on the fale of Man do not take their pleasures saily; they are fively beyond all precent even desired the greeage English tourist. The traveler fresh from the over-raind French watering places is cherical by their ference and general lack of decorate for these Yurkshire people frequently go far beyond the limit allowed in France or America. for respectable people. They crossed the sport and immense of a year cuto their fortught's day on the binnel. Generalities are often raisleading and the sweeping. I will give instances of this tendoury. Of course, an elsewhere in the United Kingdom, except to Wales, the sexes must bette asperately, but here to Douglas a nort of "deadline" has been established, and no man to allowed to cross it storing building hours, under house penuities. The Man's authorities Lain this rate to be a necessity to preserve decerem on the fearth. Again, in the various dance-halls muttered along the chiffs, the entertainments often metals descring by various troupen, right in the midst of the crowds prese us boid as anything could be in Paris. On the algebra that these degrees appear, that portion for discretall is crowded to the deery by the violate on the island. There is nothing bodden about it, everybeily goes, everybedy telleabout it, and milesly is alread to express his or her spinion.

The cliffs at Bouglas give the chance, which has been fully usind, for development total pleasure-grounds. Heeting how used for conttries as the parks of the Earls of Derley and Athol, they do must surprisonally performance Pitfed with brand winding walks with ensience watered here and there, with new and then a chapte eastle which more serves no better purpose than and botel or dance-ball, these townsng heights suggest at once the Riviers, orgacially the grounds of Monte Carlo. In fact, if the gilding which rise puts over that leaves ly over-rated place he forgotten, these Many grounds are fully as fine and cultivated as these of their southern prototype. Wandering past the various ammenious. I found more Amerioun devices for exticking the heavy English copper than anywhere else in Rorope. Atlantic City, in all its positionamor glory, does not outdo in "attractions" this little perthern pland dropped to the waste of the Irish Son. The farther one past from Donglas the more will be penetrate into the real life of the Mant people. The crowds its not gather at Ramsey, Peel, or Port Prie: Diegles appears to be a sieve through which the Laureshire pensant some impossible to sift.

When Dougles und a few of its neighboring picule gless are left behind, the scenery of the island grows charmingly rural. There is but little bublisess or grandour shout Man, and the sight-seer who expects magnificent yout lines or bold sliffs and precipiess will be weefully disappointed; but the hills are steep enough to give character to the country, but not too steep to be fertile, while the vegetation is much green and profuse. The island assum to receive the full force of the Gulf Stream, for it is said to have a warmer, more equable climate than the neightesting parts of England and Iroland. At any rate, its warm winters attract the lixuists who dread the fugs and colds of the English season. Sever becoming very rold, plants grow profreely out-of-days which with us must be tenderly cured for.

There is over the island a spirit of restful estestment and prosperity very different from Ireland. No one seems to be in want ; no hands are held out to buy, and such little thatched extrage is surrounded by a flower garden whose invariance excites cavy and admiration. Great broad, white reads wind in all directions, fordered by great bedges; the error are all beavy in the fields ; the effect of the accuse is the same we that of a hypical English implicance, only more rolling, turn prosperous, and more laxurises in foliage and regetation.

These islanders have shown their progressive ness by adopting the trolley-car, under the guine of the "electric trans," and it is the intention of the company owning the like to encircle the mant. At present the line runs along the cliffs, skirting the shore from from he to Laxey. In this way it is pleasanter and enter to see the chiffs than from the carriage road or radiway.

Fortunately for the juded traveler who has not the rearage to avoid resorts of the country which he risite, there are not many piness to which me must go so Man. The Lancy wheel and Peet Cuelle are the only two show-places estable of Douglas which one must see. Both are as yet largely cospelled and worthy of a visit. The great Laxy wheel, which has been for many years a feature in text-backs dealing with engineering and the production of power,

The other great attraction of Man is Post Castle on the west coast. There are spects on the sendow for which the imagination demutule reather to complete their picturesquesces. Harbech Costle and Dumbuse Castle, at the Giant's Coursesy, are the creations of postle minds which have answered nature's dreamal. From Shore to Shore.

Controlly, like charity, should begin at home; but in this fix of mirels age the average man begins to dominat not only the conveniences but the luxuries of life when he travels. He will be royally wined and dired while speeding over town firms at sixty miles an boar, and he regards a bath and burker-shop of as much easity as the sleeping-car. One may readily imagine that the advantages in radway facilities have been not only equaled but surpassed by improvements to marine architecture. Even the baleyon days of the boosted transationtic parkets appear as a tallow dip to our electric light compared with the scenn grey hounds.

What does it cost to run a passenger steam acress the Atlantic! Not necessarily one of the pulatial twin-screw racing type, where every extra mile of speed means a heavy proportional consumption of coal, the steamer's life-blood. but one of regular proportions, where the element of substantiality and conservation is oncecated with good living. Just think of the investment in the fleet of the North German Lloyd, comprising eighty-nine stanners whose individual east is from five hundred thousand to one million six hundred thousand dollars, all being either iron or steel compartment steamers, whose propelling forces may vary from moderate powers to triple expansion engines of thirteen theseand horse-power. The routes of this line almost girdle the globe, miling from Bremen to New York, Genoe, Brazil, eastern Asia, and Australia. On the steamer Hunel, for instance, there are two hundred and sixty men employed. They are a perfect lot from Captain Junget downward, including a profeesimal music tand, which now accompanies every steamer on this line. The force is under military discipline, and many of them have served in the German may

But the North German Lloyd is particularly famous for its table. In senson the ship carries fifteen thousand pounds salted, and as much more of fresh ments, over four thousand pounds of hunter, twelve thousand ones, hirty thousand penals potatees, three thousand pounds rice, une handred and fifty pounds ten, twelve bundred pounds sugar, and very meanly one hundred and fifty burnels of flour, a large lot of beam and peace, with about nine hundred perands of choose, of which Limburger is a "perceptible" portion. In liquies they bever carry under night thousand buttles of varues wines, valued at about twolve thousand dollars, with four thousand bettles of different mineral waters and nearly nine thousand litera of lager, much of which is to be had "on tap." It is a well known fact that the wines on this line are not only of undoubted quality, but at anomally low press. The trip "from shore to shore" seldoni etranda soren daya from all of which it will be seen that the modern elementaly is an expensive as well as a resembleful affair. When the Hered, or the Luka, for that matter, starts on her eastward vorage shocarries nearly three thousand tour of roal in her hunders, costing on an average three dellars and lifty must a tim. The gange of assuring and wanty stokers daily showed into her couring furnaces three burdred tens. Unitere and gallow of oil are used to intrinste her production cocines, pumps and dynames, so that the suggins for the vitality of her running forces mount to nearly eight Brossend dellars. Triple-expansion on gives and improved machinery of the present day have made it possible to so recommize cost. that the communition per indicated horse-power per hour has been reduced in ratio to much less than two pounds, as against mire pounds in 1996 and five and one-half pounds in 1840.

The Recent Yale-Harvard Boat-Race.

THE result of the Yale-Harvard bout-ruce at New London, Friday afternoon, June 28th, illustrates the fact that good coaching is more than half the battle. No one will question the fact that, individually, the members of the Harvard crew were physically strong men; almost, if not quite, as strong as those of Yale. If we assume, then, that the crimoon scallers were not lacking in beef, the reason for their defeat must be found chewhere.

A crew to win must excubine strength with skill. Strength the Harvard cress had in paraty but skill in smaller quantities. Sterngth is not acquired in the boat, it must be natural skill can only be attained by the hardest kind of practice under the watchful eye of an experionnel coach. Skill, however, in the individual our, counts for little if the members of the crow do not possess it regardly.

Thus the winning crew is one which rows as a mackine. The eight men row as one; the I ados take water exactly at the same instant. 12: pailed through evenly, and taken out its gotters. On the catch the even beaves as one man, and in every point, indeed, union becomes untold strength.

When a crew rows in perfect unless and their shell glides through the water on an even keel and without perceptible half between strokes, that even may be mid to be a winning cryw; but to have affaired this degree of excellence, the reach line been the one important factor. The science of rowing cannot be acquired in a day. Even the next and pupil requires menths of study to perfect separately the different points, and finally blend them late a whole.

The Harvard crew, in its race, showed, to be sure, better furn then but your, you it was hardly possible to believe, almost directly after the start, that they had been truining and proing together continuously for more than six months. After the first mile, wherein they displayed a certain knowledge of crew cowing, they went to pieces, and from their on to the finish each man seemed to row for himself nione. Time was not observed, rushing the slide was a frequent securivose, and clipping the stroke very noticeable

The men responsible for Yahr's victory are " Bub" Cook and Dr. Porcy Bolton. Couch Wassen, bowever, was not responsible for Hareard's defeat, for, with mitiring energy and a falthfulnum remarkable to a degree, he worked for victory. He was ansessmental partly through a long chapter of accelera which broke up the regular training, and to the undeniable fact that the crew did not now the race creditably—viz., to the form which he had taught them.

Where candidates for crews such as is possible to presure at Yule and Barrard outer. strict training for months for one rues, it should result only in the closest of contests. That the paset has not shown this is because of the facility system which has marked Harvard's coaching. Now that she has fully realized this, and has set up a Cout of her own, to abble by him to the total elimination of all friction among different graduate conches, each one of whom may think his ideas the best, we may reasonably look forward to steady improvement which can mean but one thing, unnely, a gradual move-up ou Yale; or, mother words, blood stirring finishes, such as they invariably have in England when Oxford and Cumbridge meet.

"VALKTHER HL" UNDER SAIL.

Looking at Lord Dunreven's 1886 cup-challenger, Valkarie III., as she stands along the shore off Gearsek, close hauled, a feeling of astonishment is instantly induced by her great spars, and the question is forced upon one, how can the possibly stand up under such an entirinti-spread t And, rightly cromph, this Best impression finds as who among Vallyric's English following, who fall to see how she can sail at all in a bit of a blow, when a strong brosse, in which Britannia stands up like a church, shows her up as tender as a wonan-

But it must be understood that Designer Watson did not try to turn out an improved Britmeoin, mitable for racing in English waters. On the contrary, his one idea was to produce a boat which would rocet the conditions alone of wind and water most likely to be met with off Sandy Hook in September, and better proof of his probable oursess could not be had time the showing of Valleyrie III. in light weather. She has simply proved herself a ghost, and able to fly almost in light airs, which but goutly belly her monstrous jackyarder.

While Old Probability is a particularly uncertain quantity when a yacht-race is on the card to be settled, we would not be so each, after all, as to lay edds on light wonther prevailing here during early September, when the races will be sailed. Lord Dunesven has studied our weather records sufficiently to know this, and it is undoubtedly quite as true that Mr. Watson, when at work on the place for l'affigue III. remembered his experience here in 1965. Then Vallegrie II. might have carried with profit a greater sail-spread, but her spar plan, which could not be aftered, prevented. Hence the new tost's moster spread is a logical conclusion which we have all forescen, and even though she fails to defeat Brilonnies a single time when the wind is high, the fact must not be given too much weight.

It is well, however, to remember that a boat may be oversparred for mederate weather, though in the case of Vallage's III, it hardly seems profeshie. When a genius fike Watern enters into the consideration it is note to Judge the boat by her maker, and though her trials thus far have raused much adverse remark, the chances greatly favor her showing marked superiority near distinguis except in heavy weather, just us wen as she gets in anything like smooth running order. Volkyris III. to day has not begun either to be tuned up or to show her true form

The great length of her conster, which the picture does not show, might be considered a birmish, but her great from doubtless requires it. Her howevert, it will be further mitteek is unusually long, by reason of which she carries larger head-mile properthumbely to her also than any English racing-yacht over did According to experie, the fact that her head-sails are shorted high, and are high in the leads, mean increased ability to jam the wind. The shortd-now, or speed-free, a sense thing quite as now as boundy. It holds certain advantages, however, for yachte of the size of Fullyrer, which no other style could. In this respect the big cutter in an enlarged edition of the new forty-ruler, Coress, which was also designal by Mr. Watson.

It will further be noticed that she has broke sheer, though a flin entry, and looks some like a uniquier cause than anything rise. On a brand reach, with wheels closeded and a fair breeze, she moves beautifully, leaving on wake, and raising comparatively a small amount of him wave

ATHLETIC PROMINENCE.

The record which Yale most of morele have each the past aredresic year is our in which all Yale men glory and the albietic world at large applants. Victoria in fact-ball and base-ball, on truck, field, and water, is the succeptant rivered which must be attributed to the logical effect of an efficient management, together with the warm interest of graduate conclus-Victory after victory has not percised upon her humars because of "Yale linek." Nor, inshed, yould chance have you the foot-ball games with fineward and Princeton, or the uset points in the track and fluid resets of the Interestinguate Association.

To-day Yale's athletic promineurs and supriversty are more unquestioned than ever, and at this time, when interparticual contests are all. the many all the talk, when strumed relations with Harvard render the prospect of a race at New Lendon in 1995 glossey imbed, it would seem quite to order to impost a beat error, Yale vs. the trimmy of the Ogford-Cambridge race. next year. To be sore, the suggestion is not a new me, still it must be complered timely, to rice of " Bub" Unik's reident desire for meta implication.

When the question came up on different ocresions in past years and was quietly dropped with nothing done, it would be said in explanation, " Well, But ben't ready you - he can't feel certain secuels. Crafty old for he belukewarm through lack of confidence." At the same time it would be proficted that ' just as seem so Bole is county. Yale will try her luck without full. Money, time, nothing will deter no long as Bab is wifilm"."

Of course no one will question Yale's right The New Haven oarsmen have acquitted themselves sufficiently well in the water to merit the honor. And if a popular vote wave taken toolay Yale would be de clared the leading representative of another fine-mile rowing in this country.

Not only does a Yale crew bold the record for the distance, but your after year Vale crown demonstrate without fail their the cough knowledge and mastery of the sport.

This year's Yale crew proved no exception, and in the opinion of experts would have rowed under 30,10 with the weather conditions favor-What's more, a more condition over never round for Yale or any other college. Day after day, with unfailing regularity, the eres reall and did row the four rather in less than twenty-one minutes. And each regular performances fall short of the marvelons only when it is considered that the New London course is nesterately fast only under the very but weather and water conditions.

Compared to the Oxford Cambridge course upon the Thames in England, it is quite dead, and owing to the river's channel, which shows a regular make course, running first to one benk and then the other about every one hundred yards, renders difficult for the conswain the oping of a stealght-away course.

Among Yale conches, without exception, the feeding is one of confidence in the result of a meeting with English university ours. They believe that in the matter of rigging and the use of patent swivel our locks we have a certain adrantage over the old-fushioned bless which prevail to-day in the English shrill. That night men could be gotten together whose physical condition was quite up to the very best in Enghand, they do not doubt for one moment; and as for rowing a "got thar" stroke, they point to the work of Yale rights at New London

As an implacen take this year's crew. As I have already said, they rowed four unles in practice under twenty one minutes; in our particular case it was twenty minutes. thirty are ends. The question tion is, if they can perform in such style over a slow course, what would they not do over the English course, having to their favor an even-rouning four-mileau-bour correct I

In fact, the contemplation of the precible in this oper is not without interest per menting in proof of the small gap which a contact would surely show there is between an English college even and a representative American one

Signs of Political Activity.

THERE is little inspiration to political activity in the tourid heats of summer, and ordinarily we have a let-up In partisan work when the thermometer is in the ninetics. The present season, however, promises to be exceptional in this particular. In nearly every State political affairs are more or less solively engaging popular attention, and in some of the larger commonwealths the excitement is niready at fever heat. Kentucky is to the threes of a gubernatorial contest : in other Southern States the debute on the silver fame dominates the public mind : he loves the Republicans have been stirred by a heared contest for the gubernatorial pomination, and, non-that the vandidate has been selected, are entering upon a campaign which promises to onlist all their energies; in Other the lines are forming for a vigorous contest which will involve the selection of a United States Senator and second State officials; in Pennsylvania Semilor Quar has provided a control over the question of the chairmannthy of the Republican State Committee which is rousing violent antagonisms; and so on through the fed of conceasuwealths.

Here in New York the Hepublicans have not as yel manifested my emoid-rible activity except to the way of head enotests for Legislative namications, but the leaders of the Democracy are by no means title. Senator Hill and his trusty benchmen are basily engaged in perfecting the party organization and complying acrongenous for a vigorous contest in the Miste at large, while here in the metropolis the Tammany chiefe are getting really to some plement, with all the renderes at their command. The effort to rever control of the city and the Legislative branch of the government. They are doing this quietly and without blare of trampets, but their work is all the more effective because it is without estentation.

It seems to us that it will be a grave mistake for our Republican leaders to ignore this activity of the approxima-It is idle to assume that our ascendency in the State can be maintained without colorent organized effort. We have in some measure forfeited the public confidence by your failure to messure up in the sountard of duly as he evetals vital questions. Spite of all that may be elected to the contrary, the simple touth is that the party was discredited. before the people by the combines action of the last Legislature in putting contempt upon the reform souths at which vrested it. It is true, indeed, that some pledges were curried out, but in most car's the performance was suffer and refuction. It is true, also, that the charge of intidelity and inefficiency applies only to a minutity of the Republican legislature, but there were a cough of these to defeat the public wines, and the party to entered exanot escape the responsibility of that result. It therefore: we are to held the 85m; and prevent a return of the Democracy to power, we misk recognize the necessity of climinating the discrettiable chosent of the party and efferting a through organization in every county and Legislative district, on a book of principle and apprens regard for the public interests. The party as such has nothing to do with the rivalries or ambitions of would be femlers. It comet affect to loud that I to their purposes. It must keep chor of entanglements of whatever serv, and make its fight distinctively along the liese of high public policy. The only excess the Republican party of New York can have for existing as a pulitical factor is that it can give the people better government, assure them larger prosperity and ampler enjoyment of all the rights of citiconship, and more effectively every out every medel reform social and political those any other party. When it reeses to do that, or permits its sincerity as an agent of the popular will be be called into question, it forfetts its only claim to the public confidence, and deserves to be, us in average pulitical combitions, it will be, besten

Japanese Toleration.

Ose fact which has provoked while attention in commetion with Japanese progress is the uskention which is given to all forms of religion. Where it is remembered that three decades ago the country was given over almost cathely to pagenism, it is certainly remarkable that non-the Christian faith is played everywhere upon an equality with the national beliefs. It is stated as an illustration of the liberality of the government, that during the recent war two hundred thousand copies of the New Testoment were distributed among the soldiers of the army in Uhina, and that Christian chaptains were employed for the benefit of such soldiers as had embrased that religion. Perhaps a Jet stronger evidence of the importiality of the government is furnished in the fact that recently the Department of Home Affairs has issued a circular to the Metatelly of the Buddhist and Shinto priests calling attention to the Immorality and general unworthings of many of the clergy of those two sects, which embrace pinety percent of the Japanese people. The bishops of both these sects are warmed that they must relieve from responsibility at teachers and preachers all those private who are mentally and murally disputition. It is helicant that this under will result by the removal of many of those new in holy union who by their imporalities, here length discretit upon the personnent and the religion they profess. Silver as an Issue.

OR more than a year past 51 has looked very much as though the next Presidential campaign would have in its rigid insint bespecifies so to the policy of the free entiage of either. The amporter of the Demoends party seried to be respectfull to the and now, and the fear that they would forover all the principles of four-risk amily. the hopely engravoted the critis of the commercial puris previoused upon the country by cheer assault used the pulley of protection.

This officer course his the above beginness, was your title to an epidenia of the influence-it spread in every direction, and appeared in the most unexpected places he may know why my man knew hom. Starting in these Western States. whose chief festivity is the mining of allow, it spread over most of the other Western States and over all the Southern States, manifesting the W in most mellensell form in sentions that had exerciting to be used nothing to gain by a is because of the commercial Presimilation thinkers represons to belle is that the majority of the own and bouthers people must be either knaves or fools to advocate a measure that was opposed to reason, to honesty, and to the teachings of history. But day by day we are learning more and more that the Western and Southern people are neither knows nor fools, but that for a season or so they were the victims of demagogues who insculated them with a political virus which made them mad. A little of the sordight of rosson has had a nonderful effort, and, as was shown in a revent article in this paper, the disease is losing its virulence and is rapidly passing away.

Two months ago, if a yose had been taken among the Democrats of Kentucky, quite seven out of ten would undoubtedly have voted for the free coinnge of silver. In the Democratic party in that rock-ribbed Democratic State. however, there was a small minority of some and prudent men who did not lose their heads. Among these were some prominent journalists and influential leaders of the old wheel who had never been reduced into an abandonment of Democratic traditions. These began to reason with their fellows who were "silver men," they knew not why, hat in reality marely because they had become the victims of the prevailing epidemic. The effect of this appeal to reason was seen apparent, a six weeks' campaign by the sound-money Democrats suffering to convert a small minority into an overwhelming majority. And so it will be, as the result of intelligent discussion, in all the States in the South, for the sound-money men will take courage by this Kentucky victory, and be stimulated to further and more effortive efforts.

From a purely partisan standpoint it would have been to the adventage of the Republican party if this return of sanity to Kentucky had been deferred, for in that event the Republicans; alded by the Democrate who will not support any party in its efforts to debase the currency and rain the business of the country, would have swept the Histo, from the Onio River to the Virginia mountains. That would have given the silver cruze its death blow, and would have secured a Republican party advantage at the same time. But the death blow has been struck in another way : the muschievons ductring has been throughd to the house of its friends, and we rejoice with those who did the deed. The good of the country demanded that this folly should end, and the quicker the better. The Republican advantage will come soon enough, for the people have learned through a sail experience that the Democrats, subject to mental and morel leases from sanity and virtue, commit he depended upon for either wise or efficient administration of national Bishop Potter in the Tenements.

Turn fact has been widely herakled that Hishop Potter, of the Ephrograf Discose of New York, has taken up his quarters for the present summer wason in the most thickly. populated tenemoni region of this city. The fact is sigafficulti and that it indicates any always departure in Bishop Process mishes of thought or notheds of work, for he has long from known as an earnest and sympathetic friend of very more ment designed to help the muses, but because is give promittee to the new and better methods which or gloss trackers generally and adopting in their efforts to much and influence the lives of poor and churchless prople. They are the methods which the Salvation Army bas used with each conspicuous success, and by which that religious organization, in spite of all list eventricities, has been able to do an emermous unusured of good, and to win the respect of honest and intelligent men everywhere

These methods, in heirf, are those which bring the markers down in a certain sense, to a level with those among when and for when they nork. It is the actual and personal contact of man with man, of life with lifethe actual entrance, so far so possible, into the circle of itation burders, cares, and responsibilities which make up the larger part of the existence of the men and women for whose welfare the religious worker is concerned. This same tiles of personal association forms the basis of the actificació movement, new so popular and successful as a mesos of philanthropic work among the poor and dependent classes.

It has been found that depraved men and women, and the people of the tenements generally are much more receptive of the ideas and trackings of those desirous of giving them help when the helpers themselves are living among them and sharing, so far as possible, their regimon hs. The remon is obvious crough. It is founded on a universal trait of homes nature. The average man, no metter how poor or how depreyed he may be, has a natural aversion to being made a subject of charity, and shrinks from these who deal with him only in a distant and patransiting way. This is true of all, except professional freeze or legger. It is a trait which honors buman patture, and it must be reespaized to all suggestful philanthrough efforts. It is because of a failure to renognize this penucycle of tens helpfulness that many well recant interior enterprises and ethick humaniturian morements have fellen about of success. The masses of proude, even in the lowest tenement regions are averse to being "missioned," and they count be muched in that way. The better and more relianced method is that adopted by Bishop Potter in going down among these people, being "one of them" for a time, and thus traking them for I and know that the one who comes to lead them into better ways of life comes as a mileblor or brother, in an open, manly way, with sincere and honest purpose, and not as one who throws them a a different basis from every other branch of business. dole from the tips of his gloved fingers.

THE Democratic managers in Kentucky appear to be determined to enforce discipline among the active party orators as to the financial question. They have recently " railed off." Senator Blackburn, who is well known to be rabidly in favor of free columns; and in humble compliance with their demand he has announced that he will not make any further speeches. It is not yet stated, however, that their candidate for Governor, who is represented to be a moderate free-silver man standing on a hard-money platform, has been called upon to obstain from speech-making.

Accounts to a report recently issued from the War. Department, the total organized stryugth of the militia of the several States of the Union is 114,146. New York leads. in the number of her citizen soldiery, which is placed at 12.8.6 Pennsylvania follows, with Ohio. Massachusetts. Ofinois. California. South Caroline, and Georgia in the order named. During the past year the militia of filteen States were called into active service, main'y for the purpose of suppressing disorder growing out of falur strikes. The whole number of citizens in the United States liable to do military duty is given at 9.947.041; so that, or a matter of fact, one person out of every eighty-seven so thinks in carolled for service, while of our total population the enrollment is only one out of five hundred and sevenly per-

It is to be hoped that the effort which is now making by the Republicans of Virginia to depose General William Mahone from the chairmanship of the State committee will be successful. General Maisone's distancial policy to the direction of party affairs has opened community to its disadvantage during the last eight or ten years, and the party van never become a coherent and aggressive force until it breaks away retirely from his influence. It is altogether due to his persistent apposition that it failed in the last two compalgies to align itself on party famous Just now General Mahous in said to facor on aggressive computen; but it is quite generally be level that his purpose is in overcome the party feeling against him to order that he may retain the chairmenship he new holds; and it is not probable that the masses of the party will be defeated. by this pretense into perpetuating him in authority.

THE work on the eleventh remus is still incomplete. The table relating to occupations has yet to be finished, and the indications now are that the full report, which will comprise twenty five volumes, will not be in the hands of the public before the beginning of next year. It is claimed, with some show of clattion, that if that result is resolved, the report of this census will be available from yours and a half somer than was the report of the ceness of 1881. It seems to us, however, that it ought to be passible to complete a census and place its results before the public in much less time than is ordinarily rensumed in the work. The statistics, which are collected at great cost, less very much of their value by the delay in their publication. The total cost of the last consus, it is said, will be obven and a half millions of dollars. It may well be doubted whether, coming so late into the possession of the public, it is worth that amount of money. Would it not be well to establish a permanent census bureau, so fully and perfectly organized as to be able to give us a decountal repsus, accurate and thorough, and available within at least our year after the enumeration?

THERE seems to be no doubt that Mr. John W. Frater. the American adviser of Japan in the recent treaty negotiations, exerted a determinative influence in the final aljustment of the terms of power. He introduced prempines. camior, and directness of method, and, in fact, seems to have conducted the negotiations entirely along the lines familiar. to modern diplomacy. It is obvious that the Chinese goverament fully recognizes its obligation for the service he rendered it. He was paid a large cash sum for his services. by some estimated at one hundred and fifty thousand dollars and it is intimated that he will have conferred upon blin the highest deconition that the Emperor can give to a foreigner. Large packages of valuable silks and other specimens of Chinese art and industry have been shipped to his home in Washington. It is said, also, that Li Hung Chang has added a large sum to these gifts by way of hullcating his own appreciation of the very valuable assistance rendered him by Mr. Poster. The ex-secretary, who has pecently returned to Washington speaks with great confidence us to the maintenance of permanent peace between the Powers recently engaged in conflict.

Tux demand that the Legislature of this State shall be summoned in extra session for the purpose of revising the excise laws is not likely to be headed by the Governor. The fact that it is made shows the unresemableness of those who desire that the liquor Indilic shall be placed upon

There is no reason at all in public policy why the existing laws should be modified. Neither personal comfort nor the public morality are to any wise promoted by permitting drinking-places to be kept open on the Sabbath. No. man's rights un interfered with by the refusal of the State to give to that peruliar business exceptional privileges. Even if it were otherwise, it is certain that no public interest would suffer by the postponement of this question until the next regular session of the Legislature. It is eminently desirable, on the contrary, that an opportunity should be gives the police authorities to demonstrate what can be done in giving us quiet Sundays under existing conditions. It is perfectly well anderstood that one of the main sources of the corruption of the police in the past has been in the apportunity for the establishment of corrupt relations with liquit dealers by members of the force, either for personal or portion purposes. It is equally well understood that the exil: resulting from the Sunday traffic have largely increased the expenses of our courts and the burdens of the tax-paying public. We suspect that if the question whether the anisons may be opened on Sunday or otherwise could be submitted to the voters of every community, it would be found that there is no foundation for the claim, so arrogantly insisted upon, that public sentiment is overwhelmingly opposed to the restriction of the traffic.

It was natural that Englishmen abould exult in their recent victory at Broky, but we are not inclined to agree with the riew of some of our newspapers that the Cornell erew has not received fulr and homorable treatment at the bands of the English press, and that they suffered some indignities at the hands of the booting authorities. However this may be, it is to be keeped that when the Cambridge men come over to compute with Vale in track athletics, and the London Athletle Club visits as for the purpose of a bout with the New York Athletic Clab, they will be received with genuine cordiality and treated with the atmost preathle fairness. Keen if it were true that the London press. has fished in courtray to the representatives of Cornell, every faction of American hospitally should imple us to a different coarse of action. We soume in advance that those who have charge of the contests in which our visitors will engage will see to it this they have absolutely fair play. The growing interest in these interestional contests is shown by the cordial reception which has been given to the augmention of the editor of our Athletic Department, that the Yule error should go abroad and secure for Americs the protige which it was value hoped that Cornell would establish. This even is undoubtedly the best we have ever had, and in every way worthy to represent this country in England or classifiers. We have heirstofore bearen our Kag ich Irlenda in every form of athletics, even on their own ground, and if the Yale grew could be infaced to make the trial, we believe our apprenacy in repartite operate would be made as obvious as in other Belds of competition the the little group of younger poets who are slaging the century out in England. William Watson seems to have drawn to himself the greatest comber of admirers, and for ressons, it appears to me, for from whitmiral or accidental. Matthew Arnold has said that "What distinguishes the greatest poets is their powerful and profound application of lifeus to life." If this to so, and I think it is, there can be no uncertainty as to an element, a quality of greatness, in Watson's poems. His revent volume, "Odes and Other From " brure out the fulth which his earlier work inspired. and gives token of a rich, full future. The curricula of the modern university are supposed to: process many of the attributes of an all-embracing universality, and we are in no wise astunished at what they may turn out. Literature, law, the stage, science, and business are but a few of the professions adopted by university menof to-day, and there is really mitting that is not open to them. In fact, the future belongs to them. Very few people who have here amount by the new comic opera, 'The Sphins," that has been running for a fortnight at the Casino, however, know that the composer. Mr. Lewis S. Thompson, and the author of the book, Mr. William M. Browne, are recent graduates of Harvard. To tell truth, "The Sphinx" itself is a graduate of the more time-houured institution, for it was the "Hasty Pudding" play of serveral years ago. Messre Browns and Thompson have been so sucressful in this, their first effort, that probably before long the already crowded list of rollege courses will be stretched to admit a department of opera, vaudeville, and drama. If so, pensibly we may get some operas worth hearing and same plays worth seeing

BUTTER AND BUT

PERSON, far spent though he was with his unwented expresse in the early morning and the anxiety of the day, made good speed to Evidan's farm, project as he was by those most percental of stimulance love and four. It was a long and rough road, but a younger and stronger man then the old Best might have been extisflet at the speed at which he revered it. He arrived, penting, at the humble cable, where the farmer and his family, with Desmond among them, were just sitting shown to the plain but pleatiful evening meal of potatoes and furthermalk, emphisionned by a meter of bacter in houser of the guest, whom Doeian felt. a great pride to entertaining, and who would have found a webvers- similarly warm at almost any bosse in the district.

" By my soul " said the hospitable farmer, as Peobles broke buts the room and fell exhausted into the nearest classe; "'tis me loof's butler; Tis Mr. Peebles. The top of the avenue to ye. ser. Bridget, I'm thinkin' Mr. Perbles will be takin's dhrop al whisty. Scints above t what's

Modern Life and Longevity.

Momens inventions, in spite of all the good they may have done, have brought more new forms of death into the world than the people of former times over dreamed of in their calmonappy lives. And, after all is said, are we really any huppier? Before steams, electricity, and all their various forms, people did not travel so fast not live so fast, neither did so many of them get killed every year.

In all ages men have spent much line trying to discover some mysterious secret of prolonging life.

About the age of twenty in the period at which most of an world prefer to linger. Bewe know too much. Judging from reports, old backshaw' chances of becoming contenacions du not appear to be us good as the married men's Nearly all reports on languetty are propared by married mon. Contenarianism scena to require a rules sort of temper, not given to extrems either of joy or serne. Artist and plets do not usually possess this bind of disposition. Excitoment is the life of such beings, and it as wearing to the physical organs as hard manual labor. To promote longevity it is essential to pay attention to early rising, his many of the old people attach great importance to this trait. list it must be borne in mind that early rising must be supplemented by early going to hel-It is the eight or too hours of sleep, or at least rest to bed, which is the important matter. Moderate mental work promotes sleep, as all keem who have ever given the subject a thought. Excessive brain work is caviling, and keeps one awake. All writers and mind workers will testify to this fact. An intellectual exertion, if indulged in to excess after sixty years of age, is just as inpurious as physical overwork. A curious tenth in some English statistics of conteprises is the art they seem to been accorded of being able to full asleep as soon as they went to bed, and to continue in this state long and tranquilly. Athletes, a class of people that the modern public-like that of ancient Romecrowds to see by the ten thousand, have not a good record as long livers. The pace at which they travel on the road of life is usually ton exciting to the heart, too exacting, if kept up for What Sir Richard Burton said of the King of Dahomey might be applied to the fact men of the world: " It is really wonderful to see the amount of labor he endures in the form of pleasure and the cheerfulness which he maintains under his numy enjoyments."

Many writers on langualty, especially physicians, by great stress on what they call aninherent or inhere quality of endurance and persistent nutritive force. Resistance of all disturbing influence must also be the gift of inheritance or hirth. Another point not other thought of or discussed, but which in doubt is quite as important as any other, is proportion or balance between the several segme. It is not alone necessary that the heart be seened in itself, but its strength must be properly adjusted and have due relation to all the other connecting organs. For if the digestics several and the heart be out of proportion of ears more by strong, they are agt to nearthest the choice and opposes them by giving them has much to do. Some of these, being deproportionately weak, with then give way, resulting in decisional often death. A chain is always to be judged by its weakest link; so with our mysterious language hoolies.

While there is nothing in brain work or new kind of intellectual labor of their third to realize iletrinental to long life, cut if manual he ilemed that most persons of pestar and artistic form personents are at a great disadvantage in the pare for confessions better when they even pets with farm laborers and out-flow workers. Prevention is better than cure, is an old and true saving. In the treatleth century perhaps physicians will be paid, and for curring disease, but for preventing it. As one of the eigen of the coming time, see this from the New York Medical Errord of October 18th, 1865. The editor is crossing his medical brethern on the hard times, and talks them they cannot expect the public to sympathin with them, for people always argue that the low dectors have tooks the letter it is for the remnantly "but he other hand, it is quite possible that another factor is at work, and one which will in time become a most important our. We selve to a decrease in sickness on account of the previous tion of disease through the observance of the rules of health and hypnen. For years, now, the people have been instructed sky m and sky out, reparding the hest northwised preserving their health, preventing bilection, and geologing their lives. Boards of health have multiplint and are beautiful every year more power ful and efficient." Which is had for the doture. Keeping the system in good health with: out the disagreeable need of medicine is more likely to promote longevity that the floot kind of climate of California Licrachy, or Mexico. Using distilled water with from ten to fifteen drops of diluted phosphoric artif in each jobbit to a harmless experiment after aniddle life, and if it does not in all came vetural piccoinal decay, if is useful in keeping off show in the kidness and bladder. Ment men live for fast in every respect. Werry sast wear All so many as disman. If you expects to live long, not door onerrise is indispensably necessary. No inferitime can be offered. All reports of exotense canfully support the belief that the ability to take and enjoy exercise out in the close, close, from air contributes very largely tell calls to daily good health, but when to long life. One English continuation of one hundred and one years of age walked four order the stay before the returns were made and he was a form talener. Apoline old person-a women, bue-went into the hay-field and amused herself by reaking hay on her ose-insulredth tertislay assurer "Out every day -walked from miles yesterday," le the fively report no get of a gay and festive farm laborer of the age of sem bon. dest and one. Physical exercise and fore of outster activity and life characterise long-Hores. And yot it is an indiquitable fact that women live longer than men, although they do not take so much exercise as men do.

Bogor Busin in the thirtsenth rentury wenn to have believed the absord storms of his day in regard to the possibility of extending life to extrune periods for the one of an other, as it was This nice gave perpetual youth and retarded all physical dway. In fact, even Lord Barron, in the statementh rentury, appears to have believed that this series of nature had been core known and unfortunitely list. All kinds of abourd stories were told during the Middle Ages of expetitives personages who had lived three or four housted years, and then concluded to allow themselves to die frees after neartness of this world and the shairs to try sense other one. JOHN T. BRAMBALL

A Popular Philadelphia Craze.

Tex people of Philadelphia are now in the threes of a "trolley" endtement which is pesuitar to that city. It takes the form of long evening rides to the suburbs, where, in various resorts, they regule themselves according to nord and inclination. I smally parties of friends for it may be a regular social club or lodge make necessary arrangements with the trolley companies, and at the appointed rendezvous baned the handsomely appointed and extravagantly illustinated periode cars and proceed to the destimation selected. Some of the outings take on the character of masquerades, which, with the bunds of music afford considerable extertainment and acomement to the residents and sightsees who throng the thoroughfares over which The excursionists pass. In many places Chinese lanterus and hunting neast in fending a carnival aspect to the pression. On one route as many as seventy or eighty parties are out every evenling.

The east of these trips is inconsiderable. While the charge varies according to route, tendollars per car per night is about the average. This makes the expense per capita very light. The cruze communical last summer, but hole fair to couch greater propertions this year than ever before.

The Great Christian Endeavor Convention.

THE city of Bosts is extended a characteristically cardial welvens to the themsands of Christime Eastervorous who flocked there during the second week of July to attend the international convention. The first signs of welcome which rendrented the victors was at the railway stations, all of which more beautifully descrated with the national ridors, intermingled with the criness and white, the Christian Endearer reduce. Many of the large and premipent buildings of the city were also handsomely described, some of them being home with the red and white from roof to sidewalk, while appropriete mottoes and inscriptions appropriet merywhere. At night, ffruminations of the Poble Garden added to the pirturesqueness of the general scene. In point of fact, the city surrendered itself to the cisitors, putting on festival attire, opening its homes and places of public ersort, and in every possible way indiruting its sympathy with the great work in which these organizations are sugaged. The formal welcome extended by Governor Greenbulge fitty visited this popular sentiment.

The extraordinary size of the convention was illustrated by the fact that on throughing day nineton soudtaneous meetings were beld in flosion. Cambridge, and Somerville churches, and that for four subsequent days every available place of meeting, including two big tente on the Common, was expedded with authorization stributes. The list of speakers at these meettugs turbuled many of the forement chergymen and lay men of this exentry and Europe, and the subjects discussed were all of a practical charactor, towing relation to the social, moral, and municipal life of communities and the doreligment of individual Christian character along the loss of practical activity. It is a marked characteristic of this organization that its members are taught to deal with practical questions, rather than to expend their strongth in the promotion of crysds or popular beliefs.

be nearly every State of the Union the Christion Endouver organization has actively purthroughted, during the last five years, in all the reformatory mercements which have resulted so immensely in the elevation of the standard of official responsibility and in the minimizing of public evils. It is peculiarly an organization for the promotion of good citizenship. In many of the States enlictary laws have texts passed as a direct result of its efforts, and a great deal has been done for good immicipal government, its members osserting themselves at the primeries by comperted action. Along the lines of practical benevolence the work of these organirations has been immense. They concern themselves in rescue suppliers, in hespital efforts, in the visitation of almo-losses and julls, in the establishment of public reading-rooms, and in the discentration of good literature. In some of the scalemini cities they have been especially surpost in the work for sullors. It is, however, in the que kening of the autoionary spirit so the churches that the organization has manifested servial activity. An estimate based on figures of the secretaries of the denominational boards places the amount given to missions last year by the Christian Endonvorers at nearly half a million dollars. The society has also furnished tmov men and women for the foreign mission field than the boards are able to commission. The report of the general secretary shows that there are in this country 23,412 accretics, of which 7,750 were established last year, while its the world at large there are 41,229. The aggregate membership is 2,473,740. It cannot beotherwise than that this great ledy of active, carnet men and women will be a most influential factor in moniding the life of States and emplifes

HOW PARIS PAINTERS SELECT THEIR MODELS.

The artist is everywhere, yet never quite where you expect to meet him. He is as unmerous in Paris as the buttercups broading a Juneaudow, but he is not so self-evident. You have to search for him, in small house away from the narrow, teening streets, whose only door opens on a back garden; up twisting passage, or betind believed walls which keep privacy invincible; or under the caves on circum; where chands and swallows are his infilingles.

But there is one who seems to know by superfutive factinet how to questrib him—knows has habits, what he prefers for breakfast, what localizated times he most delights in, just what his intrinceles of femperament are. And this sage being is the model—man, weman, or child

Sarah is exactly what her fascharting, whiled face proclaims her is noth in the Park glare. She has the manners and wit of a street weekin, never misses, an opportunity to proclaim herself a robel squaret all decorus, and is regent of her world.

"Innate vanity, self-renerousment, a desire for display, light morality, band many somes to choose this profession," said the scalptor." They apply for trial, and an artist is always glad to make a "find," so if the new countr is sufficiently well formed size some becomes known by lor first mans in the studies. SELECTING & MICHEL

How do they communes the life! Do they seek it? Are they been to it! In it thrust open them! What are its requisites! Do evenen seek it from vanity, wantonness, or fitness! Is it a degrading profession! What does the model think of the painter, and view verse.

In getting an answer to these questions by personal inquiry I spent a neek among the cto lies. "How did I got Marie " saked Role. havon, one of the first Americans in the glittering, netistic colony. "Why, it was like this The model who had posed for my 'Lorette the Beautiful" had gone the way of all models." The pointed his index Rague downward, "I was he despair, daily staring at the sketch of my next pointing, and running over in my lead the names of a closen needels I know. Not one uppealed to me, lovely though many of them were. I wanted a very young girl with clearhead, jet a southern type. A child of equient, fullino beauty, just building into womanhowd, would exactly suffice my needs. I could think of mone. Youthfulness of line, immeenes of pajon, seen wither to this life. My only hope lay in finding a novice. A day or two after a timed knock sounded on my door. Shyly hiding in the shadow stood a provide, party-dressed child of twelve or fourteen, with a redinant little face of pure. Indian coloring. In was Marie. She wanted to be a model. A rempaness of ter elder sister's had formerly been with me, and when the child had to earn money some way, she followed Adole's suggestion and came I put her through her passe at once; under those slubby challes was the exquisite taild-woman I wanted. That was four years age. She has been with me ever succe. She takes priste in her work, and frequently goes to see the camens when it's being. I consider her hosel the most beautiful in Paris, her smile an inspiration. She is a thoroughly good girl." Marie, having no interest in the English conversation, was squatting near the stove, a few cards of green guove wrapped around her for warnels. She was softly singing and counting her toes in Macmonniews, white, plastercrowded studio the famous red-haired Sarah Brown was posing as Venue wooing Adonia. It

There are many like her among the coulded, proposite from glove-shops and famout shops. Boundlines it becomes a question whether the theater or the posse for as much an hour. The glomestr of the free-tool-may studie sitracts like the limitight and the ground; not becken, and the little millions doubles.

I went one day to a low, gray walked loose in the flue de Adders. The arried with me led the way to a room on the first floor. A nonnext later, in no color scended almosphery, I was for the first time a family of professional models, all out of work.

They cantilood to an item room-father, mother, three implementill we awaited their reappositance. "Ther are going to does their specialties, as I haven't quite decided what charactor I want to practice ou," said the artist. Buldenly a half-node feeling conveget and assumed a variety of possi, changing with fightning-like rapidity, and Judding such position. while it instert, as if made of start. The emproper of a model at my art whool is a pitiable speciacle. Modeliny neurons is usually selected for this test, and the power common who through the whool stairs much have the orders for worse than the traditional lacture of washelay. I sat among a class of girl strategies who in fresh blazzes, before frysh can uses, awared in prigment. A node in a crossing position was a country girl with study eye and knobby eithers. What she felt as her various anatomical defects were wrongled over, one count not tell, for she were wrongled over, one count not tell, for she went out as expressionless as she came in. A score of others followed, old and young, and after patient poster were rejected. Earth model was voted upon, and the least objectionable at last elected—a girl with thick ankles and large fret, but a tragically the face, and shealders which suggested the Mile.

I found, on taiking with painters, that a women or man physically perfect according to stern, artistic judgment is almost unknown. Six models have often been required for one deal pade. At best, when a model is perfect from chan to ankles, two others must be found —one for the blood face, one for Trilly's chief and rure charus—the ideal foot.

Artists have frequently married their models, but more than resistance, a certain close chamologian between two friends of the same set, is to be found between master and subject. She become a confidente, the sharer of his dreams, and takes council interest in the work she inagine to go used one the receive when hung, laters to the criticism of the crossel, and rejoice or source over it as if her own reputation as a painter were at stake.

Mr. Deimont races under the name of the filterion Stable, well known in the early righties in the despite base meetings of their days, when he was frequently in the saddle blacetif, being an active heating man and a crack policybayer. He is a thorough between, and decoded to everything commercial with horse. His culture a variation of the father's well known o decommend, searlest such. The liberature relies are a saried and marrow stores, black cap.

The Narwey stud still flourishes in Kentucky with hop Hayon 170r, Fidtheticks, and The III-Card's two fast sons, Magnetier and Budge as stallions, as then also the Nursery farm at Bally ion, where so many of the Nursery colobrithe received their schooling over its mile track. As to broad more, there are at the Nursery report in Kommunky fifty-right in all, thirteen of which, purchased at the Survey Stud dispersal sale, include such well known matrons as Sollie James, Princess, data of His Highness; Pides (which holds the record for tall a mile at Mor. to Park), Lody Margaret, Felicia, etc., Added to them. Mr Delmont insemported a fatch of marrie by the lest-kooms vires plenned, such stall one we Bened ICOV, salvest Ormand, Galegies, St. Simon, Kider, Trician, Barculdine, South agence, etc., being liberally represented

Mr. Belmost is exceedingly modest in laying calmi to any great distinction as a breeder. He admits that, so far, he has not exceeded in breeding great witners, nor in it yet them. He continues, however, that in the long run it is change to breed than buy yearlings although he has been one of the most illered buyers that year, and breedes which there is the additional proctings of breeding relationated winners like than Divisory, Compass, Primes Boyal, Potomes, Poto, Lady Frances, He Highness, and a best of others which first me the light of day at the Eurosty farm.

Mr. Belorest intimates also that when he has done something which he deems worthly of his father's great successors upon the tarf he will to all likelihood race under his own name. At all avents, Mr. Belmont's connection with the tarf is an boson to it. Besides his active part in turf affairs, Mr. Belsoont, like his father, is interested in missic, the arts, and in public affairs, and is in every way one of our first citizens. His patriotic spirit in taking the initiative with Mr. Isdin and others in building the l'igidant and Defender is one more evidence showing how broad and unselfish is his public spirit.

We may go further and say distinctly that through Mr. Belmout's efforts in behalf of proper legislation at Albany thoroughbred racing has been saved in this country. In spite of the usual "stand and deliver" tactics of our legislators at Albany, Mr. Belmont fought on, declaring that he would not pay a cent to have the Gray-Pevry bills passed, and they finally became a law and Mr. Belmont won the fight —won where everytesty said be must fail.

Mr. Foxball P. Keene is perhaps better known to the average care-goer than any of the younger racing confederacy, probably because he is celebrated in two countries as a gentleman lockey and cross-country rider; and besides is a crack p-de-player, and perhaps has done more than any one man to make polo-playing popular with a certain class. Mr. Keems is as practical a horsecome as any of his colleagues, and thoroughly carbordands how to handle a borse, and besides is a matural judge of the good qualities of a race-horse. Two years ago the Keenes had a phenomenal season, Domino being the star of his age, but their good luck has not followed them since, and they are likely to have two paner years of it. The Kosson new bave a stock farm in Kentucky, where they have Tournament and Callistrates as stallions, and a number of highly-bred about matrius, besides twentyfive choice broad mares in England, which Mr. Kness trills one will probably be brought over in the authors to join these already at Castleton. Mr. Keene varide been, and in every sense of the word represents the lest element upon the tierf.

Affect Henner Morrie is one of the triumvirate popularly spaken of as the Morris Stable. The formule Barburity estime, all scarlet, are being perpetualed on the American torf by the ion and grandem of Francis Morris, who was one of the old-time spectamen. When Mr. Morris first ennie back to racing in this part of the country britanate was the only borse that run in their reduce, but they were estimated to year the yearing sales, and have besides an immune stock form of some states thousand arres in trillespie Country, Texas, of which he been sight and nine theorems are in parture.

Mr. Matris tells one that their ambition is to broad such your about two bundled yearlings. school from among three, for their own pastwenty absolutely untried youngstern and sell the Indians in the publicks of Morris Park for what they will bring. As the number of yearlings brought under the hanner will be so great, there cannot full to be just as many prios left in the grab-log as have been taken out of it. Mr. Morris speaks outhousestically of the climate of Texas for breeding thoroughbreds. The youngster can remain out all the your round, the only drawlack being the anuntil dry spell, which parelies the grass. The wil less a little-floor foundation in fact, the Imministens of all the buildings on the ranch are of lumetoms, quarried on the place. There are new, so Mr. Morris informs me, over one bouched and fifty broad mares on the place, and the following stallions : St. Florian, Cayaga Winfred, Stritannic, Physics, and Cassius Then, at Bowling Brook, Middleburg, Maryland, where Wyadham Walten retires every year to train and prepare the string for the following season, there are imp. Galore, sire of thatte Percha some of the best filling of last seasons. and also Russell, Balulsow, and Old Tora Ochil. tree. But, long after the Morris family have caused to take any active part in racing, if such a thing ever happens, they will be remembered for the attractions of Morris Pack, not only as a racy-course, but for its indended opportunities for remith and recreation. It is the only ruce. track in the East which present an appropriate club-house for the entertainment of its memhere. Some him of its vastness may be gathered when it is stated that the interest charges alone on the property amount to seventy thou-Park commences a new least of life, under the angles of the Jockey Club, for a term of

Mr. Jacob Rappert, Jr., is one of the younger lights of the racing firmament that have come upon the turf without any previous connection by heredity. He displays, however, great courage, for the venture has not been more successful, from a financial standpoint. Nevertheless, Mr. Ruppert keeps in the ring, buying yearlings each season, and proving himself to be made of more than ordinary standau. He has, however, his father's experience on the turf to help him out, which is, of course, a valuable guide. Mr. Ruppert is also a great dog-fancier, and his St. Bernards take first place at the American Banch Show. At the opening of this season it hocked as though the Ruppert stables ha . a mortgage on the great three-yearold stakes with Gotham and Counter Tenor, but both trained off and neither has started in weeks.

Mr. Foliansbee's racing venture is regretfully upon too small a scale for the good of the torf. Gloening was a success, but, in spite of this, Mr. Foliansbee does not increase his interest in racing. This is to be regretted, because this gentleman belongs to a class all too few in numbers for the best interests of racing, a grand and exhibitrating sport in itself, but which, having inertain causes not necessary to mention horo, has in the past few years been made a "grab game" to suit a few seitsh racing officials and track owners.

Mr. Edwin D. Margan, one of the State racing commussion, has heretofore been more identified with yacht-racing, having been several years commusions of the New York Yucht-Club; but as he has always been interested in everything that is used intelled with clean, house spect, in the near future we may see Mr. Morgan directly interested in the spect of kings. His presence on the commission is an additional guarantee that rucing is not to be made a toy for the rough element in our community.

The Cornell-Henley Crew Was Sadly Overtrained.

Trienn is a certain hard, cold fact connected with Cornell's defeat by the Trinity Hall eight in the race for the Grand Challenge cup at Henley on July 18th, which manust be disputed, to wit-the American cross, after gotting away hast and rewing ever the course least favored by the precaling weather conditions, set their English counts for a male.

in the remaining five hundred and fifty yards they metalized a crushing defeat. But why i Was it due to the Courtney stroke? If so, how was it that they managed to show thomostyre for one mile a frater row than the one which, as a result of the "fluide" roce on July 10th, proved themselves to be the fastest ever enteroil by winning the Challenge cup / If so, how is one to explain Cornell's past records, which (ai) absolutely to show an enability to row our any race from one mile up-indeed, to explain how this defented Henley crow could row the distance time after time in 7:20, and repeat after a short interval of red only ; or row, in dead water nyor Lake Cayoga under seven nemicles and flaish fresh. If the Courtory stroke is so wearing, so moless, as many have rinimal. how can these read facts he explained ! Indeed. they cannot be, without showing cause beyond the stroke as a reason for definit.

Sincely it would prove a hard task indeed for one to prove the Courtney stroke makes when confronted, say, with the work of the Cornell eight at Poughkeepsie. This crew, it will be recalled, met defent at the bands of Celumbia. Yet what were the conditions with which they contemied r. Pirstly, a strong head wind and rough water | secondly, a poor start; and thirdly, a shell full of water almost from the very outsor. Netwithstanding, all the crew rowed the Courtney stroke from beginning to end hard and fast and finished strongly. Infact, I will challenge any one to declare the Cornell crew unable to have immediately gotton into another bost after the fluid and gone another four noise. Add to this the fact, which many he voteched for not only by the captain of the crew, Truy, the conches, Mr. Hitchenck, and others, that on a number of occasions, both at home and at Feughkeepsle, prior to russ-day, they had rowed four miles under twenty-one minutes, and it seems a power indeed for one bent on arguing the Cornell stroke out of the buildien

I de test care to place acyacif on record as one who upholds the Courtney struke as the stroke, for I believe that the Cosk stroke, essential, offers more advantages in speed though granting the men who row it has wearing exertion. On the other hand, the Courtney stroke is treitier a poor stroke nor is it one which a crew dies in rowing. On the contrary, it is a fast stroke, and, as rowed by Cornell men, who have been brought up on it, a hard one to beat. Concell's record in rowing in the past proves this.

If, then, it is no more than fair not to give the Courtney stroke a black eye as a result of the Heuley race, where most we turn for a reason for defeat so crushing?

Here, and here only—the Cornell eight were constructed. And where, may I ask, lives the man who has an acquaintance through experience with rowing, or indeed any branch of sport requiring endurance, but will declare the overtrained man a worse man by twenty-five percent, than the undertrained man; and assert that whereas the overtrained man, when he reaches the limit of his already overtaxed powers, rollapses, the undertrained man, he ordinary more only about keeping within himwif in his work, finishes about strongly, or, if not strongly so far in cowing is conversed—in such form as not to throw his mater out by catching a crash, getting out of swing, etc.!

I do not believe it possible for an ourse whose organs are some), and who is trained to the hour, to drap or "keel over" after a hard pull of a mile, or, expressed in time, after great exertion for a period of five minutes and so seconds. Of course it is possible to assume that a man writioux a brain may engage in a contest. and so work to the space of five minutes as to drop is the end exhausted, even dead. But athletes without brains she not enter this consideration. The Cernell men not only had beams. hat it must be assumed that each our of the erew know by heart this maxim in crew row ing-row within yourself always; that is, always keep in above a bit of routes emergy so that the finish may be sunfortroughy. The man who rows thus, granted his condition is at all right, will flowle with strongth still for another sport, though to have shown facest work be most of necessity finish himil.

The condition of the overtrained man, however, is a peculiar one, even dangerous, for the system has become weak-med and the ritality support is such a degree that any one of a new her of serious though easy happen, notably heart treable. The prettrained man is more of a dead uses than a live one, he has a any bition, nor energy—actions, Perhaps for a free short moments be may serve himself to impresse effort, but how quick and far reaching the realizate:

There was every round to four the overtraining of the Cornell non. The greatness of their venture, the prior at stake, and what a vertury weakt much to their future, all combined, as one would suppose, and to reality did combine, but with as middle a fand as to be surroughised in time.

Only a few days before the rare did Court Courties; and Mr. Francis, graduate obvious, notice the inver-failing eigen. Then is was too lab, and the even-or, it leads, a part of them—west to the part whappen before the first stroke.

Whether or me the Cornell seem could have some if their condition had been just thele is not the question; but it may be used without four of contradiction that they would have yound out the rare as they had began it and finalcal strongly. Thus they entid not have haded to meet the expectations of their minuteers by making a close and had light, though a being one-to fact, a light whereas defeat a strongely alon to variety.—For who will attempt to cornerptic difference in two cross see, after reveius alongwhe made other from the start, finish with the nose of the one shell only a find or two in fronts of the uses of the original of the start in the larger that the mose of the one shell only a find or two in fronts of the uses of the order the other of Cornell's defeat has tought but reaches a lenia which they cannot full to recommen about a error be sent again to Henley in 1sts. It is a lorses which may prove templical to Validically sie try her lock in English waters next year.

Though there was much talk after the race mount formed men about going to England heat year, in fact, emiling two creem, it does not seem probable, on the second of the grout organic at tending such an expedition. It was difficult enough to raise the memory this year. Thus, two, Clarch Courtney may but recover his percent in time to begin operations upon a Warrew.

Fo far as a comparture of English and American rewing is conversed, it may be said that the long stroke of the Englishmen is a get-there one, and does not apparently exhaust. The exponents, however, do not show the form of a Yale crew, though in the matter of hitting the mater together they are by us means inferior. Their stroke is generally longer than Yale's, while Yale's is longer still than Cornell's.

TALE VS. CHRISTING

The meeting of the Yale and Cambridge track and field athletes probably Reptember 5th will be awaited with unusual laternst. Though the Yale men look to be sure exanters in the weights — perhaps the broad-jump and high jump—the running events may prove too much for them. Indieed, Cambridge in apparently as strong on the track that a close condect, if not really an English victory, is assured.

PERSONS "DEPROCA"

Joy supreme roots in the boarts of all the well-wishers of the Vanderbill-Teslie Morgan syndicate, through whose enterprise, money, and patriothen we have such a perion for feather to guard the America's Cop from the bungry cinteh of Lord Dunrason and his Varkycis III. Each susceeding trial seems to show that the Bristal boat is a stronger light in all points of mility and in all kinds of westing-light moderate, or tensy. Conservative can, however, netwitestanding the English boat's pair showing in anything but a light wind, do not grant as yet a hallow victory. On the contrary, these whenever is cally and what Varllyrs III. did in England and what she will do have are two altogether different things. In light weather it is claimed that Unitarie III. will give Defender a rise call, and light weather may be backed on for at least one of the three races.

Then, in a brown, Unlique, III, may reasonably be expected to stand up much better here than in Enclared, where the wind owns to be so much however. And to dutid up became fast miling, with a cloud of carrier to drive her fine and beautiful shape through the water. The first or second word to August absoluterely see the thighish beat in these votices. Her rapabilities to a great extent may then be judged.

The British Elections.

HE everthrow at the Liberal party in the British elections affords an illustration of the power of popular opinion hardly less significant than that one holled in the crushing defeat of the Decourable purty in the last general election in the United States. Indeed. in some of the populous conditionaries of England the revolution was even more striking than any of the remarkable heat results which attended the Democratic downfalt. The defint, for liestance, of Sir William Vernou Harmours, in Deeby, which he had for ifftoen years represented in the House, and which had always been stanchly Liberal, is a peculiarly impressive incident. In 1886 Harcourt had a compactly of 2.667, and he never had less than 2.000; in 1892, when, after accepting affice he returned to his constituence to was elected with only a show of control, receiving it was votes. Now, in a direct contest, he has poiled only 0.745 votes, while the Conservative vote exceeds by 3,500 the poll of 1992. The defeat of other Liberal leaders, who have been for years conspicuous and influential factors in affairs, will further amphasizes the change of popular thought and purpose. The result cannot be said to be surprising. The Liberal party came into power upon distinct and positive pledges as to matters of kind public somera. So long as Mr. Gludstone was at the force it were held to the perform now of its ongagements. But from the moment that the leadership was transferred to other lands the party policy became fickle and uncertain, personal rivalries and autmostlies, rather than negard for principle, acquired dominoting force, with the result that the confidence of inportant constituencies was alieumed, and appertunity was afforded the hesitic political chownts in the country of large to wage an effective agitation for a new and radical change.

There are indications, however, that the Liberal everthrow is not entirely due to a reveral of enlightened painlie opinion. All accounts agree that the ejections were more corrupt than any in recent years. The Conservatives appear to have appealed to the board institute of the electorate. In some districts and were monety a proligal and open expanditure of namey. Then she entire salson inter-ust was unaverted into an electoral agency by the Tory managers. The yest significance of this fact becomes upparent when it is understood that there are in the (Loreise) partrapelitan district above over by thousand formed salama, whose infineme was concentrated against the Liberule. In In-land the contest seems to have been debareled by every position accessory of heatality and corruption. Then the lates oute was largely controlled in the same disreportable fastion. Indeed, the labor candidates seem to have performed the same service for the Unionista that labor combines in this country have generally done for the Democracy. In all the larger constituences the Tories have gained seats by the diversion of the distinctively labor you from the Liberal condidates, and there seems to be no doubt that in many cases the labor nominess were publ for their service out of the Tory funds. Even John Burns narrowly escaped defeat in the general democalization of bls old-time followers.

But, making all allowance for these special influences in the summary of the situation, the fact remains that she Liberals have been defeated chiefly because of their insigearly of purpose and their inability to measure up to the demands of official duty and responsibility. A party that, definite statements of policy, rapport hold tagether in sompart of its own principles, esamet expect and does not deserve to mutotaln itself in any enlightened democracy. The Liberals of Great Britain have bud more than one adcomittee on this score. They failed to give head to the warning, and they are now paying, in this present disnever, the penalty of their foily

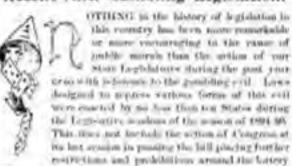

The Struggle in Cuba.

Within only dribers of information as to the situation in Cobo are permitted by the Spanish authorities to reach the outside public, enough is known to justify the conclusion that the rebellion is heavy day becoming more and more acrious. Accounts as in engagements here and there show that the insurgents, who number approximately ninetern thousand men, are well armed and tolerably efficleat in warfare, and that at many points they have secured decided advantages in conflicts with the Spanish treops, Within the last month the insurnation has spread to provincre where there had been previously little manifestation of sympathy with it, and as yet Marshal Compos sectas wholly unitie to arrest the weeling tide. He new loss at his disposal some sixty thousand troops, thirty thousand of what have been called from Spain since February last. Two months ago he was confident that he would be able, with the force at his command to suppress the proof. He men realizes his mistake, and has soked that twenty-five thousand additional men by seat him before September next, when he proposes, with the coming of rooter weather, to initiate a more aggressive exequips. The Spanish goveroment has already ordered a number of new launches and gun-beats, in the hope (that, with these and other resources of the may, men and maintaine may be precept a) from muching the island. Meanwhile, Spain is expending five millions of dollars a month, and proposes to raise ninety millions additional for war purposes by the bear of our handred and twenty millions of bonds. The expenditure on war account will, of course, he largely burround when the re-enforcements much the island and more action more are are adopted. It will presently become a serious quetion here king boots can stand this extraordinary strain. She is already practically bankrupt and there are no opparent mone, by trustion or otherwise, of ruising my considerable same of money. The insurgents, on their part, exhibiting on the sensory and supplied from without with such money as they seed, are not tembled by any diffirultion of this our. Their vide f disability is, of marse. in the metter of agree and someonities. The home-rate party, which was at first opposed to the insurveyion, is now nudershood to excepathing with it to a committee blo extent, and the insurer will no doubt be benefited by

So far as can be judged from the facts more at band, the problem is one of vurturative. If the insurgrative an maintaln tinuselver due a few months longer they may be able to dictate terms to their oppositions. Of source the luniness house to the island are becoming entrance, and if the struggle abould to long continued, a section at in favor of posts, upon comillions becomilds to the revolutionists. would un doubt most itself with such cutplosis as to compel attention at Mulrid

Mayor Swift, of Chicago, but succeeded, it is said, in absolutely clining the gamiling busines to that city for the first time in many years. A more head administration in Saratage has significant trieff by giving out orders that gundding all that resers shall be arriedly probletted incounter. This for a tree a above guestiling of all kinds has from permitted for years without let or hindersoon, in a very significant Lect. The resert of all this action has been that the gam-Ming Industry in this country in all its beamles, from the inflery to "stage," is at present in a languishing state-a attate from which it may be frequed to will ment omy sp-

Bare-track gambing in its various forms has been the histoperad and by the State Legislation. This was the rare in New York, where the Wilde hill was possed by the last Legislature for the extravible purpose of entrying not the provision of the new remarkation with refreeze, to perfectling and back-torking. Thus also in Pennsylvasia. where the recond Legislature powed a low against all forms. of betting, so section to its provisious that it put as and at omee to the preparations being made to open warral large you entires in that State, with the nord post of fire accesmeter. If was this same bouse which precipitated a aburp. coming into power with a clear and distinct emperity upons and bitter controllers among the people of Connects at at the recent sension of their State Legisla peoposed to want a low giving town authorities the right for Bermer pool willing to racing furdiours, for a rartain period of each year. A bill making this provision possed the State Senate with a large majority rote. Let the meaare brought down upon the Logislature such an avaluache of priceds and petitions from the pusple that the lower house killed the blil. Illinois had an experience somewhat similar to that of Connecticut. Here a moreover known as the Ramphrey hill, legalizing probacting on raw-tracks with certain limitations, was passed by the Senate without much allifficulty, but so tour is apposition was salesed up and so much pressure language, to least against in that the bill was allowed to the line better home. Sold another place of the controverse was presented in Minuscots. A hill was intralaced in the Legislature of that Soon early in its session had winder profinition pool within or halting open say tripi of speed in the bloom or elements. The action of the Senate on this bill was practically unanimous in its favor, but in the Assembly a strong opposition was one countered, and the measure had a long and stormy prosage. If became a law eventually, however, and all forms of race track gombling are now under the ban in that State. Brief mention may also be made of the new statute which went into effect in Virginia last year, forbidding book-making and pool-selling except under the auspices of serioultural associations or driving parks which were chartered prior to the passage of the act. Book making in cities at a distance is also entirely prohibited. But the Virginia law has proved to be very ineffective in reaching such places as St. Asaph, and it is said to be a certainty that the next Legislature of that State will pass a much more stringerst measure. In Delaware betting and wagers on horse-races at any time or anywhere are strictly forhibbles by a law recently exacted. Maryland, also, has a new law permitting racing and pool-selling for only thirty days in the year on any one track-a measure similar to the former lives Poul haw of this State.

It will thus be seen that a great advance has been undeis the direction of anti-gambling legislation, in both a negative and positive way, during the past twelvemonth. As to the estases of this modden approwth of public sentiment against race-track gambling, it is probably not too much to say that it is due chiefly to the bad management of the racing associations themselves. If these associations had been contest with a fair degree of profit on their incontinuals, had not entraged all develop by permitting whater racing electric light racing, and all manner of eresked and disheased practices on the turn and had not drawn into their business so many professional gamblers and disregulable persons of both sexes-if it had not been for these things, in all probability there would have been fittle or no Legislatice interference with racing. It was only broader of such excesses as these, which came to be positively unconsurable, that the people of New Jersey rose up two years ago and emaled out all the racing associations in that State. The present mevement against horseracing throughout the constry had its origin chiefly in the fear, hatred, and disguet which seized the public mind over the shoulingble action of the meetrack men in New Jersey in afferenting to capture that State and run it to suit their own purposes. It was this and this only, that brought alcost the anti-pool ariling amendment in New York State. but full. The people generally been un prepality against home moving per w. and me dedire to apppress it when our fied on purely as a sport, my more than they have to suppress bull-playing, host-racing, or any other form of revrention. But they do object to having the race-tracks turned into great gambling rambines, with all their attendant evils, and they also object to having their Legislatures managed purely in the interests of these same mechines, as was the case in New Jersey. If the interests of the forfon mer under a dark and lowey cloud the furl associations. have only themselves to blame. The way out is nimple resords. It is lords away with the abuses spokes of, and give the public homest, them, and legitimate sport.

The Summer School.

N the twenty-two years since. the elder Agoods opened blas bool at Peniker on the 8th of July 1978, the agency known us the aummer school has greate ly developed. This, the first of the more completions whereby, proved to be the beginning of what his bicome a large islacutional work. In the summer of 1874 Harrand University retablished courses of instruction. in obemistry and botany. In-the same season, also, other schools were opened in several parts of the country, though largely in Eastern States. The semmer school in the beginning was a school of science. It is now an diverloped as in he a action not only of sciencebut of nearly all the subjects tought in the ordinary curriealone. The schools also have gone cut-ade the ordinary undergraduate exertisation and have mor tome to embraceresulty all the subjects that are taught in professional orbania. It is probable that there are more than one housdred schools in session now in different parts of the country: Among the more unique of these schools the present season are the school of Christian Philosophy, which meets at Chautoupus, the school of Sociology, which not at Oberlin in June, and also the school of Theology, which meets at Cleveland, under the anspires of Western Reserve University in the modells days of July.

These schools are commanding as their teachers some of the object men of this country or coming to us from abroad. Teachers of the widest and highest reputation are willing to spend four or six weeks of a summer in giving tuition to estreet students. Among these that are thus employed in the present season are Professor A. B. Bruce, of Scotland . Principal A. M. Pairlauro, of Oxford; Dr. Casper René. Gregory, at Leipen; and who scores of college presidents and enlinge professors at homes

These schools are usually light in connection with some university, as those at Cambridge, of Western Boserve at Cleveland, and of the University of Chicago. But, again, they take on a peripatelle relationship. Not a few of the scientific schools seem to consist primarily of excursions, in which, however, the purely scholastic element is not suffered to be neglected.

The great development of this system in the last two and a half decades proves the need of this agency and of the valuable service which it performs. The larger part of the students in these schools are probably of two classes; First, teachers, who compose a majority of the whole. The teaching profession is execulingly arduous, and is especially so at the present time, - for the progress in methods of teaching has been exceedingly rapid. The advance, also, in the content of many subjects that one taught in the high and lower schools is also rapid. Teachers who are, therefore, eager to most these increased demands, and who also design to be leaders in admentional reform and service, find themselves unable in the ordinary selectly year to study as they feel they ought. They consequently turn to the summer school for aid. Thousands of such persons are now found in the various Chaptauque schmis which are existing in various parts of the country, and abor in the schools that are found in scores of university towns

A second class which finds these schools of special value consists of students themselves. The summer school furnishes an excellent opportunity for those who wish to an ticipate certain work in college or to prepare themselves the better for entrance into college. Colleges usually recit students with the work done in these schools as of the same value as work performed in the unitary senseter. If a student too, has been so unfortunate as to be "conditioned" in the work done in the college, the summer school is a good substitut. for a private totor.

Although the professional teacher and student represent by for the larger share of these in alternative upon these schools, there are also to be found in them persons a be are neither teachers nor students,—for the terms of schools are neither teachers nor students,—for the terms of schools are somewhat more generous than the 2-ross of admission to the ordinary college. Therefore persons who desire to extend or enrich their education under university suspices find the summer school as excellent agency. It cannot be doubted, also, that many persons are finding four weeks in old Cambridge, engaged in the study of chemistry or of geology, quite as pleasant as a month at Saratoga or the White Manutains.

The thought is often expressed that the summer variation for the college student is two long. Thereen weeks are surely a too large share of the year to be given up simply to the usual form of summer rest. The summer school comes in to fill up this education and excludings.

We said forward to the yet further development of this system. It is in itself a great boucht for both the teacher and the student, and for all choose of switty who desire to extend their education. The perik of it are neither so numerous nor so strong that they deserve special attention. The chief peril has in the possibility of overwork. This peril belongs to be to the teacher than to the student. But the portl is one common to every faithful worker in every department.

Tim: Japanese correspondent of the Chicago Rosel, Mr. W. E. Curris, confirms the statement, which has been made on loss trustworthy authority, that the Jopaness government proposes to use the greater portion of the indemnity paid by China for the construction of naval vessels of the highest class, and the extension and improvement of the fortifications that pratect the count of the couples. The Krupp and Armstrong guns from the expressed fortesses of China are already being removed, and will be mounted for the defense of Takin. In the letting of contracts for new mentof-war, it is said that American firms will be given a preference, and this will be done, Mr. Curtis says. eron if the American prices are higher than those of Europe: Brst, because they are convinced that the best ships in the world have come from American yards; and wood, because they desire to allow their friendly interest in the people of the United States. Newspaper dispatches state that Japanese agents are already in this country for the purpose of inspecting the facilities of the Cramps and other ship-builders.

IT looks as if the British Conservatives will be able to get along without the Liberal-Unionists in the new House of Commons. If that should turn out to be the fact, Mr. Chamberlain and his followers may be obliged to abute their pretensions very materially. While the Tories have been glad enough to avail themselves of a Unionist confition so long as they were in a minority, they have never had any real love for Mr. Chamberlain, and his arragant demands since the overtigoes of the Rochery government. and especially his displays of reportion in providing phases for his sun and other henchmen since his appointment as Colonial Minister, have by no means disclaiched their distike. The Saturday Berior describes Mr. Commbertain's course as "unscrupulous," and other purrols apply much stronger characterizations to his utilization of his position for the benefit of his family. But the Birmingham reprsentative is a sturdy fighter, with a very thor someopting of his own capacity and importance, and he will not go to the rear without a very stubborn struggle; and it may be that Lord Sulisbury will find it wiser to endure him and his pretensions for a time than to drop him entirely. But it is inevitable that, with the Conservatives buttressed as they now are by a clear empority of the House, the Liberal-Unionists must crose to be a decisive or controlling factor to begishation. A very interesting article converning Mr. Chamberhalo's valuable services to the people of Birmingham is printed on another page of the Weekly.

Tun gentlemen who are named in connection with the Republican nomination for the Presidency do not seem to be worrying themselves about the existing altriation. Ex-President Harrison has gone but retirement on First Lake, one of the Politon chain in the Admindacks, where he ocrupins the ramp of a St. Louis friend: The comp is solutimility located, and is fully equipped with all the essentials of discretic confort. There are fish in the lakes, there are nonmine to climb, and there is just enough of society scattered about the virially to give a social side to the summer life of the ex-President. Besides, he has as his next-door neighbor a leading St. Louis Presbyterian divine. who will no doubt we to it that he does not spend his days amiles. Mr. Bred, whose Maine friends regard him as the coming cast, is spending the summer at an unpertentions cottage at Grand Beach, on the Maine coast. These who have visited him there do not find him bourdoutely concerned about the Presidential succession. Governor Mr. Kinley, of this, is engaged in the performance of the official duties, taking a day's vacation new and then at near-by resorts, and does not seem to be shoing much in the matter of his Presidential " fewers." It is quite remaible that all of these gentlemen give a thought now and then to the penalbilities of the future; but they are wise enough to let things take their everse, and it would be well, perhaps, if the budies publishes of the party would initate their example in this respect. Nothing leto be gained for any candidate by attempts to " set up the place" a year in advamo of the struggle.

tion of the chief grounds of complaint against the oil Tammany poster commissioners was that they winked at the violation of law and contained the police in giving protection to certain classes of offendors. It was largely upon the criticare showing the existence of a corrupt understanding between the police and the keepers of illionicity house, proprietors of mileons and places where gambling was rarried on, that the newspapers, almost without exreption, haved their demand for reform. Int'l it a little preservable that some of these journals, now that the evedemand commissioners have been supplemed by others who are resolutely enforcing the laws, should sugage in violent denun-latious of these officials, and fill their pages with furtil protons against the execution of the very lows whose neglict was a little while ago regarded as a crime ! It is not surprising that Senator Hill should raise an outcry against the enforcement of the present excise law, passed by a Tamesayr Legislature, for, as Mr. Bossevelt mys, "It was not mount to be boordly colored. It was meant to be and to blackmail and browben the salvopkeepers who were not the slaves of Tammany Hall, while the hig Tummany homes who owned subous were allowed to vacair the law with impunity and to corrupt the police force at with." Besides, Senator Hill has arrer been conspicarus as a supporter of laws which militated against the vicious and direcontable elements in sevicey, upon which he mainly relies. But to first intelligent and presonably houest journellate who were night months ago arrive for reform traducing the public afficials whom they helped to elect, for homestly trying to effect reform along the lines of existing how that is a spectacle which may well perrude surprise.

Men and Things.

" This passed year by your and day by day."

Some time upo Frederic Remington, who has pictured for us so successfully the life of the West and Southwest, among the "row - purchers," "greaters," and different army posts, told use that if there was one thing he wanted to do above all others, it was to draw a picture of Rudyard Kipling's famous teat, Malvaner, Otthers, and Searnyd. And I see in a current magnetise that the opportunity was given him and taken. As a tall-piece to Kipling's stirring story of a polo match, "The Maltese Cat," we find the three musksteers with the superscription, "Three old friends." The picture has nothing whatever to do with the story, but I suppose the temptation was too storng, and Remington simply three it in with the other illustrations for his own personal anticlaction. It must be confessed, though that this presentment of the "three old friends" for they are friends to all those who have followed them through their tails and to white-is not satisfying. Malvames leader suspiciously like a Seventh cavalryman, and firtheris migid belong to our own Troop A. while Soursed. is a nondescopt. I remember some years ago seeing the there pictured on a paper curered volume of their adventuses in a west last persent me much more. While Mulranes is on the tip of my per I must quote a latter from Kipling somerning his wild frishmen. It seems that a paragraph has been group the pound of the papers to the effect that "William McManus, the original of Kipling's Private Mulvanity, is now a resident of San Prancisco. The incidents of his life," it is added, "are very similar to those related in "Soldiers Three," and he describes Kipling as "a placky, inquisitive, little fellow in the civil service; who passed his bettle around among us privates and then got us to tell all the yarus of the barrack room."

In answer to an inquiry from the editor of a literary monthly as to the truthfulness of this, Kipling wrote:

"Date See 1.— In reply to your letter, I can say that I know nothing of the Privace Williams mentioned in the rotting you forward. At the same time, I should be intelligence with a foliast-consider a trade, and if there he such a person so Private Williams, and if he believes himself to be the adignost of Persone Matteries, and one if he believes himself to be the adignost of Persone Matteries, and to be it likes to back his claim, we will aske that he is a good enough Materials for the Periods single, and wall developments. At the same time, I confess his secure is one adding games to play, for Toronic single of their peakings in the statement. Then the Descript come in the palangsion? It is not use of the question it has differ the religious with, but for my own, extendation I would give a green deal to have it amovement. If Private McManne can answer it without available or reservations to will prove that is the source entity right to be regarded as Matteries, and the last server set find in America, and between will.

The six have been six children here in the White House of whom the first. Mrs. Wileax, a gray headed tady of sixty five, Is a clock in the Treasury Department; and the last, lattle Esther Cheveland, is an important member of the Gray Gables bousehold. Mrs. Wileax is the daughter of Mrs. Andrew Jackson Househoon, a nice of President Jackson, and the wife of his private scentary. A brother and slater of here, also been in the White House, died in infancy. The fourth White House child was Richard Tyler Jones, who died in poverty in Washington recently, and who was a grandson of President Tyler. The fifth White House buly was Julia Bent Grant, the daughter of Calonel Fred Grant.

—A man who knew Mark Twain's mother says that it is from her that Mark derives his strain of dry wit and quaint humer. Mr. Clemon's parents were Kentuckians, but long before the war they moved to Hannibal, Missouri, the town that has furnished a great deal of the beal color of Mark's two great stories for boys. The farmus Tom Sawyer cave, which thousands of picuic parties have explored, is near there, and it was at Hannibal that Mr. Clemotogalped his intimate knowledge of steambouting. During the early part of the war he piloted the Great Republic on the Maximippi.

—Ser Walter Besant is said to be one of the most characing men in Lendon in social intercourse. He is now fiftyseven, though his thick brown hair and heard make him, look younger, and he lives in a secluded red brick house of his own design in Hampstead. He is perimps the loussess man in literature, for every hour of the day has its allotted tasks for him, and his stories are written out with painful perseverance with his own hand. He began his career as a college professor, and it was due to Hiducalth, of which there is now no trace, that he turned his hand is novelwriting.

When Sumuel R. Crockett, the Scatch anveilist, was a student at Edinburgh University be lived on nine shillings a week and ledged in the garner of an old house. His life was vigorous, and there is a trace of it still in his habit of rising before dawn. Mr. Crockett is out of bed and at his desk before five in the norming, and by the time a man in mercantile life is on the way to his office he has done a day's work. XIII MR. PERSON PREPARES FOR WAS.

Olf a long, secret measure full forward, embracing her kness the mether and son thus strangely remaind knott together, their arms about each other, their hearts Oh, my son! my son!" full of a whirl of many mingled emotions which made incomble. When at last Mayn broke the long silence, it was with a voice curiously calm, despite the deep, underlying tramor which told by what an berole effort she was able to speak at all.

" Desmond ! My son !"

" Mother !" was all Desmond could sob to return

"Ye know mit! Ye know who I am?"

"Yes. Peebles has told me all," returned Desmond. "Ye don't shrink from me! Ye don't despise the poor wo man that loves ye ?"

"Shrink from you | Despise you I' cried the boy, straining ber to his heart, and speaking between the kisses with which he covered her face, her hands, her dress. "I'm like to burst with joy for finding ye. I was alone in the world, with searce a friend, nameless and hopeless and homeless, and God has sent

He raised her to her feet and fell on his knees again before ber, looking up at her with eyes bright with fast-running

"Mother ! mother ! mother ?"

It was all that he rould say, and there was at once infinite. pleasure and prignant grief in his repetition of the word. He

"God's good, after all," said Moya. "Many and many lasbeen the hitter hear, all these weary years, when I thought be had fregutten me; when I deschool if there was a God at all.

She been him free his kneeling posture and fed her bungry eyes upon bli face. "Ye're my own boy, Desmand. I can see the face that I ren glass, when I little thought of the bitter trouble in store for me. I can dis happy now. There's nothing more that God can give me, now that I've held you in my arms and heard ye call me

"Not for many a long year yet, please God," said Demond. "Not for many a long, happy year that you and I will pass together. The something to live for, now; something to work for. We'll go together, back to the land you came from and forget the past and all its wretchedness."

"His fare, too !" said Meya, who, in her passionately loving artitity of Demond's face, had let his words pass unbesded. "His face, as it was when I loved him."

"Ye mean my father?" cried Demicad. "Fre discursed him. I've cast him off. I have no father. Nobady in the world but you, nother."

"Hosts, man (" said Pechles, who had been forced to make a detour to erom the bridge two hundred yards distant, "are ye going to retreat just when the bettle's in your hand! That's michty puir generalship, laddle !"

The events of the last quarter of an hour had quite banished from Deemond's memory the story the old man had told him as they walked from the farmer's cottage toward the mill. At this sudden interruption to stared at Peobles with the empty look of one aroused from a day-dream by words which near no meaning to bis mind.

"A' this endden excitement has turned the puir lad's brain," said Postiles to Moya. "Ha's ye forgotten," he continued to Desmond, " a' that I tould ye not an hour syme ?"

The boy gave a sudden cry of recollection, and again threse his arms along his mother's neck.

"Come " he cried. " come to the castle and take the place that's yours by right."

"Not yet, laddie, not yet," said Posbies. " Soft and cumning goes far. My lord's no in a condition to ha's sic a surprise sprung on him wi' no sort o' warning. 'Deed, 'twad kill him,

"And serve him right," cried Desmond, hotly.

"Hoots, mun !" said Peebles again, " ye're in over much of a

"If cried Besmond, "I never thought of myself. The for her, Feebles. Think of the long years of misory she's endured, of all the auguish—the—the—" His voice broke.

"Aye " said Poetden. "Ye think as the young, who have mover kenned sorrow, are upt to think. She has suffered so long that another day or twa will hardly matter much, I'm thinking. Ye must bide a wee, laddie. Ye must trust to auld Poebles. I'm just as anxious to see ye and your mother get your rights as ye can be yersel', but lookers on see most of the game, and me lord's mind is cooler ("an yours is like to be."

"He is right, Desmond," said Moya. "We must think of -of your father, and then-'tis messif, too, that has need of time and need of prayer. If the news had come years back I couldn't have held myself back. "Should have run to him at once. But now—'tis not of him I think. 'Tis of you. 'Tis little enough pleasure to me to know that I am Lady Kilpatrick, and the love that would have carried me to him is gone—gone all to you, Demond."

She fell silent for a time, backing straight before her with an expression which her two compunions strove valuely to interpret till she spoke

"Those villates think that they have killed ine," she said, presently, speaking quietly, almost dreamity. "I was thinkin' that may be— Perbles—"

"Yes, lossie—I mean Lady Kilputrick," said the old man, substituting the title for the more familiar form of address, with all the respect of a good Scot for the upper ranks of the social hierarchy.

"They think I'm dead," she said again, in the same slow and dreamy tashlon. "Wouldn't it be tetter if I were dead?"

"God guids us?" exclaimed the old man; "her wits are wandering."

"No." she said. "But contin't I go away quietly to some place where Desmond could some and see me at odd toines. I'd not disgrace him then, nor—nor Henry. If blake will spake the troth Desmond will be the next Lord Kiljathrick, and that will make me as happy as I can over be this ado o' the grave."

"Disgrace me!" cried Desmond. "Oh, mother! How can ye speak so! What is it to me that I am Lord Kilpaterick! Surs. Pd rather be the pear squireen, and have you to have and work for, than be king of all fre-land."

" Well said," cried Peobles. " Eh, there's the real grit in ye, lashin. But I'm thinking that maybe you find mair virtue in the title or Lord Kilpstrick than yo think for. Think of Lady Duleie, Desmond. Can ye ask her, the teamle does to share sic a life he yest have to live for years and years to come before ye've made a name and position for years? ! It books only at your age to compair the world, but the fight's a long and bitter one. And then, here's the plain junioù at the case. Let right be dinne. Your mother's Lady Kilpstrick, and ye're Descount Consulting my lord's beir, and I'm put the Lord forgte on for sweeth - before Fil ien ynn brane o'murderin' Univer prosper at your expense. Na. ms. Mayn, my hon. Thora's may harry for the moment. We can afford the time to been and turn it ever tell we've hit in the best means o' gettin' your rights, but ha's them ye shall, and Desmond, too, or my name's on Postdes. And, second heaven here are retwo pair creatures standing here stripped water. You be takin' yer delths of causid. I must fluid ye aufther shelter, my body, whoer ye may tode quiet and comey till matters are arranged. Ph ha'r me find have the hand lies, and prepare my tord's mind. I ha't. There's Peter Magnire's estage. He's gone to Dublin to buy his shock for emigrating to America. He'll not be back. for a work, stal the lot sticks of furniture are a there. The a legimonic place. Yo'll not be disnight, and factody used bea that ye're there, this work ye all ye can want by a sore band. Kies your oon, and say good bye to him for a day or two. Trust to me.

Demond not his mother teck each other again in their arms, and for a minute the deep element of the night was broken unity by the habble of the broke and the second of their sole and knees. Then the old mill, which had been blacing furiously through unbeschel, full in ages shedf with a thunderous creak.

"Lead save as " eriod Poebles. "Come awa" if ye don't wunt the baill country-side about me! It's just a wonder that analogy's some already. Host! They're coming "

A notice of distant voices and the patter of feet because multible.

"Quick, quick?" cried the old man. "Get buch hance, Desmond; Fill one to your mother."

He took Mayn by the arm, and with gentle violence forced her from the scene, while leamond moved off in the contrary direction. Once or twice he had to this, behind tress and bowl, does, from the people who were now passing toward the mill, attracted from all quarters by the therms timbers.

Once clear of them, and out again in the wide slicuse of the summer night, he tried hard to the bis mind on the ovents of the evening, but his brain was hereithered, and wence tike a serves too wurn in late; he could think to no satisfactory result. Half-mechanically, his fast bore him in paths he had traveled thousands of times, and he found bineself in the cortalists of Kilmstrick Castle. Then his wandering with figual thermacives on an idea-Dubble! He stole possible by us a third about the great house. It wise still to a timb, and dark but for a single ray of light which shows from a window which by knew to be Imber's. His beart glowed with have unit hope. At and also afould be his ! There was no question now of accepting her herde self-actifice. He could give her the position that she had a right to sepire to. She had descepcial from her lofty station like a pitying angel to fore the poor, nameion squirees. He could raise her to a higher. His heart one so full of love and pride and triumph that he knot, on the tart beneath that friendly gloom of light and proped to it as a decome would kneet before the shrine of his favorite usint, the happy tears running down his face;

"Had bless my starting," to said, sattly "that bless has "

The desire again to see her face, to hear her value, was two atrong to be resisted. He threw a few publics of gravel against the glass, and a moment later the blind was drawn aside. She saw him standing pale and still in the blood movedight, and softly raised the window.

"Deemond !"

"You, my durling. Speak low. Maybe they are lottering. I resulted stay away longer. I longed so to see you."

" I'll come thewn to you," she who period : "go to the west door,"

He slipped away, and a minute or two later. Dulrie leaved from the house, enveloped in a white dressing-grown, her maked fact glistening in research and slippers. Descrind made an irrepresented motion to take her in his arms, but remembering his waked condition, drew took.

"Why," said Dules. "you're all dripping wet, you silly boy. What have you been doing with yourself?"

" Fre been flating," said Deumand.

" Fishing I' reported Dulch.

"Yes, sure," said the boy, with a tappy longh. "I've landed the biggest field of the season. I'll tell you all about it by and by. Dukin. Set yet. "To a sayone! Havon't ye a kine for one!"

Dulcto pocked at the cheek he extended toward her, making a made little face.

"What is your evert, Demond I" she esked. "Cap's you treet our !"

"Not yet, my jawel," and Desmont. "Trust me a bit. Fit helf ye this words, door. Our treathles are never. Pit to resume to a day or two to claim ye. In that an evade to you to have as it is to me to say. I wonder?"

"This is all very mysterious," said Indea-! Hat you lack very happy, Descard. Won't you tell me what has happened?"

"Not yet. Wait a let, and he as happy as your curiously will let you."

"You providing wretch " exist Dales. " I am eare something has happened you had as ridical-only happy."

"Then I had as I feet. Tell use," he west usto stave off further questioning on her part, "tow are things going in here at the meth." How is Lord Kilpstreen?"

"He's better in health," regined Duleis. " her tale very glam and about, and he keeps his ream. He has seen indeedy but Freddes and Mr. Committing and me. He's dramificity changed—quite susppiels and disagreeable. Oh, by the way. Mr. Committing and that many key of his wave out marry all day, and a less they summer to the halt. They were both so pule us thath, and the halt. They were both so pule us thath, and his work a wright disturbed and frightened. Has your sevent marrhing to do with them?"

"Mayle," said Demond. "Sure, 'tie no our, you asking questions. But 'the good now I have for yo, whom the time comes to spake And now, durling, give me another kne and go back mileses.

He true hard to held himself from embracing her, but his arms were round her before he knew it, and he strained her to his breast with all his straight.

"I've relies of your grown," he "and, positioning, when the embrace was finished, but I couldn't help it. You'd draw the wast out of a stone when yo link like that. The mischie's done now, so I'll take another. Good night, nor angel five-set dreams and a happy waking for yo. If I stay any longer I'll be breaking down and telling re all, and 'he lead, re shouldn't know for a while."

The task which Prebles had undertaken was no easy one, and the more he contemplated it the many difficult it seemed to grow. He racked his brains over the problem of how to make known to one in so preserves a condition of builth as Lord Kilpatrick, the secret of Maya's continued existence and of her presence in the adiablechool. The difficulty was remplicated by the cowardly and crimuml attempt on herlife by two members of his lordship's family, his the lones of which the Inithful old servant was deeply reported. That two such sentedrels should still be permitted to prey on the irreduces of this resister and diminish Desmond's patrioung was intolerable; that they should be publicly charged with their crime, impossible, Pengres, tee, was in the same feet, and most also be permitted to muye, for it was impasible to denounce him without bringing the crime of the Constitues to light. But then there was the chance—the strong chance of the greety of the country side bringing to their care the knew tedge of Meyn's continued existency, and what there such aroundeds might do to cover their minerescal attempt and to sesure their enduracered leasty, it was hard to say,

The part for the series action was pressing, but in what direction was flux action to be taken? One rearis, and our only, seemed to Postdow clear by the measure. It was in his pressy to secure Mayn's affect from any further at tempt. That could be done by cloudy telling the two collains from in the house that their netarious proceeding of the hight before was known. Once resolved, Freddom was as baid a man as may that every tried since beather, and only such a warpen as was furnished by his hightness the two Consolius, would have freed an action. Colorado Snowplowing in Summer.

Who can appreciate the delights of backing snow in June; of standing on the pilot platform of a rotary snow-plow, wrapped in "slicker" and son'wester, signal-exed in hand, bruced against the rail like an occur captain, and straining valled eyes through awaring anoward snod; Above, the sun is shedding a ferrial best, while down at the bottom of the rustua green rangles incless the routing accounts to reach in frame of deep-hand alfalfa. The ride is exhibitrating, and, as a morely, few have purtaken of the delictions sensetion.

Epitamiast, it is including in winter apart in an abitiset tropical temperature. All nature is sweet with the breath of opting, and even here, in the high altitude above timber-line, is backet of perpetual mere, the perform of guiden real, buby's breath and pend-likes noughs with the balaxanic olor of aprure and pine, borne on the bulay breate that soon been its tropical warmth on receiving the fright carones of the mowbacks. Nevertheless the six is fragrant with spring numerous from the valley below, while the lingering shades of wheter are norsed on the breats of old Borne Hill in the vicinity of Alpine Pass.

Alpine tunnel, the highest remnerting link between the costern and western slopes of the Rocky Mountain range, has been respond to traffic after an enforced bilippose of five yours. At an allitude of 11,600 feet the first builders of the Boath Park, Denver and Pacific Railway decided to unke a bore for the passage of ratiway trains. The antertaking was one of the most ardiom in the history of rational-busiding in the West, and in many respects the reliabiltation was more difficult than the original task of construction allows the clouds. The tennel was promounced a failure from an occupented standpoint soon after the South Fack fell into the hands of the Union Pacific, and in spite of the fact that the read owned fifty miles of track, with numerous stattens and cont-mises, or the western side of the range, if was deemed onpodient to deliver truffer from that metion to the Deaver and Rio Grande Rallway at Gunnison, and pay that company for hashing freight two handred and fifty in the to Derror rather than one their own but airrostings line that overerof the same hazi in a distance of one handred and fifty miles.

A few weeks ngr, while the entire country was sweltering in the terrid son. forces were at work on the route to Amine Pass. Thoumade of men, denom of engines, and a formidable equipment of snew-plows were engaged in paving the way for a resuggetion of travel over the creat of the continent. Drifts and glaciers of stapeurlous proportions were encountered in progressing from the lower level to a distance of almost three miles above the sea. Huge sections of the mountain were impeded by the formation of ice that bad not been disturbed for five years, and in that time had formed to a constitutely of concrete in layers superimposed each winter. The elements had had their way for so unny sessous that faint hope was entertained of making a success of the plan to open up the Gunnison mate, but as the forces grew accustomed to their singular summer work they improved in their methods, with the result that the summit was finally reached, and the first actual entry made into the tunnel. Stormdoors were found at either end, closed as they were left on the sky the last from shid down. the side of the mountain, taking with it the willtary watelman who for ten years had kept watch and ward at the gates that would have showers merly for the famous portals where Ht. Peter is supposed to wait for the sauctified. The interior, however, was a daugestatuent, for the sides of the bore were limit with Impy masses of bine ice, and inches depended from the reaf like so many stalactites. Having cleared away the key rums the honoring was examined with critical eyes, for on the result of that examination deposited the fate of the road in opening to smalle. The New Art Museum at Springfield, Mass.

The love of art and appreciation of its finest representations has been growing rapidly in Springfield, the largest rity of western Massaclusselts, during the past twenty years, and the building of a flue new posseum for the housing of art treasures means much not only to the city but to the valley of the Connecticut, whose inhabitance make frequent pilgrimages hither,

It began with the art exhibitions inaugurated by a public spirited citizen, and seem taken up by an art dealer who leved art and mended to unite others leve it. Each year behas selected pictures from the best studies of New York and Boston, and the artists of the valley resum together to study and criticise. A large number of the best paintings are purchased in the vicinity before the exhibition month is over.

The mineum itself has been in the minds of the City Library Association for several years. The collection of matural-history specimens and of variable historic roll is and documents which one would instantly expect to fluid in a town which colclested its two fundered and fiftieth understary some years ago seemed to demand better indement than was affected them in the provided room of the library building.

But when to the transcrip already in hand Mr. George W. V. Smith, an enthumente and discriminating art collector, proposed to add the results of forty years' seeing and buying to the other of the Old World, the Library Association acted promptly, and by the liberal gifts of public-spirited citisems it is able to present to-sky a least-full extremely artistic building which will be at once a delight and an eluvation to all the region around for generations to came.

Minared in close presently to the literary's flow building, on a pleasant elevation a little back from the broad street going up the hill toward the "Boston Road," the museum is very favorably placed among a group of the thoest buildings in the city. It is of Pompetian brick, long and thin, with handman ornaments of terra-cutta, in the Ralian Beautisance style of architecture, and every detail of the external and internal construction has been carefully placed to east the mests of the building and to gratify the lover of architectural beauty.

Within the building the halls are fluished with butchone monie, the staircoos, and decorative from work. Every detail shows the thought of some interested artist. On the lower floor in found the large collection of natural history specimens and the various relica and objects of interest which have been contributed at various times. The Competitut Valley Historical Noonly is to place its valuable collections here. On this floor, also are two large and beautifully equipped before rooms, which can be thrown into one when occasion demands. These name have bug been needed for the various instorical and scientific gatherings to the city, On the seemal floor is found one integrationy, tenetifully finished in native woods, in which is placed the art library, now large and valuaids. Here, also, is the Arundel collection of pletures, arranged in awinging side frames are that their full beauty may be easily sent, even by a child. An alcove is provided for the use of these wishing to study here. The thirteen stained-glass windows which light this resun are decorated with the old printers' marks and comograms of the early centuries of printing. Arress the half are two large rowns designed for pointings.

But the chief benety of the museum is found in the seven tuesic resorted and especially built for the Smath collection of Oriental curios, tapestrics, falcies, pointings, armor, bronzes, percelains, and repecially of the choicest Japname products, valued at over a bundred thousund dollars. Every detail of such of these seven vocasi has been executed under the supervision of Mr. Smith, who is an accomplished gentleman of cure tusts. The decoration of one room is pure Ionic, of another Italian Renainmare! the room designed for the diaste arms is tinted in dail Pompelian red; for the aquarelles there is a background of faint blue. Handsone malogany cases are provided for the reception of jars and vases and bromes. To the collection Mrs. Smith has added for own cure cultivities of costly laces. The nine rooms on this floor are so arranged that they open into each other by benetiful archways, producing a very happy effect of form and color.

The exceedingly generous gift of the Braiths remains in the form of a beyond during the life-time of the collection is placed in the museum are loans exbilition, at once, and the design of the giver is to enable all artists and artists to empty and peofit by the best workmanship of many launds.

The impount, together with the library of a bundred thousand volume and a large readingroom, is entirely free to all crizens.

BIRMINGHAM AND MR. CHAMBERLAIN.

Birminoman of recent years has been repardof as a model municipality. Manchester and Liverpool stand high among English cities; but Birmingham is invariably pointed to as the place in which the modern municipal spirit has nehieved its greatest and widest development. It was not always so. Birmingham's moneyal eminence is of comparatively recent date, and much of it is due to the organizing and miministrative genius of one man.

Twenty-five years ago Birmingham was a third-rate provincial town, possessing auditor monicipal life nor municipal institutions which in any way lifted it above the ordinary run of mountacturing and commercial towns in Enghand. It was a hadly-built, slow-going town. Hose slow it was, and bow lacking in municipal spirit and monicipal enterprise, was shown by the fact that although the Municipal Referen net was passed as long ago as Poll, it was not until 1851 that the people of Birmingham availed themselves of the provisions of that famous rocustre, and sought to establish a rusily represcalative system of local government for the town. Even when the act of 1830 was thus tardily adopted, and an elected town council superseded the old system of town commissioners, matters were not much improved. There was no enterprise about the town council in its earlier days. Most of its work was of a pality and makeshift character, no attempt being made to deal with any of the monicipal probfrom which were pressing themselves upon pulsis attention.

About 1808, however, national and local political life all over England was stirred by the pussing of the Reform act, which gave the Parliamentary franchias to the workingness living in the large towns. Workingness had previously had votes at mandrian shethers, but the possession of the Parliamentary franchise avaloued a new interest in all political affairs, and Blemingbam felt the quickening of this new life nurse than any other large English town. The era of apathy and conservation in municipal affairs now came to an end. In 1870 there was an accomion of a number of exceedingly rapidle and public-spirited men to the town council. They were men of a much higher colilow, and of larger views and alone, then those who had ruled formingham store the tifties. Mr. Joseph Chamberlain was the Accessed of tipese more more. At that time, and for warm years later, be was little known outside fileminglam; but he was now entering on a work which was to give him nathand fame, and whileh, if he had mover achieved any position in imperial politics, would have given him the highest reputation as a civic stateman.

For Mr. Chamberh in It is claimed, and my one who makes a study of the manicipal history of Birmingham will comcide the claim, that be social the town from the Intensely previocal spirit which had hitherto characterized it; and raised it to metropolitum rank. With Mr Chamberlain in the council which was administering the affales of Pirmingtons during the decade from 1870 to 1880, there were half a flower area of ability and power, several of whom have, like Mr. Chamberlain, made for thurselves places in the larger political arena. at Westminster Mr. Chamberlain, however, more took the lead. He had been in the council unity about three years when he prus elected maxor. In English towns the people elect the rearnest, and the reconsite in their turn elect the maxors, usually from among their own monhere and from among those who have served a long apprentiseship to municipal work. But, as the been said, Mr. Chamberlain's apprentice thip to municipal business had not extended over three years when he was elected mayor, During the first year of his mayoralty be carvied through the council, and through Parhament, the scheme by which Birmfoglam possessed itself of the gas undertakings. These were then in the hands of private companies, paying high dividends as the result of the menopolics they on eyed. The price of gas was at once restaced, and nearly every year since 1874, a sum of not less than townty-five theosend pounds has gone to public purposes,—a sum which, before the new era in municipal affairs went into the products of the shareholders of the gas resupunies. It is calculated that the rity has accounted tour fundred and fifty theometal pounds by the surveys of the scheme which Mr. Chamberhain corrued through in 1874.

Mayors of English municipalities are elected for a year. A mayor who distinguishes himself is generally elected for a second term. This was so with Mr. Chamberlain. During his second term of office he was instrumental in securing for the municipality the presenter and control of its water supply. He appeared before a Parliamentary committee in support of this, his swould great schools for the development and advancement of nenciriped life in Birmingharn, and he insisted with renvincing earnestness that the control of the water supply was a matter of life and death to the people, and that the water-worse should be managed by the representatives of the people. From Jamury, 1975, the Birmingham water-works have been so managed, and once then hieraregistes has had a better and more adequate supply of water, and along with this better apply a substanting reduction in water vales.

In the same year that the hown passessed itself. of its water-works. Mr. Chamberlain was ready with another great project, which in its realentire is our of the wisest and most recepgroup acts ever performed by an English suppliionisty. Hirmingham, as it valided up to the wrenties, has already been described as a peoply-built town. Its central parts were received with visces and revolution, dating back for a century and a half, and the town larked any thing like a decent avenue of approach from the suburbs on its sortheastern and matern sides. In 1975, Mr. Chamberlain wer his oppertunity of getting ent of the shows and also of giring the home a handsome central thoroughfare is keeping with Birmingham's onemercial importance and its large and growing population. The government of Mr. Disracts hed just passed on act of Parliament empower ing municipalities to make large clearance of property provid to be in an anumillary result then and disagreeous to public louists and morale

The act, was present only in the really assume of 1825; but by July of that your Mr. Chauforigin was at work with a renuntities of the town council, severtaining what routh he done with the new law in Hermingham. It was now seen that much could be accomplished, and that moder the proclaims of the new law it was possiths he issues away a number of the narrow, fifther, and evid-ouelling streets and courts in the centre of the town, and in place of them give Dirmingtons the lase novi limits street in England. This faint Hamman-like achieus was estimated to cost mostly three houdred thousand prouds. The committee of the town countil forecase, reported in its facer. The town council, led by Mr. Chamberians, adopted the report of the committee, and Parliament gave its suprtion to the school. July, help, the work of demolition and clearapre legae, and by 1982 Corporation Street, a nugatifient. Oneoughture which is now the pride of the Midianols, and come into existence. It is sixty-six feet with and is lived on either side with buickeone stone and brick buildings of accidingtural morn, and all of a class which would do credit to Cheapude or Begant Htreet. in London. Noother English provincial town has a street which at all approaches torperstion Street. Market Street, Munchester, and Bold Street, Laverpool, are fine thoroughfares; but postler of show begins to compare with the stately avenue which Mr. Chembertain's bold now and forethrought have given to Birmingham.

In years to come Corporation Street will be sensiting more than a source of pride to the people of Directorian. It will be an immensurate of most to the municipality. For the respectation, when it parceled out the less in 1882, did not will be freebald. It adopted the plan of the great hunthests of Leaden, and lessest the building lots for a term of years. None of these terms are for larger than severe the first terms are for larger than severe the transmission will own every building in temporation Street, and will be in receipt of centals which will goe long way toward meeting the municipal charges owning armiest the city.

fir. Chamberlein neturally praise bimedf on the Corporation Street undertaking. He thinks it must make firmingham the releast torough in England. "It is the only exceeding" he core said, in alluding to the time when these seventy-five leases will fall in, "for which I wish to live beyond the ordinary torus of human life, in order to see the result of this improvement, and hear the blessings which will then be showered upon the cruncil of 1875, which had the courage to inaugurate this scheme."

These three great schemes, carried out on strictly business lines, were all conquested during Mr. Chamberlain's terms of mayoralty. While Mr. Chamberlain was mayor to also laid the foundation stone of the Council House, the first of the enguilleent pile of tunnicipal buildings for which Birmingham is now as famous as it is for Corporation Street. The great featare about the municipal buildings of Birmingham is that they are grouped tegether, and stand on the most communiting site in the city. Next the Council House, forming part of it, in fact: is the Municipal Art Gallery; while screen the square is the Central Library and Routingroom, than which there is no finer publiclibrary building anywhere in England outside

The Central Library contains over one bondred and forty thousand volumes, and, with nine braze's literaries in which about fifty thousand users books are distributed, is managed by the town council. The council also manages the School of Art, which is known in a quindid beibling within sight of the Council House, and eleven branch schools in which art is taught. The libraries and art schools are free, the libraries being maintained ent of a load tax, and the art schools partly by a lovel tax and partiy by greate from the Education Department in Louism. In most English towns the tax for maintaining libraries and act schools is limited to one pentsy in the pound of the rentable value of all taxable property. But for Hirmingham, at the request of its citizens, in pen Parliament passed a special law authorizing the tax for Elegater and art schools to be variable at the will of the corporation.

Birmingham towadays moor gion into me niripal work in a niggardly spirit. It has the best filtraries and art schools in England. The range of work to its art schools is unique. The more remarks apply to regard to elementary administration. Another elected basis, not the town council is responsible for this department of work. The whool board is, however, artuated by the same broad, business like spirit as the town remod. It woke to give Euroingian the best, and as a result of its policy, while other estion have not wheel places for all their childres. Browingbass, in the middle of 1994, had serve baseled more places than there were rightern of school age to scropy them. The beard was just a little ahead with its work, that was all . It is against its policy to allow attercrowding, or to permit the high character of the observatory education given in the observato suffer from any short-nighted economy. this respect Directoplasts is far about of Londow , and the observational system in often bold up non-model to the school boards of the other large towns of England. Our great sousces for this is that the actions beard waster into a statemen admost in the same year that the new introced in municipal life was being awakened in Herming hard for the action of Mr. Chambertain and his exhaugment of the examed of 1970; and, Jeon the first, the artised beard has shared in the spirit of the larger manucipal body, which, in the twelve years from 1620 to 1662, transformed Hittoinghim and roade it at once the brightest and ement greatered of the English menticipatition

For and Poperty.

Parks for the People.

The campaign for parks for the people in New York City has been won, practically. The metropolis will seen have parks attentive in design and well-kept constantly, adjacent to the homes of the poor. Manus libraried the increment when he was chief encountered the city. He wanted breaking places whore they were most tooled, where the poor were crowded together the thickest, and where, thereig from the crampel and ill-vertilated means they must accupy, they might got fresh air and see equight and town and thrule.

Central Park is a long distance from the real pass. When ther go there they must dress for the centre. The poor can't drug the score of balton up there conveniently. Parks must come to them; they must travel several unless to reach the parks. It was a recognition of this fact that a see hit of a park was much at famous five Points. It was called Paradise Park, and although it to a ting spat, it was harmed rightly. On a but night it is crowded, it has helped to revolutionize the place. The slutter are an longer in that nightle-hand.

One of the most important of the new parks will be the Corlean's Hock Park. It will be the East Safe park. Cherry Street—old Cherry Street—with its femaneurs, to sick leaking its thin-faced women, will run on one cole of it. The East Rieser will be an another side. It will be courly six femalesed fost separe, and a ploring place for the tired humanity of that polyhborhood to seek rest and to forget its mission.

It may cost several fundred thousands of dolars, but it will pay the city as an investment on the score of public health alone, the pleasure it will give to the poor soft taken into account.

Then there is the East River Park at the foot of Eighty-fourth Street. Old Jones's Wood used to be there. For some time it has been a public park, and in its attractiveness has been a fitting counterpart to Blackwell's Island, with its trees and lawns and flowers, directly across the marrow channel. The city has enlarged it reasonly, and with its terraces, trees, and flowers, it is a usest charming spot.

Old Mulberry Bend, famous for its murders, its family rows, its forlors humanity, where English was practically an unknown tought, will seen be a breathing place for the paor. It, two, will have sunlight and trees and green grass and fragrand flowers. The "Bend" is already gone forever. The rokeries have been condensed, and the transformation, a vertiable fairy scene for that part of town, will seen be at hand.

that this is not all of the story. The great reform to tenements provided for by the last Legislature is surely reming. One of the greatet elements in that referm will be numerous little parks. Already the members of the consmission whose work it will be to bring the reform about have conferred with the Park Commissioners about the location of these parks. It will take a long time to combons property, pull thren buildings, with the landscape features. but these parks are coming, and New York will Se a better place for the poor man to live in. It will not be the ideal place for him, but he will be able to see the stars from a more attractive. place than a roof, of a but night and he will know what real shade is not the shade that a rocking building casts myroo the salewalk, but A. P. MATTHEWS. that made by leaves.

A Novel Park Scheme.

A communication, who has given the subject of parts for the people a good deal of thought, makes this retiral suggestion:

There is just one way, in my opinion in which New York can provide its pror people with the kind of parks which they must need, and that is by the devotion to this use of at least one of the minute of the Kart River which he new set apart to the forced abode of such of the city's prominals as are cought and convicted. I refer to Blackwell's Island.

"This natural park, which Providence seems to have placed there for the very use herein propowed, would make a magnifered play-ground, my of areen for thomasule of the people of the East Side, reportally after the projected bridge shall be built which is to span the island and connect the main land to the Long Island shore It will then be equally available for the poor pages of Brookira, who dwell by Heatands in the transmin on the south side of the stream, and are many miles from anything resembling a park. To turn that island, with its one handred and twenty acres of greenward, into a park would be an achievement worths of the tirenter New York, and an audies fassing to the people

"The penal instructions would, of rourse, have to be removed, but if it quite possible that the poor-leave and charity hospital might remain for some time to come, at least.

"It will be said that the treable and expense of moving the proof ortalicistements are insurrecumtable obstocks; but that is a question which is well worth looking into. My own balief is that it would be worth to New York all the rest and laker which it would involve, and that a for better place, from all practical points of view, could be found for the priseners who are used level their.

A tract of land could be bought, say on Long Island, which result answer every purpose for the city's criminals. It might have a scater front on one side, either on the exam or on the seand, and it should embrace sufficient availed ground to until the prisoners to grow chough produce for their own support.

It is understood that the prisoners on the siand are required to perform certain kinds of tales; mostly non-productive, but the samplotal of the work slone is very small when one considers the munder of people suggisted in it. By a change of the character fore proposed every man and weman condemned to serviced the crume might be properly rapidityed at useful talest disring a considerable number of hours such day, while necture other hours might be given to reformabery barchings and messures which would head to make them better in leaving the prison than they were when they entered it. Any such advantages will be forever impossible white the prison is confined to Blackwell's Island.

"While there are rectain odvantages in having the prison on this beautiful island, they are few and unimportant as compared with the dands antages of prestituting this gift of nature to such a use.

"Util present collightened city government.

would do well to look into this matter; to give the subject a thorough overhauling. A large site for a prison colony could be had on Long Island, where farms and gardens, orchards, dairies, and work-slope of all kinds would be manned by the prisoners condemned by our courts, through which employments they would receive actual benefit from their incorrestation, and be made entirely self-supporting. The surplus might be day sed to the support of the helpless families of prisoners, who are usually left in abject poverty.

"Under the present system, when a man becomes a criminal his wife and children are made outcosts, and in the natural course of things many of them drift into the criminal classes. Society should recognize that it is doing a great injury to innocent and helplessbeings in permitting the perpetuation of this great wrong. It is a shame which will been its mark on our civilization.

"This is an outline of a plan for develing Blackwell's Island to the city's health and glory. Any orlightened cittien can fill in the setails. If New York's intelligence grows with the anneapolity as characterizes the increase of its population, I predict that the day is not fur distant when what is here only himed at will be an accomplished fact. J. A. Mackwingt."

The Faculty Alone a Possible Barrier.

The suggestion made by me had week that the Vale every go to England must your and row the winner of the Oxford-Cambridge rate has borne rich fruit indeed. In fact, it only remains for the Vale faculty to agree in order to set the at once all excessivy negotiations with the Englishmen, to launch the scheme and arrange for the subscription of expense money. Yak's conchers, from "Bob" Cook down, are enthusiantly over the more contemplation of the trip, and this year's victorious even, all of whem will be in college next year, are inest sanguing of giving a fine accounting in English waters if the reportunity is offered.

The nighter of raising money sufficient to pay expenses would, in the opinion of possillated graduates, be one of little moment, massuch as the feeling is general that we now have a chanceto demonstrate our requality with the orows of the world in fast new rowing of four miles, " Bob." (Social thinks in all seriousness that the chances are good, and this great couch's equation is worth more than that of any other rowing expert in the country. He also their graduate carriers of Yake and other colleges, who argue that there are some little points -- delicate though telling ones of the Cook stroke which are bound to make it take rank almost us the engerier one. on the ground that, whereas the English stroke is practically that which thak brought here from England in the 'according the stroke and by the Yale own is tim English stroke plants? down, murathed out, and perfectly bonded to all its mercements.

In other words, while the English stroke is marked by rather alrupt changes or halls between (e.g.) the resorer and the sinks beward, the reaching out of the hands on the earth and the outch likelf, the Cook stroke anosthes off these edges. The English our, then, might be compared to a besty moving in a rectangular plane where the nucles would necessarily cause a balt, and the latter to one serving in an elliptical plane. Now it is those little differences, roughed with our un-butteral lend in prechanges for much confidence, for it is not to be presumed for one moment that the physical enters into the complements.

The Yale Inculty in considering the question will be confronted with these conditions: Firstly, that the crew must leave here some time in January or the first of February; seemally, studying must be done for nearly two mouths away from the generally most helpful classroom, and the work of practically the entire winter term accomplished by means of tutors. Of course this assumes that the race shall take place a week or two after the annual Oxford-Cambridge affair—which occurs in March—which is the likely assumption, in view of past failures to arrange a race, which failures were in a measure due to the difference in the rewing and training seasons of the two colleges.

A POSSIBLE YALK-HARVAND FOOT-BALL. GAME THE FALL.

Should certain graduates of Yale and Harvard succeed in their joint efforts to bring about an unreable settlement of the present strained relations between the universities they represent, there will be a game of fact-ball this fall—though surely not at Springflaid as for the past four years. According to one of the mediators, these things must come to pase: Valemen must hark down a bit and say they were sorry they wrote a fetter asking an apology, and Harvard must say she regrets that her graduates should have seen fit to speak, in an unguarded moment, dispuragingly of Valeteams and their methods of play.

Thus far things are progressing smoothly, though somewhat distorted by an incident at New London, before the occurrence of which Vale and Harvard men were coming together nicely. It was during the Vale-Columbia Hareard freshmen race, and "Bob" Cook, unthinking and aroused by the pace work of a Vale our, grasped the megaphone and yelled out: "Brace up," etc. At the time the Haryard freshman were doing finely and their chances seemed risy. On the instant the mirtake was realised by those on the Yale listich, and Mr. Cook wought to make amends, but those on the Harvard banch close by healed black as thunder, and for the time the hitherte friendly feeling was completely dispelled.

But, se I have said, that little incident has been forgotten, and the hatchet is in a fair way to be burned, though an official amounteement of complete inhumation may not come before September.

That Harvard univergraduates desire to play Yale this fall is compositioned. They are simply satisfied that their foot-hall interests are now on the right basis, and their prospects of a winning town must fall in every way encouraging. To whip Yale at foot-hall would mean the togething of every hinter memory of part defents. Hence their encourage, if the truth were known, to play. Of exarce, built court for live through thinks so, too and so Yale is like factor, if her pride is not securedly journalized, why, we may fairly go about and plan to witness probably the greatest game of the 1910 season.

THE LABORROWS ATLANCE CHEEK.

The combination craise of the Larchanest and Atlantic Vaciat (Take, July 19th-19th, proved highly succeeded. The racing from part to part and other races was been all through, and the classes willows exception were well filled. In all, furly-three first and second prises were som. Of those, immaly second prises were som. Of those, immaly second prises shows that m at least statem second prises shows that in at least statem special prises shows that fine, yackits that part, as second prizes were, according to puls, withhold onless at inset four lumin started.

Following is a record of the first-perm winture, together with the number of their wine; Anneite, three; Norde, three; Emended, ten; Kateina, ten; Mineren, two; Legal, two; Income, Bengma, Income, Tragain, Ediper, Infrato, Afraire, and Venfure, one each. The record for accord price is Auchien, three; Jun, three; Venture, two; Occultor, two; Jeffipe, Mineren, Topens, Semerita, Kulhhen, Infrato, and Afraire, morench.

The joint ergins was the imporation of officers of the few circle, wher looped that the combination would bring sugether a large ensuber of yactic which could be kept logather. Though the joint cruises of the two clubs have been enjoyable ones, they have sever been successful in the sense of the worl of being remove from start to thick—with an desertions and follow try lasts for the different cases. It is note together the different cases. It is note together, by a manimum rote taken at Sheiter band on the 19th mateut, the cruise was adjudged grand and satisfying.

SEPTEMBER WESTERN RECORDS.

As report after report, truckes in concerning the marveling work of Volkyrie III, in light airs, and her temberuses in a breeze, the resclusion becomes all the more pertain that Designer Watsen, in making his plans, had in view only a best hest adapted for American waters in early September. Thus in no small degree the results of the Defender-Vallegere III. races are going to depend greatly upon mother condition. In view of this fact, a study of the weather records for the paid ben years, any for September 7th, Termore interesting: Harangely enough, while we find that on reptender 7th, 1995 and 1990, the want blow but five and a knots in four respectively, and in consequence in the former inclume Perilon and General, who were contesting for the America's Cap. were not able to finish, and in the latter, Phethas fouled General, we find that in 1967 it blaw. hard from the continued tharty knots ; in 1888. tifteen kands from the mertheut; in how areteen knots from the mertis-merthant; in 1980. foorteen knots from the morth and rest, smiting to wathout; in 190 the wind towird along at twenty-six knots un bour from the west, shifting to northwest. In 1992 the wind was variable, but slid not reach being twifte knots, while is 1993 a regular old southender came along at a thirty four-know-an-hour clips. Last year the wind blow thirteen knots from the northwest, stafting to authorst. Thus, while in 1885 and 1986 the wind averaged six knots the following eight yours show an average of switch knots.

"DEPENDEN" AN "VISILANT"

This much may be said without four of contradiction. In femiles is a faster boat than Vage And, over a thirty-mile ourse, by several minutes. In a breeze the latest resisting of the Herreshoffs would undoubtestly show Figilant the way and win on currected time by from five to eight minotes. With the wind blowing weakly, my cight know an hour, Defrader would find it hard work (nahako off the brougebetterned centreboarder and save the time the has to give away, which has been variously estimated to be anywhere between two and four minutes. The action minutes and wounds which defender will have to give away will and be known until Vaplant and Defender are measured. Definite may not be measured autil Bestember. Vessions may not be more ared at all in the event of Te feasily's undoubted superturity.

Though Infrarier, in her maiden rure, Neturday, July 20th, only beat out l'aplicat over the regular cup course—filteen miles to windward and return—two minutes and forty-five seconds chapsed time, of course—she ought have done much better. In the least out, one untermoury tack was taken by Infrarier which but her at least five minutes; then two seem offer the start for believy to-more hancount, which presentated favoring the hand obserts to the detriment of their full pulling presents.

Defranter's unrepe similition must also be taken into account, for Saturday's rare was practically her first trial in any sort of a investe, and her actic and her regging del nothing but stretch, and stretch. Unablest, on the other hand, was tuned up fit to race for the America's Cop. His might have sailed a lot better—has she rould not have been in better shape to all other preperts.

Variet sharps who matched closely the work of Findani were unanagene in declaring her a factor least by several migrates than in 1985, when she defeated handly Lord Democrat's Uniform II.

There is no disputing the fact that Upriand was ever a fact best in every sense of the word. If, then, she is factor the year by several minutes, a pretty fair and reliable line may be had on Tefranter, and this feet, translated, means that the defender of this America's the this year is a worthy beat in every way, and will take a beating from a security only.

It has been estimated by surfatance across the water that Viellyrer III: in territy flux uninales factor than Erricanus over a city mile course. If this is within ten minutes even of being as then Viellyrer III will prove dangerous.

Not there seems to be every reason to doubt that Visity-in III can bent Helicones or Indity, and in our instance, and that is when the wind holds from and light. And right here we find food for thought in the approaching string-gle for the cap. Whate Indicate countains up maker her infly rig like auto a church, and said like a witch, she is not a gloot by any means in light alon. Of course she is fact and all that, but it is a grove question holded whether she is fuct oneigh to win when the word hiner, moskly at across heads or a caps.

Infraster than far has shown horself to be a smart best in a thresh to windward; emarter, indeed, then Vipoland with a controlment, and this fart has ensued to and of surprise among the near adventor of the controlward type of best. In a running with the wint, bowever, she does not show such a distinct advantage over Vipoland.

It has been shown conclusively in feef-order's trials thus for that also one varry a larger salispread if needed. At present it approximates to the thomas of square fact. By replacing the one-hundred best sold man been with one flow feet larger the arm would be increased our themseld square feet.

Why They Are Not Painted Red.

Panytest bravelers between Chicago and St. Paul and Minneapelis, as well as on the line between St. Paul and Minnespoles and Kansas City, have noticed that the smoke-stacks of the boundies on the Chicago Great Western Rashuny (The Mando Leaf Birnte), which for several years past have been painted red, are pow treated in sembre black

There is a reason for this. Having constantly before them when running, this flambons of red, the engineers were ano meriously becoming chlivious to red as a descending. The disrevery of this by one of the company's superintendents led to an investigation which proved conclusively t' a presenty of a new danger-eigtal or the absent unsent of the red stack. The red stack it is more, emerged to the disapprintment of a few facilities in the advertising department, but only adding greater safety in the flight of the limited express trains on this

How Not To Extend Our Trade.

T is well understood that the Inpanese have a pecultorly friendly feeling toward the United States. This has been demonatrated on repeatedly us to admit at all. In their resentating girtles healtest to us with a confidence which was not exhibited in their dealings with any other Power They have cheery studied pur educational and political Institutions, here familiarized themselves with American industrial methods, and have sought to estabtheir trade relations with us. It is somewhat surprising to been that these Indications of good feeling have not in all cases been not in kind. The Tokia correspondent of the Chicago Record gives some facts which seem to show that our manufacturers are disposed to regard the Japanese with a peculiarly unjustifiable distrust. As me librarytion this writer sintes that, some time since, an agent of the government, an American, was sent to this country to proure bids for nearly one million dollars worth of ates? railway bridges. He was authorized to say that the preference would be given in all cases to American buildiers, if their bids did not exceed by (wenty-five per cost. those of Germany, England, and Belgium. This agent cicital not eral of our principal cities, but was only able to secure estimates from the builders of one, the Laten I am Works. of San Francisco, and their prices were one hundred and four per cent, higher than the lowest hids received from Europe. Some American companies expressed a willingmesc to bid, provided the agent would guarantee them the nork; others required a deposit of money as a preliminary condition, and still others insisted that the specifications and terms of contracts should be charged to edd their particular wishes. That is the say, they were willing to supply the Japanese government with heldges If they were permitted to encurred them according to their own ideas. as in what Japan merbel. It is not surprising that these existoithous of doubt as to the good faith and responsibility of Japan should have proved conterproduce to the agent when he came to make his report to the government. The correspondent adds significantly that more of the objections made by our manufacturers were found in Kunge; There was not a manufacture to England, Germane, or Belgium who did not immp at the contract, and it was finally he to a British congraty,"

Of content it is absured to expect that we will be able to extend our trade in Japan so king as we manifest this spirit of distress as no the integrity of the government and the people, treating them proceedly as a nation of barberians. Not can we outdipute the petablishment of satisfactory business relations so four to in supporting the Japanese contacts we ignore their peruling demands and quadritions, and insist upon constitutes of our says making.

This habit of the American passed acturer has largely operated to our disadeantage in our dealings with the Central and South American countries. The Englishman and the German make it a point to supply Just what the people of those countries need, and is doing so, to respect their business methods; and as a result of this they largely command these desirable markets. Able as we are no produce all forms of manufactures equal to the less produce all forms of manufactures equal to the less produced in the world, it is, to say the less of it, nafortunate that our superfacility in this respect counts for practically acting because of our secsewhat strongast disargued of the distates of commen sense and our disposition to moderate the cummercial integrity of those with whom we have to do.

Hack Writers.

HERE has revently form a good deal of speculation among thereey men and writers for the person as to the person ality of the arthur of a rather engaging article in the July Floran, radial "Combinions of a Literary Hark." It does not seem to us of much importance who would be article provided a but the author says of the experiences to true. And in the main we have no doubt that this is a faithful treaml of a tast experience. As such they are interesting, just as all tradicial partiayals of life are interesting, but these, as each, are not particularly important. Such importance is the confermous contain in to be found in the view that the author takes of his profession. In this clow we believe that he is marraken to that while imagelying its horiships be misconcrived in relations to the public and underrates its possibilities of mediums.

This literary back mys that he has pursued his prefersion of writing to meter for county there come, and that now he cannot average greater gains than fire thousand dollars a year. That we look upon as a looplastur rather. then a shably become, especially in your of his confusion that much of his fiction is poor sort of smill; but as herders not illinself complain particularly as in the landryoury of his gains, only suggesting that view of his carrilogs, it were beet lose to dispute with him on this score. The real amphalad that he imakes against blowers and his profession is that a lack does not write what he would like, but whose he thinks the editors would him. This to doubtless the fact, If it also true that the new who write the editorials for the great dailies the net my absort what they would like to my they make rewelly the organism they are directed to make he the editor-in-chi-I of the proprietor. The look who matributes for the wookfer and monthlior, instead of being too independent from the new who write for the daily pagers in much more independent as in a measure he chooses his autilites his medical of terratural and in only asked to combons to certain gowers! You of policy adopted for the sake of principle and consistency. But on the duity paper the writer is but an anamorosis; an artico pen which the relitor and the owner me for their own purposes without reference to the text, the convictions, or the inclinations of the senter who is ampleyed to do their Induct, there is no professional man who is independent and, who can do so be element. The lawyer count, the clergyman ermot, the physician cannot. Each must do the best he can under the circumstances which control his own inclimations. If this world were filled with active and vigneron men, each one shifting with all his might that which pleased him less, chose would quickly come again. This is a world of congruents, of give and take, and teither the literary line's not any other contributor to the amoremuch or the lastruction of the world must expect to have everything always his own way, and rake for his family at carb ment from year's red to year's red. As a matter of fact, the Knessy hocks in New York, of whom the Forest writte be probably a fulr specimen, are, for the most part, men rather to be several than to be despined. They are engaged on congrued work, for which they are at least renormably paid; they are from to decision disagreeable commissions, and it is most likely that a larger part of their work requires that they should go to pleasant places where they most pleasant persons. Resides this, they often have the apportunity to do good deeds, and oftener stiff to exert, ough their writing, a beneficial social and political infinence. (If course there are exceptions ; some find life a over dream grind, but so a body the horse have no right to complete, even according to the shorting of their representative. Instead of variety a exequitative confession. this limb's energ of five thousand deflars a year and a graving estate to likely by runnings scant others to make into the business and become computitions of him and his rollegglere.

The Waller Case.

The course of the Freezin government in the case of John L. Wafer, or United States Consol at Tamatave Madagnesar, who was extended to targety years imprison ment for treasure is in any the least of it extraordistary. So far as appears the proceedings against Waller had their inspiration one is any serious offense consulted by him for its perhousers resulting from the marked factors symmihim by the Malagassy government in the form of valuable concessions which the French desired to secure. The immediate clarge against him was that four recolvers had been found at his home, and it was claimed that this fact showed him to be disuffected. Our minister to France his repeatedly demanded a copy of the efficiency given at the trial, but in every case he has been rebuffed, and it is the obvious purpeac of the government to embarrase in every way possible the attempts we are making to get at the truth. Meanwhile Mr. Waller is fill in prison at Marseilles, and his wife and eld bleva are in Malagueur, in want. It seems to us that the time has about some when the American government shooks assert as a rule of intercorrse with foreign rations, that every American citizen who may be say where arrested or subjected to personal restraint of any sort, shall be held to be functions, as in the rose of allege-hoffenders under its own has antil proved to be guilty; and that the govremoval by whose sutherity he is arrested or detained will not be permitted to inflict any punishment until the ext done showing him to be guilty has been submitted to us for crassideration. In the present case, France should be notified at open that we do not recognize her jurisdiction in Madagascur, and that she must, without any further temperiting, furnish a written every of the exidence before the military court by which Walter was committed, and in case injustice has been done, make full and antisfactory reparation; and that in the event of her refusal so to do our minister will be recalled and all diplomatic relations. between that republic and surve absolutely augitered. Where the rights of an American ritizen are represent. every remideration of soft respect demands that we should resent a policy of tergiversation and delay is meeting our just demonds.

The True Mission of the Bicycle.

HE whitespread adoption of the bicycle is an instrument of physical exercise is non-instrument of physical exercise is non-instrument abuses are due to a miscounception—or, rather, to a want of conception—or, talled, to a want of conception—or, talled, to a want of conception—or, talled, to a want of conception—or, the tips of our door partitions. We do not believe that its mission is the willing up of "contary" our, or the unit varies accountry at true upwell in the side embrayor to

Unfortunately, evening spring into popularity without audited by the larg examinary period which has proresid the namely growth of all our east-fished games and sports. It had no traditions to help as the proper understanding of its virtues. It emerged suddenly upon or from Europe without pooring its right to existence did not others a rapid means of locateution by individual effect offfrongle we have slove shown that we like it ; nor has it set been proved that the wheel is indispensible to us. an a plus thing or a vehicle. All our offer national games and quotines have serviced, with notain modifications. the supersure lest of time . They exist because their elementat attractions have never not their incress for man. To last or kick a half to you agouil a host, to run, to leap, to ride a borse, to buy, to swim; to also air throw at a mark. have all had for renouries those elements of skill and chance which constitute what is honory heshy as sport. But it has remained for the obselecable contacts to progethe achieve marries of a suddle meninted rod, his feet resting on pedals, his hands on a storring lar, and by means of his bigs, his Sicil, and his bondy to minic blue to projet blaself over mar common muck, up hill and desentiale, on a delicately adjusted, swiftly-ranging machine, of which he at once becomes a part. Thus foresition has astemisted man and upset all provious notions of his dinitations by giring him the power of a horse and it has utilized his limbs in a commer undreamed of some the pilywiral man box horn wiegalically mulich.

The revolation Journal upon us with surprising force. Many riders at once sought to get the most out of themselves and out of their wheels in order to reach the highest attainable limit of speed and distance covered. The "nentser ren was endroit. Now it has long from hill by students of harmon nature that man has envised the hirds their powers of thight, and some thus one inventor has gone reasy in trying to rig a muchine by which humans could sour into the empy bon. The same ambition to improve agon meters, and, in the case of the hierard, to use it as a means of solecoring soon's stillities as a valleting and runroley salmal to the acquiring spirit of the was bundredmiles a day processionary riders. The rider rides less for sport, less for his play stail good, then for a round, so that he permits himself to become merely a racing smelaine, and invariable curries a exclomator. Doubtless this requires grid and cultivates his powers of endurance. In a curtain scase he has alone supportaing heroir, when he has overred a installed notes without dismonstring. But the element of sport and the rescalal principle of sarreise are wanting, and the dust covered, pullful, bedraggied encature, with holher race and the "off-gone" expression of the open swimmer, is fruit a sportache to exette our pity.

It is not sport to the one's physical powers to the point of after exhaust on. That reason to be exercise which compare the body to respond to the trementous strain of physical-culture experts and the electates of common scuss agree that exercise, to be beneficial, abould tax the muscles only up to the normal, never, except to the case of athletes training for a competitive event, abould they be subjected to their maximum strength.

That a bicyclist should ride a hundred miles in a day in order to perform some act of self-merilice or heroiem would be a legitimate application of his bodlly strength. But that he should do as simply for the sake of doing it smacks of the footbardiness of the man who shouts Ningars in a harrel. In neither feat is there anything to challenge our whorintion or enemnand our respect. The professional long-distance riders have been known, some of them, to cover these thousand miles in a month. They represent the highest achievement in wheeling, and they perform an important service in that they have established a limit of physical endurance on a wined. It is reducible for us to know this, just as it is valuable to know the limit of speed in a tretting here or in an eight enrol crew over a four-mile coorsebut that all mon who drive for pleasure should arge in horses at top speed, or that all infremen who row for exereise should. " hit her up." to a ruring gait, is no mure absord. than that an amateur wheelman should famey it is sper or

Let them regard she wheel not us a record semislifug space-month/before fact is an instrument of easy and gratifying metion, which, if stencing used, is a cheep and beneficial aid to good health and a source of great on joy book.

We have with satisfaction that a necessaret has been started in New Orleans for the erection in that sity of a statue of the late General Harrick, one of the forement defembers of the Union in the Civil War. The memory needed for the purpose is to be raised among Confederate veteries. This is the response made by Confederates to the challenge affered by the Union veterous and citizens of Chicago in erecting a manuscraw in that city to the six thousand Confederates who are buried there. There were many grad people who regarded this scretten with serv displayans, and only the broadest charity could comenplate it with real satisfaction, but it will probably be found. that it was consistent in the long run, with the highest patriotism and the best interests of the country.

MONEY compts for a great deaf in British obscious, but it does not count for everything. Character and enoughly are also factors in determining popular results. There were some gratifying illustrations of this fact in the recent elections. Thus, is one of the divisions of Leeds, Colonel. North, the uttrate king undertunk to defeat Mr. Herbert Chabtone, resorting to all the artifiers of the demagague; and spending money with the atmost proligality for the corruption of the electorate. Note thousanding all this, however, Mr Ghelstone was elected, though his majority was reduced from the election in 1982. The electors of Lords evidently do not agree with Lord Rosebery, who researly bestewed the leanure within his gift upon ecrtain rich subodies, in their extinue of the claims of wealth, Tim town of Bomesteed, Pennsylvania, the seems of the fumous riots at flie Carnegle steel works, in July 1982, is siways progressive and usually interesting. High O'Donnell, leader of the strikers, who is blacklisted to every true and steel mill in the United States, is publishing a redical workingman's paper, numeleded, under the very shadow of the armor plate shops. The churches of the town are taking an institutional features, three Protestant denominaflone having tennia-courts in the church grounds, and the rivalry is intense. Championship games are now being played. Adjoining Homestead, on the South Side, Pittaburg, is another " new " elerreb. One of the Presby terian. enngregations recently arminged a sporting programme for its Sunday school picuic, features of the affair being a balloon-ascension and a lose-ball mutch between the young mun's Bible class and the school officers. Another advertised feature was a foot-full sums between young women.

Tuxa far during the present season there have been few disturbances in the relations of labor and capital. While there have been strikes in one or two manufacturing industries in Philisdelphia and at other points, and in the Marquette (Michigan) from region, the number of operatives thrown out of work has not been at any time great. So far as can be judged, there seems to be a better understanding between employers and employed, and this may possibly be accounted for by the fact that the former are voluntarily raising wages in all the more important branches of manufacture. Sourcely a day passes now that we do not learn of some such advance. There is no more practifying sign of the time-than this restoration of cardial goodfeeling between capitalists and those whom they employ, long-sustained nervous and muscular exertion. All the If our great corporate and manufacturing concerns were at all times to deal with absolute justice with those dependent upon them, there can be no doubt that strikes uid become less frequent, and that the business interests of the country would be much more prosperous. There are, of engrse, some workingmen whose discontent can perer be appeared by anything short of an absolute aurrender to their arbitrary demands, but the great body of our industrial classes demand only fair play, and when that is assured them, can be relied upon to maintain mutually helpful relations with those who give them employment.

> It was suggested some time since by a Democratic newspaper in South Carolina, that the proposed amended constitution, which is presently to be solunited to the pople of that State, should take effect if sixty five thousand visites were cost in its favor, without reference to the number recorded against it. This extraordinary suggestion had its origin, of course, in the desire of the white autocmey to perpetuate their suptomary by the disfranchisement. of the blacks. In South Carolina the Denoversts have another plan for we complishing the same result. The efficient of that State will volv in April next upon a proposed amendment to the State constitution which finite the offfrage to pursons who can road and write, or who pay taxes on two bondered declare' worth of property. The avowed purpose of this proposition is to deprive the negro of the Iroschise. In view of the fact, however, that the amendment might be defeated at the pells, it contains a provise which gives the next Legislature the right to modify, change, or amond the amondment, so far as the suffrage is concerned, without admitting the matter to the pepalar your. In other words, the scheme is to invest the Legislature with absolute power to negative the will of the people. if it should confound the proposed plan of disfranchisement The Republican State Committee, we are glad to see, has determined to make a vigorous energeign against this amendment. There are many Republicana, no doubt, who favor the proposed adaptitional qualification, but it is scarcely possible that may fair-soluded white will give his support to a proposition so heatile to the principles of popular government so that which the Democrary work he ingraft upon the fundamental law

"The parents and by two and day to day "

Example of American Officer Horford, or might to know him, at least through his funny verses and drawings that are senttered through Life and Sr. Vedelia and other periodicale. Mr. Robert Bridges, in the list number of The Box Boyer, talks very pleasantly about him, and manages to give an excellent improsting of his amosing reconstriction and said personality - no easy thing to do, or all who know his with a class moptal relativesses will real lze. You mover know where to put your hand so Herford. Agunatively or fiberally, he choles you both mentally and physically. As fieldges says, if you want to find him you call him up on the telephone at the Players. They will tell you to call up Hotel Griffon, and the Griffon will say, Call up the 19. Beinsph. Bestim", and even then you can't get hold of him. I know, for I've heen trying for a month. It is the same way with his montal self-always on the jump shifther, thisher, everywhere, until it is impossible to keep pare with his whimsies and quor conceits. finit to rare continential moments does one really get at hire; then to find one of the kindlest and post repultive of men-gratie, considerate, and instellish. His work-way's of the first of which has been collected and published recently by the Century Company under the little of "Artful Antics" - is full of a quite delightful humor and charm. For up to triffing it has an unusual distinction and much of the same quality in it as in Stevenson's " Child's Garden of Verses"-the quality of simplicity, and a sympathy and understanding with simple things. His little drawings and skytches are full of the same thing, and verse and picture always completely supplement one another. Before distaling I must add one of his whimsiculities to the that that Bridges gives in his little appreciation. It is the first rule in a heak of eliquette for young ladies that Herfund contemplates publishing at some distant day. "Dibstantes should never wear comage-bouquets on an empty domach." Another which is in the list I mention, but which is too good to have not whenever there is opportunity to get it in, is: "Some men are born bables, some achieve inhies, and some have bables thrust upon them." It was Herfurd who suggested to a Shakespeare Baren controreminish that the whole matter he sattled by attributing the part's works to either Sharm or Balupare !

The defeat of Mr. John Morley is the recent Parliamentary elections had probably a deeper algoritesory than the failure of any other single candidate, though in view of the overstacking Conservative victory it has been almost test sight of. Standing as be ful for a seat from Newmatle-on-Type, the birthplace of the famous Liberal programme, his pro-clertine shows how hopeless were the chances of Liberal success from the beginning. A majority is a tickle thing at best, but surely, if not to be counted on in one's stronghold, where then! Newcastle has been his stronghold for twolve years, but falled him at last and elected his opposest by a thousand. In a little speech after the announcement of the result. Mr. Morley said, "This is one of the most tremendous battles ever fought in any British constituency, and I greatly regret to say that we have been defeated. But we have before shown that we know how to hear triumph with moderation, and I hope that we shall now show that we know how to bear defeat with cheerful courage." A very characteristic speech from one of the foremest men in British politics, whose loss the Commons will feel keenly. Curiously enough, two other men of literature were ignominiously "turned down," Mr. Rider Huggard and Mr. Augustine Birreil Imagine -if such a stretch of the imagination is not impossible during the dog-days-Mt. Of the making of magazines there is no oud, and it is no longer the easy publish of a few years ago that is presented to the ammivarous rouder as a glacers over the offerings of the news-stands. Then there were three or four at most; now they are legion, with tempting reductions of price for built, and really selection is a matter of some bewilderment. The Barbelor of Arte's the latest addition to the long list, and a very co-ditable and pleasing our it is. In its long, mornow, greenish moor it backs, as some owe has said. "as if it had been published for the last fifty years," and though it has but reached its second month. I should like to think that it will see half a century of life. It is a magazine primarily for university men, and is conducted by Mr. John Seymour Wood, Mr. Walter Camp. and Mr. E. S. Martin, all well-known " varsity" men, and well able to make it valuable. If there is any fault to be found it is with the rather millionable prepunderance of Vale matter, but as Mr. Stedman is me likely to write one other commencement sele, and as the rist reminiscences of turious New Haven alumni are not likely to run on hirever, we can afford to be estimated for the present with such articles as Mr. Corbin's on Oxford and Mr. John Jay Chapman's on Michael Angeli's somets, and the several relline rial departments. The Barbelor of Arts deserves well not only of college men, but of all who ease for a good maga-Large Evas Smerran.

A Wonderful Adaptation.

A streets of mine, who was for accord yours to the service on the Western pinion, may me a worr interesting account of the regularful adaptation of the plant and animal life of that wethen to their surroundings. I have never seen it had down in the books :

"Done in the sandy, and plants if western Texas, New Mexico, and Arzema, the carft are the only plants that remain green and degrishing in the summer season. As they are succuand they much be greatly eater for the Lerbiy ents animals, such as the wild notice and deer tribe, and would seem be exterminated.

Po guard tienselves against this wholesale destruction they have developed a partiest cotout in free of sharp bothed some, that branch and its every direction, forming each a complete protection that no large manual canget at the body of the plant."

But the really morves as ford (the truth of which my friend affirms) is the adaptive imitation of one of the small animals to those plants.

"The burned lissed, or morned tord as it is commonly missamed, is abundant. As it would be an easy prey of enmittorius birds, it, else, has been forced to protect steel by a cusuing fraud. It has developed spinse on its head and all up and down its back and tail, in exact buttation of the spines of the cricit. And confusely has it carried the instation that the spines, all over the body, actually blossess out during the eason the carti are in bloom, the flowers taking on the shape and color of the species of racti omong which the Barri lives.

The most benishiful sight I ever saw," said tay friend, " nas on a bright norming when there was a light dow. The samily plain was covered with the little dusay, brown unimals, durting about, such in full become the decalytimed flowers sparkling with the dewelvings Now they form great masses of color, then sentter in all directions, pressing and repressing, a brillian flashing of order like an Arctic aurora. It was a living, treathing, annuated flowergarden, to be seen newhere else on suctic. It were well worth a trip to the far West just for one bear of a scense like that."

The Cotton Situation at the South.

Twent is a world of interest in the scenn eltimation at the Postle. This is the year of all years, that was to mark great revolutions on the broad and specifical vetting plantations from the Carolinas to Texas. This prodution, so do-Observing phonost to several great conventions of rotton growers, was to consist in a general and material reduction of acrosps. As an outcome of these conventions, hold in Jackson, Mindacppi, New Orleans, and Atlanta early in the year, the American Cotton Greeney Association was formed, which assumed the great task of organizing a peneral terrement in every musty of every notice-growing blate to skillgate the farmers to plant leavation. Of come the impulse that prompted such determination was the runners and disserves effort of the great sloup to cotton prices the past wawn. Realising that setting passers, even with the improved methods of modern times, le grown at a profit at fire crate a years!, the farmers, as long blusted to their own interests in the excostra production of cutton, angult with some what more experimen than ever before some oneestal place for codestion. It was no new power. On the mestrary, it is an old song at the North-"Out down the crop." But there ned to be more excuestness this year, doubtless that to the frightful plungs which the correct took lest sensor. The trouble which his always laquided similar movements has been that the planter individually, hearing so mosts of the movement to reduce, would privately results to increase, "because," he would remen to himself. " If the other fellow decreases, the price will be higher, and I'll pone in on the top wave with my increase of persinction," Of course the result was that few of them ever reduced at all, and fast year the prestuction was overwiselising, colton becoming the curse of the Bouth, rather than its king.

The scene so accurately depicted is presented daily at thee rearts, and, when arrivals are few and time "hangs leavily on the hands" of the established guests, is the event of the presing hours. If the new arrival be a male, the segurness with which his signature in the register is scanned by the younger mambers of the equatic nex is almost tomoltoms to expression; if the newcoper he a woman, the anxiety to escertain whence she comes and who she is is somercely ine scate, but is age to manifest itself in more critical fashion. There are people in the world who count for nothing at all in the eyes of those who know them, but who have an importance just at the moment when, having registered at a summer hotel, they are led away to the apartments resigned them, followed by the scrutinizing game of groups of inquisitive folk, which most fully compensate for all the ordinary slights of an unknolly world.

Searly forty-one years have possed since the charge of the Light Brigade, and the survivors of that memorable ride can almost be counted opon one's lianors. Survivors of Balaklava. there are in plenty, but of Lord Cartigan's troopers only a few are left. One of these is John Harrison, No. 1,461. The number legiven here because every British soldier has a regimental comber, and it will belo to fix Mr. Harris. n's identité.

John Harrison, No. 1,465, lives at Delhi, Delayare County, this State, where he follows his secupation of graining, descripting, and paper hanging. He was been in the city of Claster, Englass), on January Ist, 1927. He served an apprenticable in his trade, and apinstell in the Flort Royal Druguous on April. 10th, 1854. He was discharged at his own request in order to take part in the Civil War in this country. He trucked New York on May 4th, 1961, and when a good opportunity offered, a few weeks later, he colleted in Company I, Seventy-first Beginnest New York, Captain Bellimp. Fighting the Chinch-bug.

Fon years the revages of the chiech-bug post bare serely resulted the Western farmer. When the weather is dry and all the conditions favorable, large areas of wheat, cyr. outs, harley, corn, and grasses are devastated by those tion brown.

It has been known for some time that there is special instruction in the distribution of the disease. In either case, low boxes of damp surth are necessary for the inoculation of the healthy bugs. In these boxes wheat is growing in the sail which has been placed in them, and a large number of chinch-bugs, several thousands of them, are set loose in the box and the disease sprinkled in a fine dust over them. The buses are about three feet long by two wide, and perhaps eighteen inches deep.

Whom the huge are well infected with the disense they are taken out of the boxes and scattered among the healthy bugs at the edges of the fields or wherever the bags have put in an appearance. They carry the disease to the healthy logs, and the result is encemous mortality. One bug can convey the dismer to a very large number of other bugs, and each one of this very large mumber can, in turn converit to make others, so that the disease in a very few days advances in a marvelous progression.

In quite a number of testances in different parts of the country the fourbility of thus squenting this disease has been demonstrated in an experimental way, but, with the possible exreption of one or two stations, this is the most elaborate attempt ever made in America to erudicate the disease on a large scale. The results which here been attained have been very entirefactory. The present season has been an a disease common to certain towers, a fongue disease, so to speak, which, whon communicated to the chieck-legs, produces oftoness death. It was known, also, that one infected loop would convey the disease to a very large number of others. The reactiful circumst in the discuss is a minute space which makes its presurance upon certain lamen. When it is deposited on the chiefeling it postrate the outer covering, forces that's down beat the long by means of fine roots or Statuents, and then works steeld set to the surface again, buring on the surface more spores, which, when breaked off on to other bugs, extend the discu-

It is a very easy thing to develop the spares of this disease if you only give there some fit medium to grow on, but to develop them in usely promount aparethins that, properly distributed, they may deal destruction to a State full of chilarle bugs, that, indeed, is a far different thing. And yet according along this very time is now under war in the State of Milian was, which for coffered much in the past from the ravague of this post. Professor Offic Lagger, who occupies the chair of notomology at the State Experiment Station of the Minnes. State University, the agricultural codege of the mirrority, firmly persuaded that this discuscould be as distributed among the bugs that immerse quantities of grain readd for saved in chinch-bug years, secured from the Legislature had wanter on appropriation sufficient for allowing the work of experimentation and gray tical demonstration to be carried out on a large scale. The station was replied with an clabt of apparatus, and in the carry spring the work of cultivating the discuss began,

As much of the disease as could be light on the point of a cambric needle was the startingpoint. This was placed in one of the medicin for perpugating the spores. These mediums count of corposed and leef-brith, sliced potatis, or agar agar, the latter a sort of Japanese sen-word with a printinous substance which affords an excellent medium for the cultivation of the spore. The fungus reproduces with wonderful regidity, and the station now has a capacity of one knowled large fruit-jury full a.

This dust or fungus growth, the disease itself, which this these jees, is removed from the jury and packed in small the boxes about an inch in meter. They come are must out either direct to the increase, or to some mire of a corps of young constally most one in the Northwest, and beare there has been less demand for the disease cam, the wet weather acting as a chinch-bog deberred; still, at the writing duly Why, from vigity to and humbred betters per day are reoriend at the station, from furniors in whose vicinity the bugs have shown themselves, making requests for the shipment of the discuss.

Professor Lagger has an assutant in his work. in the person of Mr. R. H. Pettit, who has recouldy concluded an extended course in seinstiffaagriculture at Carnell. W. S. HARWING.

Huxley and the Evolutionists.

Ir a trained scientist were asked to name the forement of English arientific most of resent years for would probably bring forward the names of Lord Kelvin, Cayloy, Clerk Maxwell, in) certer, Rainigh, and others,

If an ordinarity well-road American were sked to asser the three leading English scientists his roply would certainly be that Tyndall and Buxley were two of them; and, if he happeopl to be one of the massrous readers who ditain their science-reading from the Hymlar Secure Monthly, Spencer would be the third,

It was those three men, all of great, but not of the highest, ability, who, more than any others, have forced the doctrine of evolution, originated by Durwin, into the prominence which it lodds to-day; and it is their names which are used by the advocates of lesser note who wish to rate authorities of the eres weight in support of their progressive bloss. Of these near Spearer is the only one new living ; Hunley having died in July of the present year, Hurley excupied a position between the other two men just mentioned. Tyndail was a pkysleist, an experimenter whose delight it was to expials the work of other and abler investigators in the fields of original research to " conly popular but scientific audiences. A man of forcile ingenuity rather than great originality. be was not recognized as a leader by scientific men of the bighest rank, although he entoyed their friendslop and confidence. His position as a physicist was somewhat the same as that of Proctor as an astronomer. It was Tyndall's general and popular reputation waich lent weight to his words when he opened his mouth or mod his pers on the question of evalution.

Probably no person of really high scientific atfaiuments was influenced in any way by what Typidall had to say on this subject.

Resbert Spencer has attained the prominence universally conceded to him in the field of ubilescohy. He has, therefore, assurached the question of evalution in an entirely different unnmer and spirit from that of Tyndall. His is much more of a speculative view of the subject, and consequently has a school of followers rather than a wide acceptance.

Huxley came between the two in this respect be united the methods and accuracy of a scientist in physiologist; with the speculation, or, rather, in his case, the combative and argumentative methods of a philosopher. He was a man of powerful intellect, and would have become eminent in any line of work which he undertook. His chose, however, to relimpable his audoubted prospects for a high rank as a specialist, to become what in a business life we would term a "promoter," but what in his special case was the championing of evolution. As he himself puts it, he devotes his courges "to the popularization of science; to the development and organization of scientific education; to the cadless sories of battles and skirmishes over evolution; and to untiring opposition to that ereledantical spirit, the clericultime, which in England, as everywhere else. and to whatever denomination it may belong. is the deadly enemy of science."

In the development of scientific education he was, perhaps, at his best, and his public oddresses were hardly surpassed. The respect paid to this branch of his work was very high in England, and commanded the attention of the best minds there. This is well shown in the case where he was invited, twenty from yours ago, to write the opening article of the Best number of the English journal Nature, which has attained such a onlyne position among journals, and which has shelled all attempts at the establishing of counterparts in other countries. Again and year he was invited to write the article marking the quarter of a century of such successful social development. But he was principally known to us in Amortea through his almost rubed denone action of the church, in which he showed as tauch prejudice as the most highest reviewants; On this account, too, he made encodes in his own country, where his masterful combativasion was deployed by scientists and opposed by orefe-PRANK WALDO, PR. " Defender's" Good Points.

Tits docking of Defender, on the 21th ultimo. at Robbins, Eric Basin, was a notable ocranion, attracting to the scene yachting ouperts, eaval officers, and marine regimers by scores. As the water was slowly drawn off and her shapely lines became more in evidence. exclamations of admiration were beard on every hand. When finally she stood revealed. even the most cold blooded of "old salts" could not refrain from words of prace.

"She is an out-and-out fin heel," said the knowing ones, and the opinion found unen-mon-support. With the hull proper-drawing only six feet of water, she resembles strikingly a great cance, showing a very easy form to drive, with not even a suspicion of the lard sections found in Colorin; her senter-line, for instance, running as slick and as clean as a whistle fore and aft, rendering the beam moderate and the bilger and quarters meet in the ex-

Naturally, being an out-and-out fix, she is out away in an alarming fashion, the great rains to the stern just being very conspirators. Then, too, the bettom of the keel, instead of being straight, like VegetteFs, is shaped recker fash-Thus there is not a straight section in it, and it might be likened to a loos. This feature, together with her transmisses rate fore and aft, explain, of course, her ability to "come about" with the quickness of Lallyrie II., whose forte to this direction was favorably comupon to 190; and gave for a great advantage over Vigilant in windward work.

In the first race Defender, by covering the distance in three hours, eightness nimutes, forty seconds, established a record for sleep yachts over a windward and locward course fifteen onlies and return. In the last race between Uniform and Volkyrus II. in the 1865 series for the America's Cup, over the same sort of course with the wind through fully six knots an hour barder, Vigilant covered the distance in three bours, twenty four minutes, thirty-wise ecounds, Valkyrie being two minutes, thirteen seconds behind, actual time, and forty accounts, corrected time; Vigilant allowing the English boat one minute, thirty-three seconds.

Thus Defender beat this 1805 record by five minutes, fifty-nine seconds. Vigiliant also beat Let time by three minutes, fourteen seconds. These figures would seem to prove the contr tion that Vigiland is not only a much improved boat, and faster by several mirrors than in less, but that Defender is a good fifteen minutes faster than Volkyric II. over was.

WHAT A CANADIAN BOATING AUTHORITY THINKS OF CORNELL.

Mr. S. H. Thompson, one of the Canadian carsmen to compete in the recent Benday regatta, and an acknowledged authority on rowing, gave it as his opinion of the Cornell crew tint had that not been overtrained they would have defeated the Trinity Hall eight, to whom they actually sucrumbed on the second day of the lest races for the Grand Challenge cup. This opinion is quite in the with my remarks upon Cornell's showing against the English

Mr. Thompson had every opportunity to study Cornell's work, and his opinion, to contentos, must be complicated of value. But Mr. Thompson is not about to nextiling Cormal's pear showing to overtraining. The Corsed men themselves will take affidavit to such effect; so will C. S. Francis and their courts. Charles Courtney. Mr. Thompson further goes on in my that Leander would probably have Donton Cornell.

But what Leander may or may not have done, this Camelian authority opines that the fust Trinity Hall eight would have succumbed. Is this cod an lonest, a fuir recommendation of the Cirpell strake so university condensed? As I have had nevasion to remark, the Cornell stroke, Danigh not the ideal stroke, is, in the liands of the Cornellians, a get-there stroke, and one hard to less.

Despite criticism, Cornell will stick to her stroke, and it is predicted right here and now that Cornell will expense the creakers next year whom she mosts Harrard. On such occusion the Ithaca boys will show not only that they can row a fast four miles, but fluish erroug-

The Bannock Indian Troubles.

YOR everal Indian treather in the Jackson's Hele country of Wyoming appear to have originited over the question of the frusting rights of the Pannock Indiana. Under the treaty by which these Indians were located on their reservation they were given the right to hunt on the asserspire lands of the United States. The laws of Wysasting, however, dray them this right. The Indiana remotily killed game upon How heals, as they cheerly had a right to do, and sown arcested. On their way to juil accounters of them were shot on the pretense that they were trying to swape. There upon the Indiana gathered to the number of two bandred or three hundred and refund to estions to limit reservation in Idades. - Reports were sent abrend that they had butchered all. the entitiers in the Jackney's Bode district, and General Coppinger, communiting the departnext of the Platte, and the Ninth ordered Cavalry and a detachment of infantry to the were of danger. The early reports, however, seem to have been greatly exaggirated, and in any event the disturbance will be really apppresent, the Barrie to being a small tells. Late seconds say that orders have been issued for the arrest of the settlers who took part in killing the red men, on the clarge of murder.

The country around Jackwa's Hole and the Telem Bangs is in the Booky Mountains, and in broken land, with thep valleys and cutions, and high mountains with precipitons sides. The Bemorks live largely on the germ, which is fairly phentical around their reservation, and countries distor, rathits, some olk and small Charles.

English Workingmen and Protection.

HE general election in England lose developed many new and unexpectof fortures, as well as some extraordinary surprises. Among these men features is one which mortie some little allegation in the Culter States. in view of the attitude and policy of the Republican party toward the toriff. England, or everybody known is a facetrade country. There are custom better duction on perhaps a source of articles. All these, bowever, are admittedly articles of becary, and the duties imposed upon them are for extense-Since the fifther England has been trying the anperiment of free tende, and has been trying it more wholeheartestly and comprehensively than any other country in the world. Clean things are claimed for the experiment, but that it is not altogether satisfactory, and that the question of protection in England is not a closel one, la shown by the way to which the policy of protection has been brought forward during the fate election campaign. Advocates of a teriff for revenue only would do well to fook with some care into the reports of election meetings is the English industrial constituencies. They would then learn that English people are not entirely at rest on the subject of protection, but are more disturbed about it thus they have been since the days of Cobles and Peul.

As less been more then once explained in Laxure's WERKEY, the farming interest in England has long been demanding predection from American and colonial conpetition. For some time it was only the farners who hinter that, after all, free trade was not an entire success. Now, however, the ery line been taken up by other interests, and usually not by the employers, but by the workpeople. This has been especially the case in the great manufacturing county of Lancashire. In your gone by Lancashire was noted the world over for its from and its winc. It is still noted for those products, but Lancoshire wire in many lustances is now no longer made from Lancashire iron. Iron rode for wire-drawing are now imported in immense quantities from Germany, with the result that men in the wire trade are ody partially employed, and are earning wages much below those they received ten years ago. At one time Laurashire wire-drawers paraed wages almost twice as high as those poil other artisms, such as muchine shop engineers and corporaters and joiners. Nowadays landreds of wire-drawers are earning wages very little higher than those paid to makillish they laborers in England Rightly or a rough, the uses attribute this falling off to unrestricted competition with continental countries like Belgium and Germany; and at the election the wire-drawers, before giving their rates, sought specific pledges from the Parliamentary combilates that if elected to the House of Commons-they would do all in their power to prevent German and fleigium from and wire being used in the telegraph department of the post-office, and in our works paid for out of the municipal or imperial treasuries

LESLIE'S WEEKLY.

What these piedges mean meals me explanation. They mean protection pare and simple. Much the same kind of complaint was made at the elections by the English paper mill work people. Rundreds of English or respapers import their paper from the continent. The few newspapers which do not do so, and use Enclish made goods, attraction the fact on the front page of every issue in lettering absent as large as the title of the raper itself. The editor of the Mandester Guardien, the most important English shift paper printed out of London was at the general election a Liberal candidate for a Parliamentary sent in one of the industrial divisions to Lancashire, and was subjected to a hostile demonstration at one of his electhin meetings, owing to the fact that his Fory opposite had published far and wide the statement that the Menchester Guardian was printed on paper made alread, and that its owners, while deriving an immune revenue from Lancable people, contributed little or making to Lancashine teals. The statement was altogether without fromdarlies, but the fact that it are most industriously circuhad when the editor of the Goardon sought the political suffrages of the Lourishire working citates affants the ment algorithman fundration of the state of feeling in some parts of Engined on the question of the desirability of tariffs for the production of home industries. At Newpostle the Tory cambidates who opposed Mr. John Morley gave the most couplastic plediges in favor of thir trade. Home Industries were much more discussed at Newcostle than either home rule or tim House of Lords; in Lact, they were the dominant imperization contents there.

surgical treatment. In the matter of skilled operators, men with internalismal reputations in the highest and most progressive transfer of melical segme, and the number of our hospitals. New York limbs London, Paris, and Vienes. Perhaps the most striking and significant feature of the internal organics of the Indication is in the tradent-autor system, and for more is it serviced to so high a stale of perfection so in the New York Hospital in West

Fifteenth Street, established by royal grant of George III. in 1771. This venerable society, with its long and honorable carrier of usefulness, has a corps of lifty of these young ladies, and no one who has been cliber a keen observer and visitor, or a pulient studying the details of cause and effect, in one of the wards for a short period will find it difficult to determine that a good nurse is more than half the batthe for pure and restoration to health and usefulness

There is, in our opinion, to hold of employment which offers greater opportunities to women than this of the trained mire. Let us consider it. After having undergone a two years' tultion and training at the hospital (in the varisur words), to which she has only obtained admission by a competitive examination as to morality, high school educathan, attractive manners, and pleasing exterior, only lifteen out of seventy-five applicants from all parts of the continest are permitted to enter upon their novitlate. The labor of these two years is severe both mentally and physically, and movers twelve out of Iwenty-four hours duily, the year round. After her two years course she is obliged to leave the hospital, having received wages advancing in amount according to her period of service, and her diploms as well. It is then that she is ready to heavure murse to private periods on recommendation of the bospital authorfiles, or the many physicians with whom the has come in contact. Her income then ranges from bredge hundred to two thousand deliars a year, white her profession leads her actions great seas to many lands, and bey life conward is one. of reasonable luxury and runtent. These young belies, earlying in age from twenty to thirty live, are noticeable for their speech and grammatical purity of language. They are modest, anotherwise, but gorial in manner, and are always at your bedeide when occasion requires. Differing from other employments, they have a humane and even a tender interest in their duty work, and it is to be remarked that they are importful in their treatment of the bumblest inherer or the richest or must celebrated person under their care. The late of the pottent who stands on equal chance between life or death is, in the cast majority of more, to the hands of the Iminor move.

in the last offices years there has been a cast improve ment in hospital construction, and also in the pre-cipilism. and apparatus of the medical and surgical mants. The woulde of these implications has aborbeen greatly augmented. by large insitvidual bequests, and several of them are almost self-enclasining. New Yorkers may well be proud of the eminence which our lespital system has attained, the cuttodicity of its service, and the seaso and extent of its meriphess, both in its relation to individuals and the progresa of medical artrace.

A Mascot of the Alphabet.

OW often the add side of life tempts one to yield an turb-and it will always green feater any city-to-the dist superstitions instinct that there may be securifying after all, inback, in coincidences, in the alrraculation of the stars! For inmaner, the letter is is a little thing. perhaps the most insignificant bit.

of assoilty in the whole alphabet; yet consider what a great part it has played in the names of many of the most murked men of this ecutury.

The first in whose name it sounds like a dominant note Is Naperbers. In his mour it was both Alpha and Omega. Wellington, tree, who turned the this of history at Waterice, bad the better. Next, the great part of that " stores. and decay" period, who described himself as "the growt Napoleon of the realms of rhytise"-to wit, Land Byronpresented it not only in the end of his title, but in that of his family name, George Gordon, Morrover, when he inherited the Noel source through his mother he inserted the Northefore the Gordon, thus arquiring another n. Then consider some of the other names with a final n. There is Tennyam, the greatest English past since Shelley, with three wit. There is Derwin. Gindstone too, has it plannetically. Benjamin Disraeli, Lord Benomaticki, Ind more than his share. Mazini whose Napoleon the Little regarded as his most susceful and dangerous political fached this letter. So did Talleyrand, who served and may toped so many moders.

Countag nearer home, it is a excluse fact that ten of one twenty times Presidents have had the final a of Byron, Napoleon, and Wellington, and eight others, somewhere in their comes, have but the letter. Several, like Byeon have been three a pure ;- for example, Mortin You Buren, Audrew Jidspan, and Benjamin Hatrison. Nine have hed two as. If Mr. Tilden had received the office there would have been another. Histor just missed buying the mystic heter as a terminal. Had his name been spelled in the aki way filhin, might be have won't Only the store, of everyesu tell and they, unfortunately, while still at the obtstand, are no larger in the library business

Among near of the present time whose more are enriched by this letter, which were to invite the stroke of Presidential lightning, there are Allisemal Iowa, Morton of New York, Sherman of Ohio, Gorman of Maryland, Camerror of Pennsylvania, who is just now a free affect favor its for executive honors. Then proble conspicuous there is Benjumin Tillman, whom success is possibly sine to the fact that he is a three to man-and derry Simpson, the sorkless Populist statesman and a host of others—seventy two of them in the House of Representatives alone—who have the final n. It is unfavorable to Governor McKintey that he has the letter only in the syllabile form, but then Mr. Cleveland has it even less conspicuously, and it seems to have been a potent factor in the shaping of his curver. Of a truth this letter n is a sorecver among consonants, the spacet of the alphabet.

A "Liberal" Campaign.

It is becoming apparent that the opponents of the socalled "Hilbertal and butherous Sunday restrictions" of the Excise law of this State propose to make a vigorous compaign to secure the election of a Legislature favorable to the repeal of these statutes. Steps have already been taken to organize their sympathizers in all the populars communities of the Sinte, with a view to an aggressive movement. The baders of this movement frankly confess that there is no prosibility of a modification of the laws unless the people of the rural districts can be interested to that end. It may well be doubted, we think, whether the country constituencies will asspood with any degree of exthusbase to the appeal of these city organizations. The contention that the boxs in squestion are an invasion of personal life-rty, and that they deprive the masses of our citizens of instituable rights, is so obviously unfounded that no intelligent voter will be decived by it. They may not reflect public opinion, and their subservment may bear heavily upon everaln people, but they do not invade any man's rights. Of course Senator Hill and the Democratic leaders will seek to utilize the existing opportunity for the furtherance of partisan ends. They will not scraple to ally themselves with the law breakers, and to promise any and every possible modification of existing laws which any element of the electorate may downed. There are possibly, some Hepublicus who would be quite willing to perjectnate the party supremney in the State by emmeding everything that the liquor dealers and their sympathieres may exact. But there is no danger at all that the masses of the Republican party will consent to any such surreculor. Presibly some modification of the so-called Suinday law may be destrable; but when that modification is made it will be done not at the instance of men or of a class who are opposed to all law which limits or reserving the victors treaking cles of human nature, but in obedience has sentiment based upon an intelligent conception of the best and highest wein!

Ms. Host evidently has not abundanced the notion that he can be elected to the Presidency. It is surprising that so ustate a man abund so informative the possibilities of his enterer. The pumple of the Culted States have me use, just new, for such a man as Senator Hill, whose sympathics are always with the ricious and defending temberature of our life, and whose state-mountains is keyed to the toward moral standard. He-sides, Mr. theveland is a lion in his way. The shadow of Mr. Cheveland standard has highest Mr. Hill's Presidential ambition in the past, and it will constitute to do so to the end of the chepter. Mr. Hill may plan and plot and dream, but his supleations will come to manghi.

A SUMBER of somewhat prominent Eastern people are left in a rather embarrassing situation, as the result of a recent decision of the Suprema Court of the Territory of Oklahoma. Owing to the facilities afforded by the heal engris of that Territory for obtaining divorces many persons have invoked their bely in aumbring the marriage bond-some with reason, and some for no reason at all. Most of these divorces have been granted by projecte justices. The Supreme Court has now decided that thesejustices have had no jurisdiction since August 1993, and that, consequently, all divorces granted since that time are null and void, and all subsequent americans of the porties concerned are highman. Among the persons who now find themselves amenable to the law are bankers, brokers, newspaper folk, and some prominent swiety women. The only may in which these people can escape the entanglements in which they have involved themselves is by obtaining from Congress a millibration of a bill passed by the has Oklahoma Legislature, which proposed to legalize all probate-court divurers.

The recent belian trembles in the Jackson's Hole period Wyoming may, after all, serve a useful purpose in calling attention to the fact that the white settlers who brought on the difficulty by unwarranted interference with the Indians are themselves offenders against the laws. The region in question is a great hunting ground south of Valloustone National Park, and it is precisely from this point that prochers have habitually entered the park and committed depreciations in killing off the buffale which the government has endeavored to protect. The inference is that the whites who have settled just across the line, on the southern timber reserve of the park, have no rights there any more than the Inclines, and if such should turn out to be the fact upon investigation, it would be the duty of the government to expel them at some. So far as appears, the Bannock indicate have not been disposed to have some. While they have always been hunters, they have of late years become agriculturists to some extent; and if all the truth were known; it would probably be found that they are quite as law additing as the white settlers who provoked the recent cuttistion.

Tue attempt to establish a colony of Southern blacks in Liberta has turned out as me expected. It will be remembered that some ninety serve rethroids felt these shows in March lot, under distinct pickers that upon their arrival in Liberia they would each nevter twesty five arms of hand, with all the tools necessary for its rultivation. Bost of these colonists were collected in Alabama. Several membereaf the expellither have just made their way home after enturing all surts of familibles, and bring the information that a sear; of their commutes died from fever immediately agen limiting; while others perioded from actual startution to providen what or laving been made for their numbers. These people were of course, deluded to the representation of artiful agents, who expected in some way to posts by the proposed colonization, and who played upon the imaginations of the Ignorant tergrers. Their experferne only affords moster Illustration of the fully of attempting to translate American blacks to the inhagitable shares of Liberia. Their condition here, however great may be their disabilities, is infinitely man abeinghis than it one ever be under any a lease of volcalization which may be attempted.

It has been a favorite contention of Investrale news. papers that the probysive system silmulates suplialistic couldness and tensor which are projude tal to the interests. of the general public. A practical renumentary upon the fallacy of this blow is furnished by the treem organization. in the South of a resistant real tract backed by fifty millions of capital, and representing the seven chief mining districts of four States. The duty no coal has been reduced from secondy five to forty-five scate per time. The offert of that teduction, together with the general production of busiieus, was disastema in the real mining industries of the States in question. It is sold that tout has been seld from sixty-eight to eighty cents per too, and if ther is a fact it be easy to see that the business was have been cuttled on at a loss. The effect upon the princer is seen to a gradual decrease in wages, notil the male is now stated to be lower than it has ever been before. It thus appears that it is not protection but so-called tariff reform which residedirectly to the formation of from and the destruction of fudividual enterprise. The mirrors of the great Southern combine will be, of course, an Increase in the price of rout to consummers, and expectable to manufactories. This however, would not be regarded as a serious coil, if along with it there should be a restoration of wages to a fiving standard. without any beardings licerose boths cost of manufactured products. The intel and iron interests of the South have a most important relation to the prosperity of the conucry, and their development along healthy lines is in every way. desirable. If may well be shoulded, however, whether that development out he heat assured make the policy which has brought about their prount demoralization.

Men and Things.

Torque is nothing more demorphic than an asseggraphseller's list. It is a leveler of all sorts and conditions of men; more than blad, it casts drive remenumpher from the high stations where archivets of birth and circumstance. have installed it, and exalts period and worth to brights which their contemporaries denied them. Its transmogtifirstions are wooderful, and are signified to the understainling of us all to no live comprehendide terms than these of the market-place. I have before me very simple proof and example of what I say, in the latest list of Moure Ellis & Elvey, of 29 New Band Street, Lambar. First comes reval medicerity, no less a person than Queen Anse, whose signature " to a document authorizing the payment of two bundred possible to Captain James Jefferres," and constroughed by my land transurer, Godolphia, is quoted for a paltry 21, 3s.; surely regulty beld chosp, but not no cheap as his abnost Medieval highness, Rudolff 11. Empower of Germany, whose letters duted April, 1577, and addressed to Estruct, Grand Bake of Austria, is down at righton shifteness. Truly the days of Fenfalism are no more, I have fittle doubt, however, that if this were to exten the eye of the present Emperor be would remide it a grow care of less emjesty, and would and with his grandmother for its suppression. In arriving and pleasing contrast to these we find Benjamin Franklin rated at 51, 6s., Edmund Burke at 56, 15s., Sir Isaac News ton at 53. 5c., and Lord Nelson at 71, 10c. Art is not very well approclated, as might be supposed in these materiallette times, though 41, 4s, for an example of Thomas Bewick's chirography is not poor testimony to his worth. George Craikshank and Ross Bonhour are varsed with the hlight of contemporarements. however, and are only quoted at twelve and twenty-right shillings respectively.

It seems to me simple justice that Dickens should be priced at 11, 100,, but I feel it almost as a personal indignity that Mesons Ellis & Elvey do not until any more than 2), 2s. for Sir Walter (not Besont), and 21 5s. for Sheridan. There is compensation, however, in reading of the value set upon a lave-fester of Keate'; secondary pomotes and on the gen-Hemen have very considerately quoted it in their catalogue. I take pleasure in transcribing it for the benefit of real-reof Lastan's, who, I trust, will bear in mind that it is a one-hundred and thirty dollar quotation: The letter is addressed to Miss Famor Brawns, and reads: "My deaf Fansy, I am much better this morphy than I was a week area; Indeed, I improve a little every stay. I rely upon taking a walk with you the first of May. Feeding upon sham virtuals and sixing by the fire will completely mutual inc. These few masses all of which, by me claim or other belong to June with the deplere appreliament, show that we can all laugh with may rightalmity of the light value which attaches to us to-day; fainte generations of agograph-cultetors will stomp us with our true worth.

I wonder how many New Yorkers realise that New York is one of the fluest summer resorts in the search. All course many of them are forced to stay in town during the less weather, but it is under protest, with a grambling. accompanies at, and with hitle lifes or approclation of the incomerable enouging and interesting things in he found within Oliven minutes, or at the most three-quarters of an hour, of their very doors. Here are a few of the things that are possible to summer residents and visitory to New York - A visit to the Mempolian Museum, with his bare collections of curbs, portery, pictures, tapastries, and prints to the Museum of Satural History, full of increase for keeps of ornithology and zoology; to the lames and Astor libraries, with their reliable collections of brooks and pletures , to the Central Park, with its many instance attractions; to Comey Island, where every form of immemend from Wagner concerns by Scidi's understated for burlesque performances and merry germands, may be found in predador; and to any number of solve place that afford just as many opportunities for recreation and interestingsight-sering. The problem of a sammer outing is comperatricity shaple to rural academic. They come to New York, live rheapty, and entertain themselves inexpensively. To the New Yorker it is a nightenane and day maps, too from the first of Jime to the last of September. But a stay at home, with wisely planned tri workly excussions, would solve it admirably. A POPULAR opinion regarding the American Indians is that if they are not downright now ards they are personed of no great contage. Their methods of fighting and their crudty toward captives certainly give ground for this being. The Indiana fight from Sching the shedter of pocks, trees, and the inequalities of the ground. They serve make an open usualt unless they can take their free by surprise, or greatly ourningler these. If they encounter a stablers resistance they give over the albek and are gone as emblening at they came. Their uttacks are made in "extended water," never with closed ranks, and they must be should with singly. They delight in ambus rules and pight attucks. Uniff, not courage, is the speaker most highly refermed in an Indian wareher. The Indian fights for some substantial and arfor revenge. The white man fights for glory.

to whom he appeared as one risen from the dead. Here he might have remained, under his original name, buried to the world, but he went on to Fenton, where he was arrested, as was Mrs. Pitzel, a few days afterward. The boy Howard has never been hourd from, and his fate is still a mystery.

These dischennes caused an examination of the Englewood "Castle," and it was found to be an complete a man frap, or woman trap, as ever existed in the bangination of the speak barid writer of "sleath" fiction. Not a monity but had two or even three exits, intricate parsage ways, trap-down, clubes that led from the upper floor to the cellar, rooms with pudded realts; a showing vanit which the detection my is useless for any purpose but to stille a victim; secret stairways, a recember thirmee and an neid vat. In the rellar human bones were found, and fragments of bloody clothing, and in one of the upper chambers a bruch with stains of blood and murks of a sharp knife. But nothing more. The curious part of the whole horrible story is that, although the man is believed, from eirenmentantial evidence, to be a multi-murderer, no direct evidence of his guilt has yet been discovered.

"Help?" hast cried the girl, the symathing half of the cachemation being stifled by the furtises preming his hand over her month, that was far too pretty and sweet for such rough usage.

"I will not input you, madematedle," he whispered, the breath coming and gring in gring.

He belief the door. She made no struggle. There was sensitiving researing in his years and bouch. A further sure snough, and in nortal peril, judging from the doubt of enternation that followed him: to pres or, however, and become a distant marmor. He was easily a gaugeter, but he held the girl with the grip of a man.

Carried out of his way by the formen title of marching some with piles and for it that the electrony of the Tuileries, he had had retary a marrier scrape. The Chinese Massacres.

S was to be expected, the Chinese authorities are seeking to avoid responsibility for the revent harrid batchery of missionaries at Kucheng. This massive appears to have been peculiarly structions, some of the victima having been subjected, before being killed, to indescribable outrages and tortures. This was especially the case with the women and children, who pleaded in vain for mercy. All the facts in the case, as far as invertished, go to show that the attacks upon the interiourbes were due to the laftueues of the manderins and higher officials. The first stack was made while the missionaries were micep, and the charmit botten of some of the virtims were found in the rules of their burned homes. The government has made a pretonse of investigation, and promises to put the murdeness to death, but all past experience justilles the belief that notising effective will really be done to brong the offenders to punishment. In all prectous massacres a similar pretense has been made, but, so far as we recall, there is no histance on record where the actually guilty parties were punished ne they deserved. It is in he hoped that the British goverament will persist in the demands it has made for full reparation for the our rage, and that the United States will make the influence positively felt in the direction of affording protoction to American missionaries and their property everywhere throughout China, We have or we have sea the power to protect American citizens, wherever they may be found, against outrage and violence. It is time that we abound dominathing once for all our determination to assure. their immunity against associa, no matter from what quanfor it may come. And in the larger and wider view, that the interests of etyclication are involved in these informahotcheries, it goes without mying that the pages government of China should in langur be permitted to shiftyshally in the matter of its international obligations.

Trolleys and Water-Power.

The proposition is likely to be a great and valuable factor in the development of the rural acctions of this result of the projection of this result of the inversal actions of this cheap noticed of limiting cars over mitrouts to recorded city attests has no factor in the country, where the recent has no regard them. The danger in where the return he not real objection to them. The charger in the cities does not really come from the electric current in the overhead when, but from the caroloss speed at which the cars are run. Where hundreds of persons have been known by being run over, very few indeed layer been injured by rouning in contact with live wires which have become knowned from the poles. Speed, however, is desirable in the country, and comparatively free from danger. The non-thing which prevents the immediate extension of such rounts in every direction in the country is the cost of building and the expense of operating the lines. If the cost of operation costs he materially reduced, then that of building would not long stand in the way. And in very many ports of the country, even where tradle would be quite light, this rost of operating could be reduced in very small dimensions.

It used to be, when each neighborhood did its own milling and manufacturing that nearly all of the available water powers were utilized. But with the extension of the great transportation lines and the consolidation of manufacturing interests into large and dominating companies, very many of the smaller water-powers were abundaned, and are now completely or about fallen into disco- This appears to be a tion; when nearly all of these powers analy ugain be used to advantage and made to generate the electricity which might serve to feed the wires of trolley fines of railroad. Though it is quite true that from one source of power a line of fifteen miles or so of trolley railroad can be economically operated, it is not at all message that the power should all be directed from our point. If along a projected line there is not one water-power sufficient in quantity and constancy for the purpose, there is no no on why it should not be gathered from several such sources. if such sources he available. This, how could be done without very seriously adding to the cost, as it is not to be presumed that truller lines in the country would be operated save in the day-time. Therefore, there would be no nocessity for several shifts of men to look after the waterwheels and the generators.

The New York Central read, which owns lines of railway in the neighborhood of the St. Lawrence River, is looking into the question of utilizing the water powers that are so abundant in the foot hills of the Adironducks, with the idea of hornessing this power and generating electricity for the operation of the Riess or railway alluded to. This will mean the arbitration of electric motors for strain autors on these railways. If this can be done successfully peal electrical engineers appear to have no doubts as to the practicalitity—then it must be obscintely certain that the trailey lines in the country, where there is a constant naterpower, and where light passenger-cars can be used, would be not only quite possible, but also reasonably presitable, both in the owners and to those who would be persons of the lines.

The conditions of life in the country appear to be growlog always less rather than more pleasant. Much of this is no doubt that to the fact that many things that were formerly superfluous bataries have now become indispenmable normation. But this is quite right and in accordance with the prevaiting metrek of progress. These country people should have those banarious necessities within their reach, and not be cut off from the rest of the world by disfaure and old fashioned and experience methods of trainpertaction. Where there is noter-power the tealing appears to be the local way to bring them into a class banch with the great bushing world from which they are now partially use model.

Monopolistic Tendencies Abroad.

HERE is a distinct transency in the continual countries of Europe toward the absorption by the State of all the functions of industry, production, and pulsar wavier. The rest of this tradeucy is found in the productionary with which to very on the operations of government and keep altread of modern program in the utilities of vivile ration. In all these consistes becation has reached its final. Other sources of supply must be found. The support of smales, the enlargement of facts, the introduction of Tacilli ities of interemmentation the improvement of sortiery regulations, the resultinhances of schools and subvention. which are becoming increasingly mercury, involve smomoon onlybey. Dist of this condition it has come to puse that suggestions which were to be wild and extravagual are finding teach schiption. The poverment of France, for lintours. Which has already become the sole manufactuser of matches, is now countering whether it will not escaldish at neutropoly of apirits, of the and enfler, and of other articles. like pepper and mustual, which exter into general communities. In Cormany can of the hading parties demands that the State shall become the earlistive importer of celibba, which would carry with it, of reserve, a peguintion of the prices of bread and notal. The divisional in this case is that the profit shall be distributed in different. forms of 453 to the distressed climas. It is in Bussle, howeyer, that this temberry finds he must ended expression. According to a excent asticle in the Lambon Durly Acre, the Minister of Figures of the couplin is no possessed of the monopolistic spirit that he has already abserted practically all the railways to the country, and, the Joseph to the time of the Pharmole, has recurrentated immense stocks of eren, having purchased his the eurplus product, and will at my distant day have absolute control of the export tends. Not only so, but he proposes to more police the trule in wine, sugar, and imported spirits, and then be become the great middleman for the sele everywhere of soul. This latter purpose is already fully announced, and deputs have been formed on the Black Sea and the Baltic, and also at important central points in the interior. The obvious effect of this policy will be to crush out private competition, and to invest the government with a tennopoly of all the intravets referred to

Any undertakings of the relical character here industed would, of course, provoke in this country, in the persent state of public opinion, almost universal disapproval. It is to be remembered, between that in European countries the socialistic spirit has acquired with Josephila, and that as a consequence prognous of the character mentional and only do not excite much alone, but, if entered upon vigorously, may even prove by he popular. The London Spiriter, in a thoughtful article on the general subject, refers as ful loves to the probable effect of the policies which have been appropriated as in contemplation:

"Total but through monopolishes and used an the contract high transcribing it would recommend them which it is expected in a nather singular may be its optimizer of grown to them of the people of the same side and the people of them with an impact angle of the same formula of minimum solution that are made suggest to take mean formula of minimum solution grown in the process on transcribes of minimum solution of transcribes of the process of the people of the minimum solution is processed at the posterior on the formula of the people of them a discontinual program-tage and the personality, which are to the processing of them a discontinual program-tage and the personality, which are not the processing and the personality, which are not the personality of the personality.

rim, and not Secialist, kept that they may seem from the resisting retrieve seem resid for their discreted confision. Active resistance is, therefore, confised to the modes to the article absorbed; and on the confisions the only trades who can before government are the tracers in money. The dashes in foreign over us in species or in species have no reasons of any entity entering to method any entity of the moments of another motive as not, and to mention insertection, in nor important locality. The postroments therefore, in reserving to this forth of taxton, would be nother popular than superpoter with the masses and the upper class, while it is in to mention retain that they would seriously injure the constraint, seems remains retain that they would seriously injure the constraint, for the modific furthers of all histories is to constraint likely in few hands while the stark of distribution would go on as before, though in a secure-shall different way.

Even in England, if the Specialise is correct in its statement of public opinion, the extension of the functions of the state as trader for the sake of revenue is likely to be an lesce in the near future. It believes, for instance, that the purchose and operation of the milways by the government mey result from the pressure of influences which are stradily gaining strength. It thinks, too, that "it is a fair question whether the state would not be the best fasorer, both against death and fire"; and that there are other businesses in which the state, as trader, would have courses advantages. The predictions here indulged in may be realized much somer than some people expect. No doubt the agitation in this country in behalf of national runtral of the telegraph and other departments of the putlie service will be accommuted by the necessarile now in program in European remarries; and if they should prove to be as successful as their originators anticipate, it may istinutely be difficult to prevent the absorption by the government of the control of some enterprises which are now altogether of a private and holividual character.

The "Silverite" Nomenclature.

Tun pronomintion of the word "shittedeth" was in the older Bibliost times, the test of the individual's clasship, and in our titel War on the pronounclation of "your"—if it was "baion"—informed the Missouri knight of the burder beyond all doubt that the speaker was a New England "Youker."

It seemsthing the same way the speech of the alterstorade per formers him—if not by its second, then by the curious scattered and heliusingtom restoded in its outcome phrasology. No one not affected by the alter craze, for historice, would talk seriously and with heat in advocacy of "An American Pinamial Systems." Verticle in the topic that was gaserously discussed and long ago, in one of our monthly received; and with a wildness of assumption and statement that would have made acknowledged inclination.

This has of the phrase implies that there can really be a whedevene system of the "bigness" of the regardry, whose station by resum of the "bigness" of the regardry, whose principles shall beavere all the regardress. Now, there is no use of arguing about this. It is only necessary to say that you might as well ask for an absorption of traction of gravitation, or an American multiplication stable, as to but against the facts which this writer rules over, and has no apparent compenhancian of.

To speak of but one details be mentions, incidentally, "eight hours as the length fixed by nature for a sky's later, and does it as consistently as did the delegate at the Merapids after convention who asserted that the Lord had the the mountains of the earth with after and gold at the exact vatio of aistorn to one, for the everlasting tenant of mankind. By what clair expent or the surplied agency such "facis" are discovered it halfles more ordinary mortale to tell—though it is not surprising that the writer of the reside article reflected to should proclaim. Senated Jones to be the greatest financial scindar and expect in the worth.

Another silver advocate, who halls from Calorulo, in writing to the Monte's offsorial page series of political communications, talks of "the missage of silver at its exqattorional ratio." It is the Constitution, and not "the morphisms," that has fixed the sixtern to one ratio for bira. What superbalive housenest! There can be more be a "reastitutional ratio" for silver, or any other ratio that will remain, then there can be one for the thermometer and the climate. This particular writer also calls allver primary money," and the farmers ally erapostle, "Coin." makes after a primate or Pope, too. "Primary money" is a sugar phrase; and whether you interpret it as meaning the first manny in use, or the money whose value is de the initial one for fixing the value of the other metals med with it as currency, it is both felloctors and meaningless. In some countries silver loss fact no place, primary or color. Lesting, Iron, and other things have crowded it out at silver is now trying to proved gold out of this ementry. Its only primary really consists in his bring the cause of a first abox or primary defusion,

But the either this is obding, and it will presently be a matter for proforms weather have it over happened that the attempt to ally us with Metres and China in an exceeding larger against the civilized world and all the trackings of business experience, over mestaged a descent advances.

The Armenian Ouestion.

Turent is no doubt that public opinion in Great Britain has been profoundly stiered by the Turkish outrages upon the Christians in Armstia. Studied efforts appear to have been made in paceto livent stretes to create the impression that the reports of these outrages were exaggerated, but the latest double and anthoritative statements fully confirm the original accounts, showing the butchery to have hern almost approachested in its savagery. Mr. Gladstone's achiress at the recent, people ar demonstration in Chester has greatly quickened the public feeling, and it is difficult to see how the government can much longer postpone the adoption of a definite policy in the matter. As he pointed out, the Powers have the right, under the treaty of 1858, to march into Armenia and take the government of the country out of the hands of Turkey ; while under the treaty of 1878 the Sultan is bound to every out reforms. If he shall now refuse to put in operation the reformatory measures suggested by the Powers, it would seem that they sugist at once to exercise their treaty rights to enforce obedience. on his part to treaty obligations. There can be no doubt at all that the British government would have the support of the cotice nation in any measures it might adopt to secure in Armenia reforms guarantering to the people safety of life and property and freedom of religious besief, It may be that Lord Salishury, in his promounced remortyatism, may feel disinclined to resort to extreme measures, but it is certain that he will weaken himself with the perple if he shall hesitate to meet their demands.

A compressionary of the New York See suggests that no more appropriate more could be given to the sister ship. of the new Warrserge than Plant Jacon. He calls attention. to the fact that on act of Congress possed in 1984 anthorized the construction of a first class frigate to be exited by that many, but nothing seems to have come of it. The saggestion is a good one. Nothing could be more fitting than the perpetuation in this way of the great historic names which have been associated with our moval annuls, Title free-ellyer element of the Democratic party in Missouri has gained a very complete triumph over the soundminney scattment, and at a recent State convention, which was largely attended, corgonized the State committee to as to place the party muchinery cotirely noder their control, and declared fixtly in favor of the free and indimited coinage of allver as the doctrine of the party. Representative Bland was the dominating love in this very decides over throw of the sound many new, many of whom extremed him in vain to pursue a moderate policy, lest the party should be disintegrated and honight to defeat, in the State of lows the free civer Democrats are pursuing an equally aggressive course, manifesting extreme bisterness. toward Mr. Cleveland and his "birelings," - meaning the reby those members of the party who don't for an famue. currency. They failed, however, in control the recent State convention, which communited a Chyolist soundmoney man for Governor.

This State of Texas has made such great progress in the but few years, and there has been such tolerance of opinion, and, generally, such kindly relations between the blacks and whites, that we read with surprise of the recent. outrage in Delia County of that State, where the myrion were driven out poll-mell, ander threads of violence from a "white-cap" organization. Simultaneously with the publication of these notices others were posted, announcing that every white person who embertook to protect the blacks would meet with the same face. As a result, there was a stampede among the negroes, who left everything behind them. A press dispatch states that in a radius of five miles two thousand acres of lands, respectant all, were abandoned, and that themsonds of acros of the firms farming lands in the State will be lette in consequence of this exodus. We are reluctant to believe that an outrage of this character commands the sympathy of any great body of the Texas people, and we can hardly doubt that the authorities will take measures to see that the laterests of the outraged blacks are properly protected against the intolerance of the organization which is responsible for this blot upon the State escalchem.

Tue insurrection in Cubo maintains itself against all the efforts of General Compas to arred its progress. There seems to be no doubt that the Spanish forces were very actionsly crippled in the engagement between Manzanillo and Bayamo. This fact is charge attested by the elecumstance that after the engagement the captain general, what had taken refuge with his troups in Bayunus was obliged. to see the incorport chief for the privilege of sending men to the field to remove his wounded. It speaks well for the humanity of the insurgence that the permission asked for was immediately granted, and that the Spaniards not only were permitted to take eway their wounded from the field, but were also allowed to require these to whom the insurgents themselves had given hospital attention. Generid Campos is alleged to have been greatly pleased with the action of Macco, the insurgent bealer, and by way of recipmenting his good offices out at liberty all the pocifical prisoners in one of the towns under Spanish control.

tendered him on his return to Santiago de Culm, that the times were not favorable for demonstrations of this sort; sed it is quite appearent that he has found the work before him much more serious than he had at first imagined it

THE people of Turoma, the brisk and progressive city of the equally progressive State of Washington, are applying the principle of protection in a practical way. They have decided that they are able to produce everything which is medial for their home consumption, and they have, wexerdingly, organized for the purpose of building up demostle industries by Imping and selling at home rather than about. The women of the town seem to have initiated the new idea, and as the result of their efforts the board of trade took it up, and now a State en-operative surlety has been established, every number of which piedges idmostly to patronize State and loose products and manufactures. In the furtherance of this idea every street in the city has hern convisued, and every housekeeper has been interested. In their purchases, preference is always given to home products. As a result of this concerted action many small industries and trules are being stimulated, and the general prosperity very decidedly sugmented. It is intimated that the experiment having been so satisfactory in its results, it may be widered so as to encourage the establishment of more important interests, such as purk-pucking in a wholesale way, with a ciew not only of supplying the bonse market, but of sutering into competition for the markets of China and Japan.

Tits recent plateus disturbances in the Spring Valley mining district in Illinois in which several hundred Italy, time assuched with violence the negroes employed there, are enlegisted to accordance the public conviction as to the numbers of giving tempitality to foreigners who are inespable of appreciating law and its obligations. These Italian miners are apparently representatives of the worst element of their countrymen. They are malignant fensrious, and atterly indifferent to these remainirestions of goal citizenship which influence ordinary people. An illustration of their arrogance and brutality is furnished by the fact that when a large number of miners, in obedience to a summone from the cost-shelts, undertook to resume their work they were confronted on the highwarn by these foreign interlupers, armed with rities and other small arms; and by the further fact that all negroes were driven from the premises under messee of personal elolence. Many cours, were expound to found, and abuse, and their bouse held belongings despetted or stolen. Inclidents of this kind stir the blood of Americans, and their repetition is nortain to influence patitic opinion in the direction of the total exclusion of aftern of the turbulent class represented by these risters. The State authorities ought to bring to publishment every man who was engaged in these contrages. und Congress sught in viect positive legislative harriers in the way of immigrants of this unboirable character.

Some four or five years ago Mr. Richard Harding Davis made his first appearance as a story teller in Section's with his new well known "Gallegher." Since then be has published any number of short stories and long stories, sketches of travel and adventure, and much miscellany, and has won for himself a tremendous body of readers throughout the country. But, unfortunately. Mr. Davie's readers are not very discriminating, and they stand in a fall way in rein a more very promising and interesting young writer he accepting everything that he writes, which is a very dangverous condition to confront a young author who, from all reports, has a very good opinion of everything that be does. These remarks are begotten of Mr. Davice but story, which is to be found in the August number of Scriber's. "Miss Detunar's Understudy" is the title of it, and its persual, quite he accident on my part, logalled by the tediousness of a milway Journey, led me to wonder how much longer such browns and unprofitable its the reader) stuff annial find favor even with Mr. Davis's readers. He has a racy, breezy, style-but a very ungrammatical one, by the war-and his traveled a good deal and knows people-by their ciethes and hate and twees and manners. - that is, superficially, and well enough to talk about them interestingly, but what he newls most is immediate, for undoubtedly he is most ignorant out only of the art which he practices, but of the materials which he works with. "Men. and Things," I once heard what I thought was a rather cruel and unjust epigram at Davis's expense, but perhaps If I write it hen it may come to his eye or ear said have some good effect. "Thirly," said the epigrammist, " must have acquired his ignorance; he could never have been born with it !"

I often suspect the efficer of the North American Rerive of being a good deal of a wag. He has a sir way of mixing speciments up and dragging them away from their own specialties to descent on those of others, of which,

General Campos frankly admitted, when a reception was mine times out of ten, they are more ignorant than the ordinary run of men. The results are edifying, and show, besides, that the leasness manager of the magazine is in some sert of collusion with the editorial department, for this practical joking on the distinguished specialists has a very appreciable effect on sales and the subscription-list. Mr. Therefore Reservelt is a very astate and apright politician. and a great authority on cowboys and big game, which is probably the reason he was chosen to write in the columns of the American on Benjamin Kidd's "Social Evolution," the most remarkable contribution to scientific iterature during the past year. Mr. Resseveit's misunderstanding of what he is talking about seems very complete, and when he arruses Kidd of "a certain mixture of dogmation and asperticially "be supplies a very age criticism of his own article, which is a hostge-pudge of ill-directed arientific terms and absend statements. It was really too had for the editor so to pillory the ignorance of the very estimable ex-civil service commissioner. But Mr. Reserveds in an versatile a man that it is a selfish gratification to find cut that he down't know onything about samething.

> Street-cleaning Commissioner Waring has been talking and scritting a good deal about people's carelessness in throwing paper and other refuse into the streets. The nulsance could be greatly stated if the plan of the Civic Pederation of Chicago could be adopted throughout the city. All over Chicago large the receptacles are attached to the lamp-posts, and passers by are requested to deposit all paper and waste matter that usually is thing into the streets. The plan works admirably I made a careful excontration of it makelf hat work-and I see no reason why the street eleaning department or some of our Good Goverument clubs should not arrange for something of the kind in New York LINE EVAN BRITHAN.

-An Interviewer who had a half hour's that with Joseph Pulitzer at Chulwohl, his fine Bar Harbor place, describes the neithmater editor as an amiable and agreeable man, what talked without my appearance of restraint, and pultirly answered every question that was put to him. Mr. Pulitarrive distinguished woking mon, fully six feet tall, and rather eleuler, with a reddish heard. He is several years under fifty, and it has taken him mily twelve yours to build up the newspaper property that now yields him an annual torone of marly one million dollars. In the popular conception a millionaire editor enjoys a life of puss, but in the newapaper profession Mr. Pullizer is notoriously one of the bardest working of journalists. The attention he gives to the World is an estimate and coreful so that of a managing editor. His counter place at flar Harbor, where he is spending the summer, is one of the show places of that

-A reced activity in the Weekly mayeyed the inpression that the formation of a musical fibrary to Hustrate the originate of some composers, and to be exhibited at the couring Atlanta exposition, was suggested by Mias Klin M. Powell. The idea in question, as we are trustworthily informed, originated with Mrs. Theodore Settes, chalrman of the committee on music in New York, and aff the important work in connection with it has been done by her. Having made a careful and exhaustive study of the whole subject, she has collected about four hundred exhibits idustrative of woman's work in music, and these will no doubt be our of the most interesting, as they will versioly be one of the most instructive features of the r-sposition.

-Lafredie Hearn, the nutbur, is a unique and pictureesque figure, montally and physically, among American literary men. His very name is unique, in recalling the Leocadian cliff from which Supplie jumped into the sen, He is a dark and diminutive nam, and used, before he went to Japan a few years ago, to wear an enormous sombiores that dwarfed his small head into insignificance. Hearn became known as an author while he was a newspaper man in New Orleans. His life in Japan agrees with him, and it is likely that he will continue to live there with his Japanese wife to the end of his days,

The moon, which tool been hidden by hunks of clouds as pertentous as those that filled the moral atmosphere of Paris, sent a cold beam of light into the spartment of the young Provolwoman, and she may that her visitor was a good-looking young follow, and that he was dressed in a style something better than the hourgests , and now that he in larger gasped for breath his voice someded as physically to her as here to him.

"You will not call out?" he said, forming agent her quickly.

I trust you," she replied, " and therefore I remain albert."

Thank you undermiselle; thank you?

He went to the window. It was how and narrow, and heard upon a ledge that in its turn gave been a shorting read with chimney. stucks and flower pots.

The rich was a garret, separated from other garrets by a for wall and moden loves, in which a few flowers and shruls were cultivated. The house had once been one of more importimes. Now it was divided up into apartiments, occupied on the ground fiver by the better than of the hourgood, narrowing in the wetal grade as the stairway assended until the garrets were reached; and here, knowth the picturesque, pointed root, with its quaint beloning and fedges, dwelt paur sommitteees, a shoemaker, a washerwomen-who, however only trented the linen-a modeler of statuettes, and others surning their living from hand to mouth. Their rooms were out off from such other by stone walls or weather partitions. Taking them altogether they were a happy community though of late they had begun to be alread as more other on political grounds. Marte lireyses had the best furnished and most comfortable mem among the attice. It was spacious, well kept, and, though humble, with plenty of evidence of good taste.

Thank you readespointly a thousand times thank you," said Efficiet, comewhat effoovely, after listening intently for any demonstration in the street. "The wolves have passed, as you my. If you will allow me to draw the curtains over the sendors you may light your lamp."

"You are very kind," said Marie, in something of a sarrastic tour.

-I would like to be," said Efficient, now almost at his case, and breathing freely for the first time during a long and terrible day timb had been literally a dance of double.

"I am sure it is very condescending of you to periodi me to have a light in my own pass. but you may draw the curtains?

"I never a your gracious permission," and the young fellow in his test French, and with a flourish of his cap. If it had sported a feather, the feather would have swept the floor in the most courtier-like fashers

He drew the curtains well over the long, low, small-paniel window. Marie struck like shed and bles into the timber box.

The story of Khilkoff's brave fight against adversary preveded him to Russia, and his retorn was murked by an immediate appointment as superintendent of the Knisk Kniff Railroad. He filled this peet immendia for several years, and was oftenward transferred to the bust emportant Moscow-Emporting, When the Rosse Turkish was broke sail he was placed in thirty of the Empress's special "Red Cross " train Khillo of a greatest service to his country consisted in his superintendence of the construction of a short line of railroad extenting from Michaelovsk on the Caspina Sea to Kind Arvat, which enabled General Skubuleff to transport the Bussian forces to Gook-Tpc, the great Akhai - Turcoman stroughoid. It was thus that the foundation was laid to the Trans-Caspan Railroad, now an accomplished fact.

Bulgaria was Khilkoff's next field of activity. His ability as an executive caused him to be invited by Peince Leopold's government, in 1885, to accept the portfolio of Munister of Ways and Communications and of Commerce and Agriculture. He performed his overcos duties in a manner to win the regard of all political parties, and when, in runanon with other Russtan officials, he surrendered his pest after the comp attitut of Philipolis, the regress of the entire Bulgarian people followed him into retirement. The Prince has since distinguished. himself in many ways, notably as Antenkett's right-hand man in the extension of the Franc-Casping Batterny to Samarcand, and he has also held the position of inspector-general of the cattre Russian railway system. All accounts agree that he is a man of broad views and untiring energy, and the prospects are that he will to his stancet to laster the completion of the Trans-Silerian Bailroud. From this to the establishment of a line of steamers between Vlactivestock and Fan Francisco there is hot mostep, in the opinion of many notion Busines, who tomoby hope to me a tightening of the bearls of sympathy that units their country to the United States. Khilloff is said indeed to be nu cuthurian in favor of a House American alliance, but feels that such a result can only be at-Jaised through the development of the commercial relations of the two countries and the creation of common interests. A Unique Seaside Resort and its Founder.

The most complement figure in Admiry Pack le Senator James A. Bendley, who in 1930. owned all the land on which the town has sime been built. He is now about skirty five yours. old, and health to the full vigor of a ripe manhood. Hence writers have complained that the type known as the self-made man is growing comparatively waren in America, and that picture-que characters are more new than formerly. In Senator Bradley, at all events, these writers will find a self-made man who is inneresting. Shrewd, sincere, and carnest, he is distinguished by an originality above as admiruble as that of Abraham Lincoln or Horsen Greeky. For, be it remembered, this man started in life as a farmer's Jury, and was apprenticed to a brush maker

Although Mr. Bradley has sold a great part of the square mile of land on which Advers Park structs, he has remined the title to its mile of boach, which is the town's most aftenetive feature, and to make it more ettructive be has built and keeps in repair a bread board-walk that extends the whole length of it. At frequent intervals there are pavilious and summer-houses, with chairs and wooden beaches for the comfort of the visitor.

From seven strikely by the morning until nightfall a dark-bay form may be seen at turbed to a rendest top-longry, in which sits a alongy colored boy, wniting at one point or suother of the long beach for the indefatigable old man who is always overseeing this most renneperative of his possession. The relate of this beach consists mainly in the income derived. from its two thousand make hundred tackhouse, which are grouped about the five pavillone southered along the beach.

The Asbury Park beach is like no other beach in the world. One renem is that the owner. guards it well in the interests of his greets. 'niformed policemen, in Mr. Bradley's pay, keep order. Pathing masters patrol the beach, two and two. The speculators who resit courschairs and umbrellas for ten cents a setting, and the fakirs who armse the children with weighing unchines, phonographs, and kinetoseigen at one cent a turn, pay well for their privilege, and are under thorough discipline.

Perhaps in no other respect is the Asbury Park bench so distinguished from other beaches es in its quaint decorations, many of which bear inscriptions composed by the founder him

One of the most complement elegate at the lower end of the beaches the image of a soldier, made of sine and pointed green. This mortial ornament is mounted on a curiously-constructed pile of brown-stone siabs, and seems to be gasing out to see as though waiting, like the rest of us, for his ship to come in.

Back of him, on the groomward, and looking in the opposite direction, stands the image of a senutity clad boy, clasping a sheaf of gleanings. Tradition does not tell what this sea-probin represents: During the last Mensurial Pay exercises Mr. Bradley and these images surrounded with a row of innestrotations potted plants.

There is a considerable stretch of gress plot between the beard walk and the brick hierofepath along the beach, and that pertine of it which is worth of the flibling-pler is adequed with three tail mic images, painted white, representing spring, sutures, and winter. The offigy of summer is missing a strange corresponding statum for a popular annunct resort.

On the same greet plot there is a fresk of nature, consisting of a natural growth of brazefus and roots in the shape of z distorted Thansa Biver bull-log. Mr. Brud. or motived the reamblance one day when his men were charing the woods west of the town, and h had a wood-turner make a suitable head for the insurtneity, which, when completed, was tully enough to delight the passe heart of a Chin-

The fishing-past is rendered more attractive by the presence of an empty him-rage on whods, which, a played amountees, it " a plaything for the children." This cage was part of the equipment of Daniel Bosne's circus, which was advantable in Maximo. Mr. Bocom invest a house on Bradley Buch, a couple of nailes away, which he purchased of Mr. Bradley, and when the circus business cultured, the founder, who will buy anything if it is a inegals, took two of the flor-ragos for two localese dollars. When peer they had cost two themsand delhars, The other survey writes a similar purpose on the other pale of the town.

All along the boards are worn-out surf-loute and sail-bears. Which are kept painted in bright colors, making very appropriate ornaments. Asbury Park is a favority place for conventions of all worts, and so those are of advantage to the lower. If he the continue before one moves for Mr. Brutley's sign painter to take his paint-put and change the unities of senso of those binds to soft the revenue. Next cames as "The Rabbus" and "The Wheelman" bear second to recent conventions of these were and conditions of turn. A slantists' convention was to have been the next on the programme, and it is not inposible that before these lines are printed, the ficikle easil frost Littlew may have changed for name to the Laughtneyers.

Our of the noneverly buildings on the beach is a protty cottage ball, on piles, wheat built a tothe mortle of the fishing pier. It has a little front yard of planting about mx feet above the analog which is forced to neatly. A placent renoves the information that it was the former home of a newspaper artist wher witnewed and libratrated usury battle-sesses during the late way. The placent does not state the fact that the transit overglied this only remdince on the brack through the generality of the owner, when after the old artist's dorson. threlded to keep it open with a warm more and an attendant, so a refuge for ladies and children to one of author vocum.

At the entrance to this coltage stands a query old hablement hand pimp, a relicual volum threelopartment days, and on either side of it is painted the information that its many is this Washington, and that it formerly did duty in Brooklyn and afterward to thoug tinyer, and to now "a plaything for the whildren."

Forbage tie, most environ adventoral of the beach is a granife gravietons, or, rather, meson more, such as is in he more to any communer, which stands on the fearth-walk about a block above the print's ratings. This shaft is withcut any carved inveription, but a paper framed in pine and printed by a heal printer, hears this anamacement:

" New thire agent, the Jurge parties, along New Aire was envised in this time time busined persons but their time. This numerous is enough to rate the seal and mergy of Governor William A. rerd, of New Jersey. So Congression be norved ed in getting a law pussed outsitisting the United States Life suring Surviva. And, also, in communicarate, the felelite of the life-saving cores whose efficiency renders such a discret at this day about his position. The minimum with he editable interched

The stone shaft has an iron rail accord it. and about the rail have been laid several jurds of old bross unebor-rhain.

"I am mit quite satisfied with this more ment," said the four-lev, recently. "I timk I shall have some piles runk into the sand nearer the water's edge, and on that fornisting I will erect a failer insument, suitably incribed and decorated with a pair of displicate life-enring module which I have had atruck off by the government for that purpose."

Nothing could be more appropriate as a waskie manument than the simple column excited at the fact of Serveth Avegue, in rememberration of the wrock of the Mary F. Relley. This stoft is the lowsprit of the wracked rused trituned off at the top to a pyramidal point. It bears an elaborate inscription in Mr. Bradler's best style.

Scattered about the town are a number of grantic disks of great size, which are used as seats by the victors. These were the bases and cupitals of a row of massive columns which used to solorn the outrance to the old Detek Church on Latavette Place, New York, When the church was turn down the columns reposed for a while in the yard of a second-hand building-material dealer on the East Side, where Mr. Bradley found them, and purchased them at the price of building stone, seventy-five cents a cubic fact. The grantle refigures were broken up for building material by another purchaser.

The feather of Asbury Park is a frequent visitor to the yards of the second-hand building material dealers, for he is always on the lookout for bargains. When the Catholin cennetony was established on the hills west of the town Mr. Bradley sent the local priest to New York to suspent a stone group representing the Two Marys at the Cross, which had for years been seniting a parcheser in the yard of a dealer in sever hand building material. The group had been one of four which had adors ed the peliment of a clearch just back of Dr. Parktone's charch on Twenty-Lourth Street. and the ducler had at first held them for one thousand Adlars spices but had gradually lowered his price. Three of the groups had gone to select a Cattellie temetery at White Plains, and when the Asbury Park pried expresent his presence with the last one. Mr. Bradby purchased it for him at an expense of one bundred and twelve dollars, buded on a flat car to Jersey City.

This incident illustrates Mr. Reading's freedoes from religious higotry. He is an admirer of the teachings of Dr. Poliz Adler, and one of the old row-boots on the beach bears the name of the great liberal teacher. However, Tabmage is to hold forth in the Asbury Park auditerrino this menth, and perhaps in house of his combac the row foot may be one verted to orthodony and hear the Drucklyp preacher's name

Our of the principal spectacular events of the curso at Asbury Park is the bally parade, which usually occurs in August. This year's person, which took place on the 19th instant, was perhaps the most an comful over held. Over weren tensified tubies appeared in the procesdesi, which was gregoous with Bags and famtintic devices of every uset. Thus an infant rouro haler code in a watermei-m flost; aurather inserest, a larley girl, in a car all youk paper frills and rushes and ruses, and yet auother in an all-white carriage, with white down virting around it, arranged on spirals. area of about twenty acres, and has been tracted fully and regularly inid off into streets need building-lots, the latter held in trust to be sold for the length of church and school. Originally the colony was a corporation, but recently it was determined to divide the lambs among the indicidual establish; and when this is done excell family will own from forty to one hundred acres. The Waldeness are an agricultural pastple, and their chief occupation will be the culsivation of the scal, the growing of recessly, sixted the railture of fruits and grapes, which thery thoroughly understand. Moreover, the gathering of tan back, the cutting of timber, and the sawing of bumber will afford remunerative onexpation to many of them, and a saw-mill, award by the experition, already gives Pegular umployment to a considerable number. hosiery mill has also been established at Valdose, which turns out a muniderable weekly product. Educational facilities are provided for the children, and they are rapidly acquiring the language of their adopted country, as well ar French and Italian, both of which they are mught to read and speak early in life. reducists have their own local postor, the Rev-Barth, Soulist, who lives at Valdess. He is to young men of phosest memory, good address. and earnest spirst, and wholly devoted for the interests of his people.

The future of this colony of earnest men and women, who are strong in their religious fulfill and leve of liberty, ransest be doubtful. Freuch from the limitations which hampered and haraymed them, in the land from which they reason, they will make their way into the larger and more fruitful life which is alone possible under the restitions afforded by American institutions and laws.

The L Funeral-Train.

Tim bearse must gu. The present style of funeral cortige in New York has been regarded by all legial reformers as one of the most expensive and incorrenant feature of a fornoral. A hourse and a single currings cost fifteen dellars, and the expense of a funeral person amening mount into the handreds. Some of the well-to-do Italians pay as much no five bundred distance for carriages. The presents to many instances have looked upon these shows as intokerable displays of valgarity and with white hands on which was instilled, "Light Infantry." Bookles the string of perautholatory there were a large number of Boate fearing groups. Our represented Princilla and John Alden, with a spinning-wheel one kondred and fifty years old; another deptited the lifesaving service, with a barefred lad ditting in sand, waiting an opportunity to resem some one in distress. The purade was witnessed by some treaty five thousand onlockery from the mighturing trees. Sensor Bradley was never, perhaps, more thoroughly happy than on this GROBER M. STRONSON.

The Waldenses in North Carolina.

We give an another page a number of illustrations of the colony of Waldenson in the Pietasset section of North Carolina. This culony was established in 1900, when twenty families under the leadership of their Italian pastur, the Rev. C. A. Tron, a man of marked become expacity and signal enterprise, landed in this country and took possession of the colouted property, a most larger number following a few mouths later. The colour new numbers about two hundred and fifty souls, some fifty heads of busilies. Ther are in the vigor of young manhood and wananhood, carethird of the whole aumter being under ten years of age. The cultural property lies some eight miles seat of the town of Morganiows, the county seat of Barks County, and so the line of the Western North Carolina Railroad. The land is well adiopted to the culture of the vine, wheat, too, and corn. It is also well wooded, and will afford the colonists a variety of industries. The village of Valdeer, the post-office of the rology, is a station on this railroad, covers an vanity, but no one had offered a solution of this frature of the question until President Unitonan, of the Breeklyn L road, asked they the people could not go by rull to the consisteries

Mr. Uhlman has committed the funeral train, and, fortunately, has the means to run it, much will do so an some as he out notice his starticene with absorbers for lifting softing to the trusteen and make connections with New York through all the ferries to Brooklyn. There will have a bears-our for the certin, utlacted directly to the loconstive, and one or more passenger-curs. Forthe mourners and their friends. These cars will all be painted, druped, and appointered in blanch, the wood of black malogany and the seeste corned with black relvet. But all the cause are to be alike and andform in price. One care will necommodate thirty or forty people, will represent a large funeral, and yet will be anadecheap enough for one lone mourner and his friend.

The Breeklyn L made at this moment terrainate near all the large remeteries, and complete expensions will seem be built to them, so that fugeral-parties will have no need for hearses. and carriages once they are dismissed at the ferries. Mr. Uhlman ways his funeral-trains will reduce both the time and expenses involved in a funeral cortige by sme-half. But tarnder existing conditions his plans one be applied conly to Brooklyn and the New York terries, taraless co-operation can be had with the surfaces-curroads in New York. The New York L. resails. have but one close connection with Brocolelyn. and that is by the bridge, over which it is not at this time practical to ron a funeral-train. But all persons who desire to dismiss the larvages and carriage at the ferries will be given the opportunity. If the New York undertakers make opposition the funeral surface-car in to be brought juto service. DAVID F. St. CLAIR.

A Russian Meteorological Observatory.

METROBOLOGICAL observatories are divided into classes according to the completeness with which they permit the observation of atmospheric conditions. An observatory of the first class is one in which the meteorological elements of temperature, rainfall, wind, etc., are either observations include the meteorology of the sir and of the ground, and the earth's magnetiess.

The amount of later necessary to carry on the work can be imagined from the statement that every day the readings of fifty eight different thermometers are made, and some of them require to be observed several times during the day.

Just as this article is in preparation, information is received privately that Director Wild directly observed hourly, or continuously, or at very short intervals, by means of automatic soff-recording instruments. It is only within recent years that such observatories have been established in the United States, but in Europe some have been in existence for about half a century.

In America, where the observatories are either to rented buildings or in government buildings used also for other purposes and where weather signals are displayed for the benefit of the community, there has been a tendency to get the observatory up as high and in an as expressible attention as possible. An extreme case of metan observatory has been shown in the illustration of the weather-bureau office in New York gives in a recent issue of Lexitors Wegat's. These observatores labor makes one dissolventure, that some of the self-registering instruments used are of the dampest reneticalism, and do not formuch receives with the minute accuracy demanded by mosters science.

Turning now to Europe, we find two styles of observatories provailing. In the one the method of detached buildings is adopted, and the residence quarter for the charrers is kept separate as far as possible from the purely scientific department. Each as observatory is the one at Pawkowsk, near 8t. Petersburg, limins, and which we shall briefly describe in this article. Another form is that in which one hogs building is constructed, and which contains the observatory, esemuting resons, and residence for the observers. Each is the new observatory at Potalam, near Battin, a short description of which may be given at another time.

The Constantine Observatory, so named after the late Grand Duke Constantine, who gave a portion of his beautiful park at Pawlowsk as a site for the establishment, has real-cobbedly been the finest observatory in the world, over since its foundation nearly twenty years ago. Its excellence is due to the following circumstances: About 1907 Dr. Heigrich Wild was railed from Switzerland to assume the posttan of director of the famous control physical observatory at St. Petersturg, and to become houl of the Russian meteorological service. Director Wild is andoubtedly the highest authority in the world on the subject of the construction and authors of using nucleorological and magnetic instruments, and he at once introduced advanced methods into the systems of work which he found already established. It was nearly ten years, however, before the desire of his heart was necomplished via, the building of a great observatory at some distance from the city, where the environment should be as perfect as possible for making meteorological and magnetic observations, and where the most relined observations read be tunde, and studies looking toward the betterment of apparatus and muthods could be carried out. He wished, in fact, to found a model observatory, and he surresded.

During its existence scientists from nearly all of the great countries of the gloke base made a pilgrimage to this observatory to study its equipment and methods, and its important features have been with by occased.

The time of five scientists and observers, and as many other employes, is occupied in the work of the observatory, which includes not only the making of the regular observations which are published in scrience annually, but also special researches, reports of which are published in "Wild's Reperturium for Metaorologie" and in the "Proceedings of the 28, Potersburg Academy of Science." The has, owing to advancing yours, tembered his resignation at its Petursburg, to take effect on September Ist, when he will return to his native country, Switzerland (in Karish), where he will occupy himself with scientific work inducembered with administrative curve. He will have behind him in Runia a public narrowers in the Constantine Observatory at Pawhorsh Frank Walley, Pa.D.

The Arrest of Counterfeiters.

Treme is probably as branch of the public service which is more suchd and efficient than the service-write division of the Trousery Department. This service has to do with dependeour spen the treasury is the form of counterfeiting and fraude upon the insernal revenue. repetally in connection with the begoir and behavior industries. It is compensed of report ment and report detection, accord of whom have been identified with it for over a quarter of a century, and have made a easily of cerns usis and criminal practices, particularly these of counterfeiting. Most of the counterfeiters of the country are brainy, crafty, courageous mos, always abort and watchful, and their dotection is only penaltic when moned regard augusity and feedbossess of character and purpose are set to do the work of running these to coner.

The recent areast in this city of the Brookway gang of counterfeiters illustrates the officomey and the methods of the severimenton form. These officers had been impaged for over two years in personny these offsulers. Often bulled, they never for a numers almost need their vigilance. The leader of the gong had been carefully shadowed, and others had been invated, long before the blow was struck. When discovered and arrested they had in their porsoulon fraudalent five-builded-dellar gold ovetificates, counterfait Canadian money, counterbut lath and coin of different denominations. and a complete plant for energing on their operations, including pister and fibre paper. No plant of equal magnitude and so complete in every detail has been captured for several The paper used in printing notes is said to have been even superior in quality to that of by the government

The head of the gang, William E. Brockway, has long been known as the cleverest and most skillful counterfador of the time. The cursor is perhaps the most extraordinary in the literature of criminal practice. Starting is life as a printer, be subsequently fourned ougraving. and then, becoming an expert, took a special course in electro-chemistry in Value. The technical knowledge time acquired he are inel to the production of electrotypes. From the very first his counterfeits were of the highest order. In one one ninety themseal deliars of government bunds of a vertain been got into the government vanilte before any suspicion was aroused as to their character. In another inter he counter futed a considerable quantity of six yer cent. United States seepen tends. Arrested and convicted, he was sentenced to prising for thirty rears, but managed to arrange a compromise with the government. Being raught again, be pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to Sing Sing for five years. He was discharged to 1887, and so far as now appears, has mover repeated himself of his will course, netwylladaming the repeated promines of amendment made by him to the authorities.

It is a little surprising that while this man has been for firsty years the most dangerous sort of criminal, and an almost constant source of fear and anxiety to the officials charged with protecting the currency from fraud, he has numerous managed to escape the punishment he descreed. Even when in press the government detectives have been analyse to relax their Vigiliance, as he managed by some turning to direct the operations of outside counterfesters and furgers.

Next to Brockway, the need important member of the group recently arrested one In. (). E. Bradford, who find managed to escape suspicion, being nonmally engaged in dentisery, thibequently to his arrest, he unfortunitally managed to chile his capture, and at this writing is still at large. Other members of the gang are of less consequence, but are all expert and skillful in their particular line.

The arrest of these persons is of great imporbance to the government, as it will check the deprodutions of estiminals whose activity has been a constant memor to the trensury. Inportant as it is however, it is felt that until the minds accomplism of the counterfeiters have been arrested, full manualty will not be amored in this particular. It is well understoot that the prominent counterfeiters of the ntry have relations with outside parties of good standing in society, who see to the inteand circulation of the torsiey and the fraulakat gerrennent and corporation securities made by them, and the express of these is of the very highest importance. But unless wanof the persons new under arrest shall become informers, as is not probable, it is burilly likely that these equally guilty parties will be discorered and made to miller the penalty due their

Mr. E. A. WILLARD, who in the absence of Clearge Goold has been rucing Unploced, in the cupacity of trial-horse, against Infrasire, saw fit on August 6th to address a letter to the regatta committee of the New York Yacht Club, formally withdrawing Vigilant from races set down for the Thursday and Friday following. This withdrawal was based upon an Accieat connection, to wit, that Infemier had failed on two separate occasions to observe the rules governing yacht-racing, and in thus falling had forestl Vigilant to give way in order to avoid a collision and so leaved was justified, and should be upheld by fair issueded men. Whether or no Mr. Willard's action was entirely in acroof with the facts, which seem to be as many as the mands on the benefa at Newport, signifies nothing.

This does, however: Mr. Willard, his entingmaster, Charles Harr, and Edmont Fish, an anasteur of good standing und an assistant on board, are sincere in the belief, to them a certainty, that in standing for the line on they did they had the right of way, and in being forced to relievable an artifest advantage they were subwitch treated. It is their contention that by holding on, as they had every right to do, they would have cut down levieuter. In view of those facts, Mr. Willard acted justificity, and his spirit of independence in refusing to be ridden over, even by those to command of the prospective sup-defender, must be admired.

As Mr. Forey Chubb, owner of the Watson cutter Queen Mab, remarked for publication.

The ruding rules are all we have to go by, and by all means let us live up to them. And there are quite as many ynoblasses who will back up this sentiment as there are to appliced Mr. Willard's protest and subsequent withdrawal.

According to Captain Haff, who handled Defender, the l'igiliant, in the second race off Sandy Hook, July 254, where the first alleged. fool was committed, while at first having the right of way, but claim to it later by hearing away for the line; that is to say, so long as she held her course close-fineled she had the right of way, but this right would be forfeited by the incoing of the whoel one speke. Captain Haff ciains that harr really did so manipolate the whist. In fact, he saw him do it; hence his subsequent action in looping Defender poing and forcing Vigilant to luff under her stern. On the other band, Charlle Burr, Mr. Willard, and his helpmates, all of whom were better able to judge the turning of a spoke than others yards away, declare that Vigitized did not bear away toward the line, but beld true to her course until a collision seemed imminent.

The question, then, resolves itself hate one of veracity, as to whether or no Vegithal bore away toward the limius Haff declared she did, and the regatts committee, by rating that Mr. Willard was uncurrented in withdrawing Vigotust—decording to their opinion to rules of racing having been righted—grant the palm of honesty to Haff. This seems pretty roughout Mr. Willard, who inspectionably took his stand with minurity of purpose, and impured only with the feeling that he was being righted are rough-dark a fixed any cagaint whatenever for the rules which should power to the latest race for the rules which should power to the

Sir Willard Are not believe that United to a factor best then liefunds, and his probes for fair play has been based upon the probes for foundation that practice-values should conform to actual rangealling, and that these rates which must hold when Defender meets Vallyric III. should be observed now for practice and as a means of safety from disqualification when such might mean the loss of the cup.

Mr. Willard, however, to spite of the fallure of his probets, has agreed to have Veyless' at the line to start in the regular trial races off Sandy Hook, which have been set for August 28th and 234, and, if used be, the 24th.

SPICESS OF ARRESTAN BOATS ARRESTA

Ningerea, Howard Goods's twenty-cuter, contiques to abow the way to the boats of her class. in English waters, thus glorifying the name of her designer and builder, Ciquain Nat. Herronhoff, to the evident disconfiture of Dritish designers, who seem absolutely incapable of hubbing oven a ten-rater able to unit within gunshut distance of Dalasta, another Herreshull beat. In a recent race sailed during Cowes regulta wook, Niepuvo ran away from a large field and flambel thirteen mineter and twelve seconds ahead (clapsed time) of Aindrey. The question naturally suggests their - as a res the evident imperiority of the flurreshofts in boats of medium and small size-how can there he any deals of Defender's ability to less the worth particularly when it is equal-bred that Defender represents absolutely the very best work, the most careful thought and attention of the Bratel gunia? While Ningers and (telera were the creations of a moment, Infronter is the result of a lifetime of work wherein trouble has not been spared and no ideas have been kept up the sleave.

AN REPERT'S DESIGN OF "DEPENDER."

Loris Nixon, formerly naval constructor to the United States Navy, and new ship-lecibles at the Commit ship-yard, Elizabethport, New herwy, ventilates his upinion of the remi-Defenden-Vallegels III, racm for the America's Cup to the effect that Defeuder, tubes she down a very marked improvement, will surely be beaten by her English rival. Mr. Sixon arrives at this opinion from a exemparison of the Vigiland-Defruder, Vigilant - Britannin, and Britannio-Valleyrie III rarm. Assuming that Butterniu is a forter beat than Vignor, and knowing by recent trial-that Defender has been smable to make as good a showing against 1'spheat as Vistagete III. dol against fictionsmis, he arrives at a conclusion which our leave little value from the very fact that no allowance is made for l'igilizat's greatly improved form over that of 1986 and 1994. This fact is great ally rounded, and it were forey indeed that Mr. Nixes, who superintended the alterations for wit, like placing of inside fallout to the extent of some throughly of pounds on her ked bottom, and the cutting of her forefoot want rightern inches in depth, should are bear his argument upon a like assumption. New Captain Baff and other experts who saw the Capitant-Sections in pass but your ware of the opinion then, and are now, that Vigiliani, over a dovot enpresurar, was from five to wrom minutes hader than Britannia. Vigebral's improved from this year is conservatively placed at these minutes. From those figures we given this conclusion: granting the Defender to be Inster than Vigilant by eight minutes, which is a fair estimate, Defender in a factor book than Britaness by eighteen missules. Now Valkpric III., in her race with Britannic, never showed herself an all-around better best than Britainis by eightesa mireles. And there you are; and what is more, the mass of yorks my experts are of the opinion that Defruiter later on will show berself better than Vigotical by at built ten minutes over a cup course, and in the subsequent races with Falkyrte III. stefoot her, barring accident or finks.

THE YALE-CAMPRISON APPLICATE MERCES.

Manhattan Field has been finally settled upon for the international college track and field games scheduled for Cetabor 5th. The time is yet weeks off, still the Leiting is becoming some pronounced daily that the English advanturers to our shares have an excellent chance of winning. Their sprinters, Brackey and others, have been doing tracevolum times in the English meetings, and seem unbentable save by such a flyer as Crumm; and Richards, who will run for Yale, is not a Crumes by any means.

While a restall few loss with substantive and equality of the section, the conjects of sport-letting American do not among the transfer the residently to-residy discourses the tile part of the among to the Year and the after to great encything to leave a unity means the practice encourse above the gift of an event to an Empire encourse the gift of an event to an Empire discourse a American copy control discourse to a great of the arms readiness upon our part to how to the Englishman, showing an evident wish to give away everything in order to insure a match, is manifest. It may be years—in the event of the present policy being pursued—before an English athlete will of his own accord challengs an American, or a tennis crack come over here without being asked. It took, by the way, five years or more of entreaty to finally get a player like Fun to visit on. In trush, on are altogether less eager for our rightful independence.

It is a pretty difficult matter to speak definitely of the entire galaxy of stars sure to wear the Moreory fact on the day of the games, for additions may be unde any day up to the very last moment. The reported acquisation of trustes, the interedispute champion sprinter of 186, account to be fronted on fact; and despite champion high-jumper Sevence's repeated statements to the officit that he would not represent the New York Athletic Circle, it seems postty systain at this writing that he will Comment is summersoury on the acquisition of two such stars, for, in form, they should make some of points in two sysums at the least.

O. T.'s from five dollars up, the sum total ranging into the theosonis. These debts, it is mid, were contracted when flarry visited America some few years ago, making quite a stay, on the strongth of his banning throwing, shot-putting, and stories of the woulds of his father or a racing man in England. The majority of time interested in Barry's return to America are of the spinion that he will come to the resolution at the last moment that a change of climate will and prove beneficial, and will stay behind to respendence.

Mr. Cleveland and a Third Term.

HERE, me some indications that Mr. I bereland really desires to he a third term excellebate for the Presidence He has printe ably prevended himself that his prefection is necessary to the safety of a country whose perple, as described by Ambanas der Bayard, are "strong, selfconfident, and opentions risbent." Regarding hipsaid on a man of disting, such semclindon would not be unparticul. But it is rang to see that minimation for another term, even if it could be obtained would prove the servet disaster of Mr. Cleveland's curses. It would expose him to a test which his reputation round. not possibly another. Enquestionably Mr. Ch-volumi is a man of mainly huncet purpose. He has exhibited as to some measures of perior -potably that of free allow reasnge -consequentable electric mend firmness of character. Her he has been headstoned and intolerant of connect; in his interfered will control be has been already profit by the brooms of experience, above to prevene and recognite the domined of the popular will; he has, especially in our hereign relations, talkyl to nomified a circle and vigitant solicitude for the protestion of American interests and rights; he inversemently untagonized the second in-best stall policy which has contributed as consumerally to our particular prospecity; and he has permitted a dehanchery of the public service to the intenst of greedy purcoantile, after in violation of his ewo engagements and be contempt of the public good. These are faults and offence which, to the person temper of the American people, would invitably procede relacie and conferentists

The which and more engactions toubers of the party real. he, if Mr. C'evelind day not, that his renomination, Ly How and other weens, would be un art of superinterfolk. They recognize especially the lowe of the notional antiquities in the third-term idea. That melipsche is found ed in the highest patriction. If some he received in are personales or argument. The people of this country in mit believe in a premium present previument enfeelthing all the attributes of a monor for. They feel that Dave would livelinger become institutions in the breestflanof a self-willed and according man like Mr. Christiand with perminence of authority. These considerations are quite sufficient to be set on the part of thoughtful Theoretical rigorous opposition to any and every maximum seeing to Ms continuous in the party beover-hip. So for Mr. Whitney is the only man of real priming new and admitted inflainne who has come and for agrees, a holled in Mr. Chartent's availability. This of course, is an exaggradion, bur it indicates the increstry of the opposition which Mr. Cleveland supposed confident has awakened. And there is a showed suspicion that ever Mr. Whitney's declarations are endoped by self-interest. B. man himself is a cambidate, when the married his Mr. Cleveland redupers, and the help of the almoustration in that event would be a very important factor in his behalf

Hard Times at Summer Resorts.

I.I. through the symmet we have one route that they were harting a but they and were income Almost Inversibly they torce attributed the hard times to the cost manner and he the wetwestler. We think it would be co have to resonable to attribute the resulting to the silver residence to the Columbia heatly. The sent option of the men conditions which Helias the wat of the Repullion there were comparatively less rach Americans, and the vacution period was very much shorter than now. Two weeks or so in the day days, or members, fishing-trips, were considered to be all that nature domoded in the way of summer revention. For such outings the seaside hotels and the belges by the lakes and in the mountains were quite sufficient, even though they were both here and rough in comparison to the great houses of entertainment which were established at a later period.

After the war there was a flash period, an era of sulparity, when newly acquired furtures were spent with a reckless disregard of good taste and mainly for the purpass of display. This was the time when summer resorts were the most prosperous, and the fortunes made as easily by the proprieture were an encouragement to other men to go into the baserious venture of building up places of resort. These classics were taken so frequently that conservative observers sow even ten years ago that the busy ness was being overdone. At the same time that this dissisting extension was in progress there was another petent influence at work which has put the finishing tought on agreement reside decembers, so that now not a few of three places are quite undone,

The influence me allighe to has been exerted by the example of the people who have long had money, and who have become so arresteneed to its possession that they bok upon it as a metter of yourse soil as a something not to be bothered about. These people have burned here in five. and they know, therefore, that real comfort, real restriction, and granine amazement are not to be found at the crowded sammer reserve, with their mese, their handle, their narred They have therefore, made summer hours for themselves or the sension, in the country, on in the mountains. To and place they transfer the servants of their bown establedments and continue, with changed autromodings, their continues life. It was the chance of mosting these people which witnessed great numbers of purseum to the nament reserve in part over. Now that that choose has bein diminuted, the greatest affraction has passed for very many powers who formerly won constant putting of the hatels. Mr. Mayo states that in his exploration of the South he has found everywhere a quickensil interest in the whole matter of education. He refers to the fact that his public addresse -- covering an area of thousands of miles have attracted large and attentive multiences; and that among the unschooled citizens, as well as among those of a higher social grade, the namest interest is manifested in the improvement of school methods and the extension of the common school system. As illustrating this public interest, it is fair to say that nearly all the Southern States are making liberal appropriations for educational purposes, and it is not, perhaps, for much to expert that the misensception which exists in sums localities so to the relative right of the blacks to share in these advantages will presently disappear. We are smore those who believe that the racial antagonisms which have heretofore existed, and which still exist to some extent, will untimately be obliterated, as the result of a policy based upon the ideas to which Mr. Mayo has given expression, and framed along the lines of the suggestions he has made ANOTHER man has discovered that General Harrison is out of politics. This time it is "one of the stanchess followers" of Senator Hill who proclaims the fact, alleging that he has it from the lips of the general binned! A little while ago the announcement was made that the ex-Provident would not under any circumstances accept a recommender. Now, according to the "original Hill man." he is going out of politics altogether. We have our doubts. General Harrison is too much of a parties to become indifferent to the daties and obligations of good citizenship. The invigorating air of the Adiromatacks must have quickened the Hill man's tengue have anguarded interprets.

A scanner of drugustores in Des Moines, Inwa, were recently raided by the police for the illicit sale of mult and alcoholic beverages. It appears that a good many of these places were to all intents and purposes salesons, the beverages being presumably sold on prescriptions. Whether the same practice obtains to Portland, Maine, we cannot say, but every visitor to thus prohibition city in sure in less struck by the great number of drug stores, all of which seem to do a thriving hadrons, and as the place is admittedly healthful the consider always arises as to where the business comes from. Another curtous fact is that in the considere portion of the city physicians seem to be almost as numerous as the drugglets. Is there any connection between these facts and the illimit sale of introductions.

Tan victory of the sound-names about of the Kentucky Democracy in the recent State convention does not appear to have been very much of a cietary after all. The platform declared for honest money, but it is mor detiberstely repudiated by a large section of the party; and Senator Blackburn, who was supposed to have been " turned down" by the action of the convention, in making a vigurour fight for re-election on a free-sliver platform, with a fair chance of surcess. It may fairly be doubted whether, under the circumstances, the election of the Democratic State ticket would really be a triumph for sound mon-tary principles. Happily the indications point to the success of the Republicans, whose attlends on the silver question is not at all doubtful, and if that shall be the entrempe of the struggle there will be genuine resent for sengratabation on the part of all friends of house finance.

THE power of public opinion is shown in the recent change of attitude on the part of the national administration in the Waller case. For months the State Department paid no attention whatever to the appeals of Cousal Waller and his friends for a visulization of his rights as an American citizen against Prench outrage and abuse. But when the newspapers took up the matter and characterized as it deserved the inactivity of the administration, it was so for roused to a sense of its duty as to demand a record of the trial, and this was soon followed by a decision to bring home the consul's wife and children, who had been left. helpless and defenseless in a heatile enuntry. There never having been any real trial, no record, of nourse, can be furnished, and having gone so far, our government cannot very well escape the daily of demanding full and anemditional reparation by Pronce for the outrage it has perpetrated upon a citizen of the republic for which it professes to entertain a cordial friendship.

The expectation that the better class of Democrats would have some measure of recognition in the reorganization of Tammany Hall has not been justified by the result. The new Tammany is, to all intents and purposes, the old Tammany, having the old leaders, except in five districts, with the same officers and the same grown pulse. All affords to broader the organization of the last to provide the measurement of the afford to the measurement of the afford to the measurement of the afford to the anti-very least to expecting that the Toperally term is anything the thought pay the materials and the many folias to the afford the principal data the Toperally term is anything the throat of the paying the materials.

truth is that the rank and file of the Democracy in this metropolis have been so utterly debanched by long submisslim to the mercenary idea in politics that they are incupublic of appreciating and asserting them-lives in behalf of pure and upright party methods, and the leaders, who are themselves absolutely destitute of moral principle, thrive and will continue to thrive upon the conditions they have created. It would be a mistake, however, to assume that Tummany can be permanently held in subjection without constant vigilance and thorough organization and unity on the part of right mimbel citizens. Just so long as Repubficus make patrouge the supreme end in politics, and Demnersts of the more sulightened class substilizate conscience and the highest civic interests to considerations of partisonship, just that long an organization founded on selfishness and held compactly together by hat and greed will be a menacy to good government and a powerful factor in our metropolitan life.

At inst the memory of Thomas Jefferson is to be preserved to New Yorkers in a bandsone monument, the construction of which is to be directed by a committee of eminent citizens of this city. They have given the award to the sculptor, T. Scott Hartley, on the report of the art committee, of which the late Richard M. Hunt was chalvman. It will embrace pertraiture and emblematic composition expressing to breaze and granite the conver of the author of the Declaration of American Independence and the faunder of the University of Virginia. The assembltre is non-political, mus-sectional, and non-sectorian in its composition, as will be seen when the names of such men as Nuch Davis, Cornelius N. Illim, ex Judge Charles P. Daly. Dr. George P. Shrady, John D. Crimmins, and Bourke Cockran are considered. This issig-deferred movement is our tainly timely now, when the city is having a new growth, with distinct schools of architecture bringing out in strong relief the new era of construction along our streets and avenues with additional parks withle and beyond the old corporate finite. It is highly satisfactory to know, ice: that an art committee embracing the advanced culture of the Union has given to the subject patient deliberation, and that the menurial movement starts out with a definite design and assumed financial socross.

I mave an interesting tale assent the late very sanguisnewspaper Indien war in Jackson's Hole, Wesming, Hist. throws rather bright light on the approved methods of modern journation. The LL D. conferred on Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, of Pushdeiphia, by the University of Edinburgh, is the second is has received, the first coming from Harvard, but it was left for the Scotch university to do him the extructrationary home of referring to him as the "chief organization to medical second in the New World." In addition to him great attainments as a physiologist, Dr. Mitchell has the origine distinction of maintaining a practice in London as well as in Philodelphia. He has one of the numerous physicians of celebrity, of whom Smolists and Oliver Wendell Haines stars examples, who have excelled in letters as well as in medicine. Dr. Mitchell is well known both as pract and as neverther and it was negligible to be been such have proved him even more than the Edinburgh degree.

The price paid is $2.000. The dwelling is undampeting and even shabbly, and is likely to preev disappointing to visitors from this side of the occur. It contains nine small nome and a mean little garden in the rest. Perhaps the most interesting feature of it is the attic room with a skylight, built by Carlyle to means the name of the crowing carks and backing shops of the neighborhood.

-Considering that Senator Margan, of Alabama is said to have a wider range of encyclopadic information than any Sentherner in public life since the days of General To-ombs, it is rather remarkable to learn that he never went to school but for three years. He seems to have here a youthful posting, for at the age of since he had read all the works of Virgil in the original Leain, and many of the rades of Harace. The Sentine is now seventy one years ald. His father died at along four, and might have lived longer if he had been willing to take his doctor's prescription of a little whisky to stimulate his flagging vitality.

The most interesting of the men made newly rich by the Cripple Creek mines is W. S. Stratton, who owns the Independence mine outright and has an interest in other mining properties. He is a carpetter, and three years ago he walked from Culorado Springs to the new camp, a distance of thirty miles, in order to save the fare, which supported to four deliars. In this way he elaborates the nevel he has in hand to the mirutest detail before putting pen to paper. Then he writes it not with great rapidity, and without erasing a sentence. Jokai is now seventy. He has been writing industriously for years and with what feenadity is shown in the estimate of one of his friends that his works contain seventy two million letters.

Bournes : What delightful associations cluster around the same, since the days that Henri Eurger, in his immertal "Vie de Bohlins," wrote of the compute, the joys, and the sorrows of Schannard and Colime, of Marcel, Rodolpho, Mimi, and Musche, and all the rest of that feative band of the Quartier Latin. Marger starved as he wrote, little thinking he had struck a chord which would ribrate in the bearts of future generations. Until he came upon the some, Bohanin, though existing in fact since the commencement of time, had received little recognition from society, and shiftless and creatic followers of the Musce were often classed with vagalends and rag-amptiles. In fact, the term "Bohanies," as Marger himself points out in his profises, was applied by some authors of melodramas to France to highwaymen and amustim, and by the masses in general to eward-evallowers, thimble-riggers, three-out-mosts men, and a thousand other "promesters of industry, who are distinguished by not possessing any of that commodity themselves."

Thanks to the same author, Bohemia to-day is an arknowledged factor in civilized society, at least such is the case in France, where Murger's memory has but recently received a tribute in because and if the very somes in which his characters are laid. Even our own country, absorbed as it is in the great struggle for material wealth, has not entirely repolled the

W. E. S. Fales, lawyer and post, cruding perspiration and geniality at all seasons of the year; Paul Potter, already the prood author of "The City Directory," foreshadowing so many subsequent theatrical successes; George R. Halm, whose presence, as was once remarked, lent an air of stately dignity to all proceedings; Capuain de Mandeville, known as the "Knight of the from Wrist" (with a record of fifteen hundred handshakes an hour); Henry Guy Carleton, the playwright; and last but not least, poor Jack Moran, the gentle warbler of dainty councts, when even a backing rough and the spectre of approaching dissolution could not detain from those remness.

The true spirit of Bohemia, it must be said, characterized toevenings at Jausa's, and the pressure of a Philistine was scoredly ever tolerated, unless, indeed, he paid a generous liquid tribute to the good of the place; for albeit the practice of "wine-opening" is the most serious offense on the calendar of Bohemia when indulged in by a member of the frateralty, there is no rule fortidding his sharing in the fruits of such deprayity on the part of a Philistine. Unfortunately for Jausa, these "terrible examples" were not sufficiently frequent to compensate him for losses in other directions, and one fine day the habitus's found their gathering-place in the hands of workmen, transferring it into a vulgar, every-day liquor-store.

Barring the food, which was slatistiable, the place had a good deal of the Latin-quarter flavor. The menu was written in French, and the waiters answered you in the suce language. The presence of actremes out of work and "gravites" -I think this is what they loved to hear themselves railed-and the penemi Weincelliere of the greats, as a whole, brought to mind some of the students' entire-launce of the Ras Jacob or the Resistant St. Mirror. Despite the fixed and a growing tendency on the fandlish's part nie to give credit beyond certain resonable limits, the place floorished for several years, during which time its portals were derivened by geniuses of every stripe. Maintee Barrenere, Witten Locksye, Augustus Thomas, Edward Henley, Laura Burt, Daisy Temple, Maled Morris, Eay Donglass. Bertha Colley, poor Selimi Dolars in the fast stages of her mainly, Nottle Lyford, and many more constituted the theatrical contingent. I was term on Engineed, but my father and mother imagnated to Asserted and current me there when I was an infact. Office. bare I heard my mother tell of the hardships of the journel by sea. They settled in Cherry Valley. We know the Ameriren troops had been unfected not far away, and there was talk of mussacres by Tories and Indians; but Cherry Valley had a strong fort, and Colonel Alden, who was in command, was confident of our safety. Unfortunately he knew nothing of Indian warfare. The villagers remained in their houses until they were aroused by a savage war cry outside the stockade and fort. Colonel Alden, it turned out, had been recomneitring in a free-and-easy way, and was scaldealy surprised by an Indian scout. He fired his pistol and run for his life, but he was killed before his men inside could repel an ususuit, and the pext unxuent, as it seemed, the rillage was full of Indians under their willy chief, Joseph Brant. Fifty people were manuered, many of them women and children. My father and mother were among those who fell. The soldiers in the fort barely hold their own againsta troop of the British, but a young French officer did wonders in the way of combat with the Indigus. He ensiched me from death and bure put to the fort, where a few others of the villagers found shelter. The fort was not capturad. It stood a siege of several hours, and finally best off the enemy. Help came, I think ; for the French efficer, with part of the garrison, went out in pursuit of the Indiana, and I never save my deliverer again until that day of the Bastille, when I was bending a hand to the patrints of Paris. I flung myself muning his assailants, and, drawing their attention from him for a moment, assisted his escape. The Chinese Feeling loward Foreigners.

It is difficult to think of taferior nations as experiencing contempt for the superior. Enry. admirative, emulation, or hopeless difference, they may all feel; but, with only one exception, inne now look down open their Western rivals. That exception is China. The pre-eminence of the Celestini kingdom, in all was ways and works, is to the true Colonial absolutely undoubted. He is as sure of it as others can possubly he of the reverse. All other races, tribes, and peoples are to him simply outer barbartane; to be repelled if possible, frightened if practiratio, endured in distainful allence if necessary, as the priest Roman Empire endured perforce the enslaughts of the despised Vandals of the North.

This rurious national concett is administration. The government carefully between it. The most of the Chinese people never hour of China's defoots. Those who did hear, for example, of England's last war with China, emling in the occupation of Felting, were informed, and to this day believe, that the pany English, finding their warnise efforts fittile, ended by humbly dispatching an automorphism is the capital of the Son of Houseavan an expedition large and uplentidly arrayed as became an embuny to such a potentials—to see for years! Other parts of China gained different inquestions, as with some of the tributary Thibetan officials. In the course of a scerting of these officials with some English officials remarking a matter affecting the Nikking frontage, reference was incidentally made by the Engladeren to this capture of Felting. "You said the Thiles. sas, laughing, "we know you said you went there, and we roul with much approximant your guestes giving your account of it all. Her fastest day's run of two bundred and almoteen miles must be considered excellent, in view of her small sail-spread, and the fact that she was not strained a particle and carried nothing sway speaks well indeed for her senguing qualities and the thorough manner in which the was fitted out.

The rig which she carried is known as a "last'h," and consists of mainsail, jigger, top-sail, stayanil, and jib. Though steemed with the much-depised wheel, she with in her races, carry the long and topering titler, a feature of all Europain raceing yardets.

It will thus be seen that the English cruftmade the trip in something over twe-ty-twodays, viz., from Gourock, or about twenty-onedays from Tory Island at the entrance to the channel. This, of course, does not equal by any neems either Vigiland's sustward or westward records of fourteen and eighteen days respectively. Under the circumstances, however, of unfavorable weather and reduced rig, the trip may justly be counted a fast one. Below stack the English lead may be briefly described in this way: At a point about twentyfive feet forward of the tailruit, or six feet about the jigger must, is the mess-coom for the officers; then forward of this is the main caldin, some ten yards in length. Further forward of the cabin are the mess tables on each side, leaving a rarge space accidables which shows to advantage the tout's great leave, probably not less than twenty six feet. Then comes another tulkhead, with a door on the part side leading to the galley; and the must is stepped about ten feet forward of the buildhead.

Valkyrie III. Is a composite best—viz., she is one built of wood with steel beams and, contrary to custom, instead of the usual copper bottom, a newly-patented black lead examel protects her under-body.

It is and to say that public interest was never at such lever pitch as it is in reference to Volhyrre III., and it is quite as safe to assert that no English cup-challenger of the past has created such a respectful opinion of our yachting experts. Two points of particular preminence shand out in this feeling of respect. These are, firstly, her American appearance in form, and secondly, the really gigantic spars which tell of the clouds upon clouds of current possible to strotch from shek to lefty truck.

The glames of a samifables is alone sufficient to show the minds of Lord Duncaven and Designer Waters as reflected in their hant—minds which from with the determination that Varingers III, will not be cutdense by Lefender in the matter of power, where power in molecule meather means as much. In 1860 a little more power to drive Vallaces would have surely meant the salling of at least one more race, for in the fifteen sails run hand from the hant to windward, in which she heat out Vapilical in landy fashess, a little more curves would have made a minute difference, and Vapilical, it will be recalled, actually was by seconds only covered time.

In view of Volture III,'s appearance in these waters, and attention universally focused upon her; it may prove interesting to review briefly her trial work in English waters against division in and Alber.

Over a fifty mile course the Voltages III. defeated the firstermin about ninetern minutes. There was a nine-mile whole-mil become blowing at the time. This was the fact of the three trials which Vallege's III. had with Jirthanain, the first taying keep miled in a light wind; which wafted Danaraton's load for about, then left her baralimed. The second race was miled in a stiff wind, and Vallege's III, showed herself smaller to carry effectively her incomes space and sall-spread. The third trial was a conclusive me, however, as showing the replationary a wanderfully fact boot in a moderate to light lower.

Now, a nighteen minutes' best for fifty mine is in the properties of about fourteen minutes for thirty miles, the regular rep control for freeder has not encreased in administering such a leading to Uniford for thirty unles, but this fees not signify nearly.

We do know, however, that Fryshord is salting as sever before, this year, and Britannia, too, countd but he as good or a bit better than is any previous season. He has shown this to no insertain way by defeating, these sed again, diles, the new '95 We heat, and a heat rating several from more than Britannia. Honey the heats able to defeat these proven flyers forestrely must both be weathers. Then, when we take into constderation another fact, to wit, that Velleyrie III. Is and to perform to these waters even before than about, one-viction abused becomes a vertainty that the America's Cop is for the first time really in hanger.

PIRO, LORE TRADES. MAY ROPES IN THE FORESTRE WITH AGE.

The recent puls games at Newport were largely enjoyed by the assembled bandreds of devotees of the game, but so far as " good pole" wont, were but little letter than the average games of the past, which shows that our puls experts are but little, if any, better new than they were several years ago, when an English carries on we have word daffa shed the v American players possible to get together, with emperaments once. While the riding was generally better and faster, there seemed to be as little conception of team-play as formerly, and right here we find our greatest weakness; and such a weakness becomes a certain factor of defast when the opposing team play as a team, playing not at hapharard and relying upon in dividual brilliancy, but together into each other's bonds, and busing all their combinations upon principle, not back.

Time was when American polo-players could not make one face-hand strake of merit in a diametries. Now the very best are fulfigurations in making well-directed shots of this style, though the file archesty to get in one good one in six attempts. The English team already apoint of showed up in this particular to great advantage, and it is not stratching the truth rue hit to say that the major part of their back-handers were as good and teiling as the forward, straight-alread strokes of the American points.

Them, too, in obsetting for goal, particularly off to one side, uniform accuracy of strong seems to be wanting still among American players, save with possibly six exceptions in the entire string of players of the different clubs here in the East.

Of course there is an excuse in a way to be found for these lacks, which render our game so beignificant in comparison to that played in England or in India, and that is the great expense which attends the practice of the game. The poor man easily play; militer can the man of mealerate means. Hence the pole list must look for its champions among the very few—or those who resublies large incomes with the desire to chine in the pole world. While three out of every ten of these furturate mortals play the game because if is feedemable on to the giving them the while a certain completeness prominence in the sectal world.

The pole men to-day who would receive any consideration whatevers were a midch on the card with an English team, neight be counted upon the fingers of our hand. After Cowdin. Keene, Shaw, Bitchevek, and a few others, the search would have to be keen indeed to asserth a player supuble of making any wei of showing.

But, after all, the game of pole may be likmed to beants in this country, all it needs being time to grow and get firmly santed in the blood of the rising generation of athletically-inclined Richard Croker in England.

On the Earning Road, in the village of Newmarket, about a mile and a built from the great pare-track of the same asser, stands Richard Creker's cottage and training parking. It diffore but little from the some of other collages. which have been three Imager than the shiest inhabitant. It is a transvery building of brick, with a big extension, and stands on a plot of ground about two arms in extent. Hark of the brose are the stables and quarters, surrounding a residual is nort-yard, into which the owner and friends are driven through an archway, over which, faintly som through the point, is a coatof arms. There is a front cutrance, but that is rarely said. The house, with the extension, mulaine fourteen rooms, Mr. Croker and Ide friends overgring the main forms and the trainer, lockeys, and boys the extension. The stables have accommodations for freety-five horses, and contain but stalls about the same else un those in this recently, but they are of store and brick, rough-fluided, and much less comfortable than those seen on this side of the WARRY

Adjusting the house, and agreemented by a teriro-fact wall of round fligt stone, invered here and there with English ivy, is the yearling puddock, with a truck about a sixteenth of a mile in length. This is reached from the road for a high gate, and from the stables by two openings, one of which was cut by Mr. Croker. - The place has been bound for some tion, and is known as the Middleton Cottage. It has been a training place for many years, and well-known thereughterels have got fluir early administration in the yearling publish. Mr. Croker does not live at the cottage, but makes revasional trips there, where he watches his horses at their exercise and gets reports of their work and prospects. It is a gulet place, with no attractions beyond till lorses, and the winds section seems to leave been given over to them. On race-days it is a firely place, but on off days flore are few people to be seen.

In the training stables, at present in charge of slobe Decreis, who has broken yearlings in this country for many years, are the well-known American recent, Dobbins, Armitage, and Prince George; But Gallie and Montank, the two-pear-aids which have never rate in this country, and fifteen yearlings. The yearlings were purchased from Milton Young, and sore shipped a short time age! Sinc of them are by Hamover, and six by Strathesore. They are all out of well-bred dams, and are well engaged in English stakes. They are well broken, and when they start will be fit to run. Mr. Croker is expected back in New York within a month, but will return to his howes and he with them during their races. C. P. Sawyes.

Forging Armor for Battle-ships.

THE process of forcing armor plates for the hattle-ships of the new navy, as carried on at the works at South Bethleheni, Pennsylvania, is our of deep interest. A picture of the great hammer used in the process is given on another page. The artist, in describing the scene, m) " In the centre most the great hammer. reaching upward sixty feet into the bline hade which filled the building. The eye, following the outline downward toward the base, rested for a moment on a bright railing around a platform about eight first above the ground. figure of a man emerged from the darkness and leared against the railing. There are two cranes, one such side of the hammer, constructed in the strongest manner. The enginess operatting the crame the compressed air. A long steel beam lies on the ground. There is a drum formed about one-third the distance from one and ; this dram is bulkwed out something like a speed. A very leavy chain is passed under this and upward ever a cylinder flanked on rether side by regentorie. A round, elegider sted rod coansels this with the machinery on the crane. The great beam is lifted and run over to one of the four furmers, two on each side of the building. The cast of the beaute to enlarged so so to form what to called the 'thirti-This fits over the sud of the steel ingest heating in the furnace. The furnace gate in lifted, a flood of light illuminates the faces of the men, and as the cross promotors a slow, stendy inovement away from the furnace the ingot comes into view and blazes with a whiteheat, the result of sixty-two hours' expensive to the intense action of gue-fuel.

"The mass of heated story is put upon the savil and shaped, turned on edge and gently tapped, and again placed that down and struck with an energy of our hundred and thirt's tous The ground tairly trembles, and a stall thred strikes the our, but the facut display is ween when the scales are removed by pouring a thick stresso of water over the surface of the plate. Then the hammer descends with cutt force, thus sir is filled with flying jurticles of stool, and every our weeks some shelter, watching moutiwhile the workman on the small platform working a lever up and three like a ticket-chapper at an obviously calle and station, the baumost Pollowing the movement of his hand. It turns into flame while he takes an observation or two and then rushes hack ways ing his snoking model and buying a thin trail of smoke behind him."

The Chinese Massacre.

THE Chipses sutherities are making a presum of complying with the British demand for an investigation into the recent massacre of missionaries, but the latest assumts above that the commission sent to the screen is receiving no. real assistance from the gryremount, and that the inquiry will probably prove futile. Great. Britain has refused to discuss the question of indemnity until the perpetrators of the outrage are punished, and if this attitude dual be pursteled in, as it probably will be, China will finally be compelled to abundon her triffing policy and not decisively, or take the comeclusive that the massacres were deliberatedy planned, and the government could easily detest and bring to punishment the actual offeraders if it cored to do so. The plea that the vegetarians who are immediately accountable are too powerful to be dealt with in a densetic fashion does not, of course, abote in the longt. the responsibility of the imperial authorities, and will not modify in the slightest dogree Brit. ash or American opinion. We give on another page two illustrations of a see of the victimes of the murderons attack.

New York's Object-Lesson.

EAVING uside altogether the quantimens to whether the Sanakay functions of the carine law are or are not underly rigid, one thing has certainly been settled by the policy of our policy commissioners, and that is that the law can be enforced, even in our polygist community. Notembered absolutely in the sense that some individuals cannot evade it by a resert to artiface and conspiracy, but so enforced as to practically are use the ends for which it was consisted.

Comparatively speaking, the enforcement of this particular has in self-ectual, considering the magnitude of the interests involved, the multitude of presum it affects, and the appenies and passions it convenients as that of any other has upon the shoute-back.

If the maintenance of how, as the embediment of the popular #10, is ownerful to the public and individual substy; If the secretegaty of the State, incremted in statute, is in the last resort the surpresse butlesse squired smarrly and misrule, then the fact here demonstrated in the metropalso of the nation, that the laws can be enforced and the authority of the State vindicated against amough whenever an homest effort is made to coforce them, is of the very highest importance and value. It affords a comparison object-losses to the entire country of the abouty of the censtituted authorities to deal with the most across and dengerous forms of harbonness and circ. It must be remembend that the exclusion has to do with the appetite of more lations and a spring; it lays restraint upon present and organized great; if concless intimotely the classes when construe liberty to mean livense; it contributes pre-pulses and optobour which, in some cases, are hearestly entertained by citizens who have no sympathy with lawbosome, and the effort to autore it consolidates in appeal on influences and forces stronger and more resolute than are found to organized resistance to may other law. It is to be recessehered, too, that for years the few four been positively Ignored, an end attempt having been made to enforce steprovisions, and that as a toruit of this argiest on the pure of the authorities, and the agen and defaut healthy of interrated chance the difficulty of its exception had been greatly increased if indeed, the possibility of emopelling a decent observance of Simpley buil out come to be marting of almost universal-doubt. And yet, in face of all these facts and conditions, it has been and is being colored. As the result of a conscientions, well-directed, persistent effort it is demonstrated conclusively that the State is stronger than the values, and arranger than any and all calons of parthat percenters in alliance with 0 : that, moreover, it is a pure fullicy to assume that law, as such and because it is the low, cannot be made actually effective or against any form of opposition wintever.

There is not a city in the Union where the result which has been achieved here cannot be shaplicated if the executive authorities will employ, femostly and positively the reasures at their remound is the inverest of low and order. The dominance of the lawless elements in Chicago and other leading cities in recent years has been largely diases. the inactivity and indifference of the public officials, who have excused their failure to perform their duty by the pretense that public apinion rould not be relied upon to support them in any attempt to enforce certain boxs that, in other words, the subasa, the quabling-field such brothe) counted for more than the consciouse and law-abiling spirit of the people. It are led the bombs of the Haymarket massiers to swaken the people and author has of Chicago to even a dim perception of the necessity, sail to say the possibility, of enforcing the law against the nondepois nurchists who were piotting against the public peace. There are a dozen populous Western cities in which the Sunday faw, so called is inditinally violated with impunity, the day being characterized by lawlessness, disorder, and debouckery, in deliance of the best public sentiment, solely because of afficial individits as cowardies. At this boar the State of Kanson, once dominated he all its affairs by the high-st civic spirit, is turn over the question of the enforcement of the prohibitory law mone of the municipalities presenting the spectacle of open delhance of its requirements, while others, covering to fire the heaves of the slams, make no alterapt at all to matatain it. The break-down of nutbority is not contined by any means to one class of offerses. Men delisarh the field, correct Legislatures attack property and business by stylkis and combines, rob institutions, States and cities, perpetrate all acres of social and political anormities, and the law remains a dead letter as to all these offenses because timid, half-heartest flubby offenses either choose to regard it as incapable of enforcement, or are unwilling, for some other reason, to make an attempt in that direction.

To all officials of this class, and to the feeble-hearted folk of every exemposity who have lost faith in the potency of law, the city of New York offers in evidence the work of her police suthuities as illustrating the conpetency of law to do its work, fully and effectively, whenever the power following in it is arrively asserted. In the face of what has been seconsplished here no American commonity can excuse itself for acquirescence in the domination of the sellitors classes. The popularity or unpopularity of a given statute counct and does not affect the door of the curvative of the obligation of citizens encorning it. So long as it stands it is on ally the duty of the one to enforce and of the other to oldy and respect it. And if our institutions are to lar preserved in their invegrity, and we are to become a determining factor in the tife and riviliration of the future, we must settle down to this deliberate consisting as to the supremovy of her in all its wide relations and the disty of the public administration and of every individual cities to uphold and maintain it.

Reform in Census Methods.

We are glad to see that our suggestions in reference to the establishment of a permanent comma bureau are arousing public attention and finding condial proposes from mony turborated new. Among others who have written as on the subject is Mr. J. M. Eddy, of Son Procedure, who me years ago made a skullar suggestion as to the desirability of a permanent woman to Mr. Cornell D. Weight in connection with the Blate Educational till then pending in Congress. Mr. Ethly'n anggettimi. Inwester, was not only for a permanent bureau, but for a unite frequent repeat, to be taken through the medium of the public whole. His argument in bour of this plan is that the whost district is practically uniform se a political director of every State; that the scorder in such district; being whetel with reference to comperency and without regard to partoughly, and home throughly acquired and fundifiate with all band interests and conditions, is proudiarly qualified to make a pourly remove and to keep a local reonlink all information available, both for purposes of your softstem and recognition; and that the work can be done williams, additional cost to the other tracept to the begger ration is the law requires it as a part of the tember's disting He motioning funder that the patternal government rapid affect to pay most aboutly for an around consur available my treat of the strends. The suggestion here made is coming morths of course basis. The present manage of taking the seyour publics, in we have before said, most of the limited in expected from the new of the statistics, he expeof the delay in making stem as allable. This is especially true to both. State-of the West which are developing as rapidly that what is true of them this year may be entirely false next year. It is a fact worthy of more that commen clar organizations, improvement claim, and heat summy urties are mustally expressing thousands, if me millions, of hollars to prevale themselves quickly with the very indicmarries that the national ressure is supposed to provide, but which it is so show to believe and postdicking that he medulates industryed. While all remanquilies that that data concerning their own population and refusition are special, the highest intility is obtained only when a nompartient can be made with equally reliable data respecting after communities.

Mr. Eably says truly that "An blyed symma in this age is not where the information to be collected to a matter of study provided and soways a milible for government use any stay it may be mivisable to leave the information transmitted to the department. Such compilions might be brought about by mapping the suggestions much hereigh."

The Forestry Problem.

SE of the actions questions provide great, in the heading of our trees and forests, from untiling irreportable pathin detrinated. The last that the White Mountains have been about of their beauty in an many rare places by the humberness had the New Hampshire Legislature, not have use to appear a constribution to set to the nucleir, and to provide some means. If provide, to prevent their further despotations.

It seems that this State fourthly solving, for a patrial sease the best of he limbered area or any stately years are so that is him to face the emplement fact that the charmes of its seeming are left to the could make of the daingled over relative for the venture. The owner method is to some the forests being seemi amotion and an appeal to best a meltionic of forests, the State removing is complying these in every community where the times are perilinsity threadened. We understood, also that private individuals have exempted private tracked to designed to show the ultimate below of reckless that designed to show the ultimate below of reckless that designed to show the ultimate below of reckless that designed to show the simple effect. Not have again towards story was toked the simple efforts in this direction of one woman who without another efforts in this direction of one woman who without another.

means, managed to save a very considerable tract of picturesque New Hampshire woodland, by slowly, and by piecement, as it were, obtaining possession of it.

It is the fact, not denied, that the practice of custing down only trees of mature growth, or of a certain specified height and diameter, and then planting all the vacant acres which do not respond themselves to a new growth, is the one that is the most profitable in the cast. And it is this fact which the commission is now going about to enforce.

It is said that come of the various pulp-mills follow this plan, while others do not, but strive simply to see how quickly they can make the mountains maked, and the Merrienee and Suco rivers run drier. A marked diminution of those streams, the sources of large water power as well as of atter usefulness, is sure to color if the reckless cutting of the forests should be continued.

New Hampshire is half forest, and will be able, no death, to save this graceful and profitable adversment. But Michigan, Wiscoosin, and the Partite slope, and our swn Adirondsche, need this New Hampshire propagands, too. And there is one thing that even State have might de. The practice so universally prevailing among lambermen of leaving the chips, branches, and debris of their work behind them as they pass on to further devocations should be at once stapped. Millions of deliars worth of property have been desirayed by the fires resulting thereforem, and tragical scotes of ioss of life and home have followed.

The Care of Needy Gentlewomen.

VERY one who instructed, even in the most dilectante way, upon a philosthropic work, must have been confronted with one great problem—what to do with the great body of destitute women who belong by right of hirth and education to the upper classes.

Every rate known some this cay of graitlewoman, old and do-except, or merely and hopelerally incompetent, allow support is a more salty and too often a burden upon unsympathatic friends. For the women past middle life there is accurated to be a safe and happy haven in one of the numerous old bulles' insure. For the younger but equally helpbest one there is absolutely nothing. Unless suffering from work ofference, she is not "case " for a hospital, the woman who is morely "deficate," whose constitution is broken shown and whose nerves are shottered from bounds or every stream, who is planshally inexpable of steady work or any accumined effort, has, in point of fact, no choice hetween private charrity and the poor hours.

The ideal charity is that given privately and personally, and it can be made except to possible, as well as much blemed to give. Hut where this is impossible, is there nothing better more burning more kindly, than the dilly philanthropy of the county poor-brone or the old buller bonto? Homes nature algors to bring travel in the fump; she strongest formen instinct and the last to the in that of ladjcidentity - the right of one's willowd - as jeclously, if unemedically, leagued fast by the battered purper in the streets, so he the "daughter of a handred saris." ich is more than incut, and the body than raiment," and for samy a acusitive and gently reared woman, old of young, it is far easier to struggle day by day through a issing bottle with starrentime, imbependent and alone, than to sask into the hopeless swamp of purporism; to be bested with others like a flock of sheep, without distinction. without privacy, employ to a common decidered by rates and restrictions, and counted as one more "case" in a hunalred for a board of managers to feed and houtle

The old almshows in England, survivals of the Middle Ages, deal more kindly with their occuprons. There, in the photoresque new id quaint, semi-detached entrages, all thatch and galdes and leaded window punes, each old woman is mistress of her own fireside. She may cook her own fault disper, and brew her sown conforting cup of lea in her own hit of grandmather's china, and she may boll the door on her sesitable and he happy or miserable, sociable or misanthropic, in her own way. Is such a system impossible in Amorion 5. Cannot the restless energy of the An demore, beining over into nimont every channel provided hetween beaven and earth for the outflow of buman vitality, turn and grapple with this problem-the problem of b bed to charge a productoid, unleving system of organized rearity into use that shall neverone the individuality and much the sympothics and preserve invinite the self-respect issue disasters have had Utopian visions of a homewhere gravit-watter — old and middle-agod and somitincallulat—model shalter, under one root, indeed, but not accessarily regular; a home like a great sportment house, conducted on the same lines, and insuring to every lady who entered it the same privacy and scalarium subject to the same governing rules, that she would find thinky wellregulated New York flat. The number of watter thus accommodated would accessively be limited, but for a larger proportion there should be provision in the form of a quarterly stipped, varying perhaps with the needs of the beneficiary and puld with few or no conditions, thereby leaving her free to arrange her manner of life as star pleased. Surely there should be men and women in New York able and ready to associate together in endowing such a fund, solely for the help of women of their own class, once, perhaps, standing on their own level of prespecity.

Tirk multiclication of organized agravies for the improxement of the conditions of child-life is one of the marked features of our modern social development. It is not too much to say that within a quarter of a confary the relation of society toward the children of the poor, the vistims of crucity and neglect, has been radically revolutionized, so that now, instead of mulifference those or less complete, we have punifested everywhere the keenest interest and solicitude as, to the condition of this unfortugate class. Here, for instance, is the fresh air work of the Frince, in aid of which contributions, indicating the wide popular interest felt in it, come from all parts of the Union, and even from foreign lands. Only the other day a gift of conhundred dollars was rewived from far Australia, and offerings are not infrequent from other countries equally remote. It must not be forgotten that every work of this character is a double beauticence, in that while 0 benefits be objects it blesses also those whose sympathy makes it possible. Think how it has awakened and atimulated the benevolent Impulses of multifudes of children all over the casualty who. In helping to brighten the livre of others, have themselves been broadened and enriched in motive and repiration. There is nothing more beautiful-making that illustrates more effectively the feeling of human kinship—then the spectacle of thousands of children, of every nort and condition except the lowest and present, resuspiring to promote, in all kindly chiblish ways, this freshair benefaction.

The coming Atlanta experition will have at least our movel feature. The managers have set apart a building which is to be devoted to no exhibition of the progress reducational and iminstrial, which has been made by the negre since his emancipation. The more intelligent blacks of the South have taken up the matter with a great deal of interest and embueism, and it is already exhibit will be one of the most juteresting and valuable of the expectation. It speaks well for the morogous that they rangelize the progress which the blacks are making, and are disposed to afford them an opportunity to above to set the world the results of their graving anliquement and scalinity in solucation and the various industries with which they are blemithed.

Tux recent conviction and imprisonment of a prominent Mexican official and arciety man who had killed an antagunlet to a duch marks a great advance in the popular sentiment of that reuntry as to this particular method of avenging real or imaginary injuries. The time is not very remote when the exerviction of a duelist by any unitsary jury would, if it had been possible at all, have provided almost universal protest. Now it appears that public opinion aroundly demanded the punisions of the survivor. of the fight, and the court not only sentenced him to three years at hard labor, but required him to pay the funeral expenses of his victim, and also he pay the widow the sum of four thousand five hondred didlars annually for a period of eighteen years. The effect of this complemens visitiention of the sacredness of human, life, in ubedience being overwhelming public sentiment, cannot be otherwise than most salutary in holding in clock the more violent classes of Mexican see icty.

WHILE this year's wheat erop is small, the even croppromises to be the largest in the history of the country. Estimates of the Agricultural Department place it at 2,500,000,000 bushels. At the present market price this will yield a total num of $788,000,000. If the price shall teach the average for the had six years the farmers of the country will receive for this year's crop the sum of $165.-000.000, exclusive of the value of the stalks used for fadder, which, at the lowest rate communical in recent years. would amount to some $250,000 one. The largest yield in any previous your was 2,200,000,000 bushels in 1800. The reports from the Danube show that an immense crop is also expected there. Expects give it as their opinion that prices will not be lower than these of last season, while conditions may arise which will assure an advance. Inany event, the Popullat calamity howlers will not first much encouragement for a prosecution of the posimistic propagands in which they have found so much satisfaction.

The recent election of Mr. Edward E. Poor as president of the National Park Bank of this city is an event upon which the friends of that incritation may well felt-interthemselves. It assures an unifresten continuance in the line of exceptionally able presidents who have from the first directed its affairs. Mr. Poor, who is a native of Boston, and in the prime of life, has been blentified with the business interests of New York since 1864, when he engaged in mercantile purentle, a year interconnecting himself with the house of which he has been for rightern years the senior partner. The firm known as I leany, Poer & Co is que of the leading commission houses of their line, representing large manufacturing corporations, and has houses in both Boston and Chicago. Mr. Poer became a director of the National Park Bank in 1888, and in 1883 was elected one of the vice-presidents. He has been a member of the Union League Club since 1870, a member of the Chamber of Commerce since 1872 is a life-tuender of the New England Secrety, and a member of the Merchants and Manhattan Clubs. He is in every respect admirably equipped for the duties of the position to which be line now from always ed.

It is said authoritatively that there un: tifly thousand children in this vity between the ages of six ann eighteen years who are made to find personneciation in our public schools. That is a very grave and startling statement, and it is not supprising that it is provoking show and anxiety among thoughtful citraeus. It provate a condition of affairs whileh is full of menace to the social order. It accounts, too, in a measure, for the dominance which the evil forces have acquired in our civic life. With thousands of chilthree graving up in ignorance and vice, and coming to the receive of the reasonabilities of vitizendin without any real equipment for their intelligent discharge, what womber is it that goes government has been difficult, and that denugators and mercentries of every sort have preyed upon the community? Historicy is always and everywhere a source of peril to popular institutions, and if this metropolis is to become the influential factor it might to be in the tellionel life it must make adequate provision at once for the education of every child within its limits. It has become commonplace to comment on the versatility and many addedness of Andrew Lang, but the varied accomplishments of Bramler Matthews among surselves seem hardly to lince been realized. Our mental facus is postably better adjusted on Lang, he being a foreigner and Matthews but an American—on American, however, who not only takes a pure pride in that mere fact, but who grows almost traculent over the cisims of any other nationality to intellectual precedence. MOUNTAIN-CLIMBING AND SIGNALING BY HELIOGRAPH.

First the international line between the United States and United almost to the boxder of Mexico, the Cocade and Sterra. Secula ranges of mountains are sentimeted by large valuate peaks, covered by sternal sunw and mannet and gashed by ridges of here and mighty cultons, and drouked with rivers of glacial ice. These mountains are from thirty to one hundred mile apart, and form a connected line of signal-stations for more than a thousand miles. Nowhere the in the world is found such a chain of volcanic peaks, averaging more than two miles in feight, as is repatituled by flaker, Halnier, St. Helens, Adams, Hood, Jufferson, Davie Sisters, Diamond, Pitt, Shasta, Lauces, Lois, Round Top, Comes, and Whiteey, and rensequently nowhere size would have been issuesived the herealous undertaking of converting such of these peaks into a belingraphic signal-station, and transmitting a message by son-ducies from one end to the other. Such was the plan certified by the Mammas, a morntain-climbing club of Oregon, a few guestia ago, and receptly partially carried out.

After a value effort to induce persons in California to look after the portion of the line in that State, the audity effected six peaks in Oregon and Washington, these in each. and confined their efforts to an attempt to send a message across the two States, from Baker on the morth to Diamond on the worth. The highest of these is Bainier, 14,444 feet, and the lowest Diamond, 9,500 feet. The extreme distance is about four hundred miles. The time selected was at cases, July 19th, at which locar the various parties were to make their appearance upon the summitted their respective mountains with their beliegraph instruments. It is easily to be seen that this was the most difficult portion of the feet. The mountains are all remote from lines of travel, and srown the summit ridge deep cad parties detailed to Ratnier, Adams, Hood, and Jefferwa reached the summits in good season. The Paker party retorned foulfied after five-days of floundering in the dense Surem and rugged endone that hem that nountain in, and the party that plunged into the almost unknown wilderness aftent Dismond Peak has not even been heard from. Messages were interchanged between Adams and Hood, sixty miles apart, but the done smoke that had been blown in for two days by a strong cost wind som out them off, and at the same time prevented communication with the other mountains. Had it not been for this unfavorable and unusual atmospheric condition messages would have gone from Barrier to Adams, Heed and Jefferson, and perhaps blancord; for the instruments were all in placy and the operators skilled in the use of them.

The main body of the Mummus went to Adams. How they got there is a story in itself, but suffice it to say that on the orening of the math there were eighty two persons escamped and the little patches of snow and scrubby timber, about six thousand feet up the mountain-side, near the point where the forest and the perpetual snow have their

BITALD IN LOVE AND WAR.

National good news not lead traveled very quickly in the first days of the French haveletion; though there was in the air on lastinct of dire events.

The taking of the Bastille was a mere local incident to thousands of Parislans, and the full of the Tuilertes was accomplished without the fierre din and stir of it being full beyond the funious go.

Count de Fournier, however, early in the morning of the evention day, finding that he might be seriously original in Parts storn he about the taking part in the excessing of heart-field in the Chitmus de Layest, dispatched Jaffray Elliests to acquaint the presence most concernal, heyered blowelf, with the possibility of his presence being delayed by events which he count unterpress.

We have seen how it fared with the count's ambassesher. It is now the luminous of the interior to follow the adventures of the master. To this purpose it will be measure to make the render acquainted with other builting characters in this drama of low and war.

The receiving of the letrothal of Mathibia do Louvet othe gracious friend of Marie Scovset) to Honri Cents de Foureier had been fluid. for the very day open which the mawked weaking of Locio the king had signed the doubwarrant of his brave Swim Stones and the full of his directly. You may see the step of paper to time day to a black frame at the Carnavalet Museum, in the handwriting of the unfortunate remarch; a disple thing to have ramed as much amediat. Neither Swiss Church not the courtiers in aftendance on the royal basely over dramoel that they would not be free at least his defend thermelyes, whatever concessions the king suight be induced to make he his oppo-Bertific.

I want de Fourtier was an officer of Hausies, and was making arrangements to join Lefty after on the frontier, whither he had toped to induce his prospective relatives by marriage to accompany him, with a view to their leaving France until fee political feembles should be pulliciously actively of such members of the arthreview as desired to live at home in peace and on good berne with thouseighbors. But the Duke de Lauvet was a stern and promi off regulant, strong in in table to the respect of france, with a restant of france deals and an hore— being in the fainty of the nutties to the mar, who had been true to her is all weathers, and I, would not been true to her is all weathers.

It was the dulors staff-neckedness that had forced on old custom of the faculty buts public ofeervance when it might have taken place privately with much propriety, at a time when saything like sortal display was an invitation to descenate certains and result. For the people had suffered gravemely at the hands of their meananterane rulers. Even in the village life of France the despetie had of a greating tyracery but form felt by all closur being the unit. All this made a firte at the Children de Leuret, a most travise provening.

Count de Fineraire and the Deputy Grobacrul were strangely alias in person, and ther layed the same worsen, Maderiantedle Mathifile, the only dissiplifier of the Duke and Duction de Louvet. This southment, however, was the only framen link between them, if we except pride and a cortain mingling of blood that did not make for power.

Nevertheless, they both claimed to be potrious. Each, in his own war, was ambitious for the glory of his country. These entered, James et al., in the political faith of the Deputy Grelacient settich influences that were foreign to the nature of his rical.

It was not generally known that the two meaners treithers. Mailane the board was not the mother of Count de Francer, though the late visint was the failur of both. The harmission on Grahaman's considered had not both that back in his field for favored for time. As fate would have it, whenever de Framier and Orcheuvel had met, in the course of their young and eventful lives, they invariably left behind them the trail of a mutual animestry. It must have been ordained from the first that these two men should be mestive.

It was no doubt hard upon Gridmural that he should suffer the smart of a shame to had no hand in. Nor was there anything personally negritories in the fact that de Fournie had rome into the world with the station of the claret. Nevertheless, the constant friction of a tortured pride had bornt into Gridmoral's lead the memory of his mother's whongs and his own. To him there was only one singer in the rempert which gave him torth, and that was Count de Fournier's father; and it machined him to feel that the sen rejuired in all the serial qualifications that would be research in their claims the links and Duchers de Louvet in their claims of a one in him.

The scientific contingent carried packs on their tacks, containing belongraphs, telescope, mercurial larouncier for ascertaining the monatain's height, building-point the renometer for the same purpose, four carrier-pignons, camera, a copper box, and a dag, while other carried canteens of provisions. A huge lava moraine follows a serpentine course down the mountain from near the summit on the southern face of the yeak, and the route relected was up the open mow field to the right of this ridge. Showly they total operard, semetimes on the hard surface of the snow, gaining footbold only by the long spiles in their alese, and sometimes clambering over the broken masses of lava on the moraines, the strong climbers gradually forging about. The wind blew terrifically in the more capesed piaces, and nearly carried the climbers from their feet. At ind, after six hours of steady climbing, the apparent summit was reached with a desperate effort, and as the exhausted circlers raised their bends above its money margin they beheld another mountain rising a thousand feet higher. The remarks made were strictly impartiamentary, and the deceptive summit was promptly christened "Mous Assinorum." A mile of remperatively level snow field and another level of steady tolling upward brought them at last to the true summit, a rounded dome of enow more than twelve thousand fast above the level of the sea, and half that distance above their ramp of the night before.

Thirty fact of cloth were stretched around alpen stocks for a wind-break, and the beliegraphs and telescope were assumed on their tripeds and brought to bear on Hood and Rain-Som a brilliant flash was sen on Hook, and in a short time the instruments were aligned and conversation commenced. United States Army Signal Corps was responsible for the Sask that name Iron the mountains. On the top of the Equitable building in Denver, Captain William A. Glassford, chief signal officer of the Department of the Colorade, and his men received the intelligence. It came in dots and dashes, to the Morse code, and was accounty interpreted as the click of the telegraph. Mounges were sent from Denver to the purty on Long's Peak, and whom "33" was facted the operators folded their instrumentand started for a telesone climb to the summit of first's Peak, where the next experiments were to be made.

The first message from the summit of Long's Peak told the story of the experience of the party since it was ordered from Denver - a sucneeded of some storms, rain, and half that would have danged any but a party of millibiry men assigned to the performance of a stern duty. For these weeks the men had not had a day free from mow, and white down in the value of Benyer there were days when the nearmry climbed to binety-five the mountain detail were hugging camp-firm and trying to steal a little sleep, wrapped to the honviest army bismicts. The party was muscile to remain at the sement of the yeak, owing to the intense rold, and timefore unglit a sheltered spet on the side of the mountain for the point of observation. The altitude was given as obeyor Chemical five hundred fort.

In the mint of the signaling a flash was observed from the top of Pike's Peak, sixty miles to no air line in an opposite direction, south of Denver. The flash was obnest as large or a full-wase and came from an instrument of the ledistropers who are calculating the height of this great landmark. The glass used by these men is round, and much larger than that used by the signal men. The helicitropers how nothing about signaling, and could not answer messages flashed from Denver. The light appeared as the extreme amount of Pike's Peak, and was much the largest flash seen during the day.

The heliographing mufti consists of a mirror a "shutter," a telescope, and a field-glass. The naiver and "shutter" are such mounted on tripods for convenience. When it is destrod for communicate with a party is any specified locality the mirror is set as as to throw a reflection on the spet where the answering party is supposed to be located. By sweeping the horizon the answering flast indicates when the mirror is correctly set. The opening and closing of the shutter in treat of the mirror gives the effect of date and shades and coables the second party to receive the message. At ordinary distance the telescope is not found necessary.

The world's record in long-distance signaling is told by the Department of the Colorado, but the plane that had been outlined for this year have come to neight owing to the impressedented succession of storms that have swept the entire and country, unking it difficult for men to keep the flaid for any time and then rendering the transmission of messages almost impossible.

The signal party consisted of non-escent of cavalry, a pack-train and mounts for the signal men. They were given an opportunity to thoroughly explore a section of the Rocky Mountains that has never been invaded by an expedition of the army sizes the chays of Frement, and the result of the observations will be re-inded with interest by the Was Department.

The Fight against Gormanism.

ARTHUR PUR GORMAN, United States Senator from Maryland, and autocrat of the politics of that State, is the only great Demogratic boss in this country who has never been defeated. Bosner have risen and gone, and politics hav changed. but for twenty Jean Gorman has held Maryland firmty in his grip, has dictated the some nations, has elected or counted in the tickets of his party.

But the inevitable is on its way. All the reports agree in saying that Corman's ticket will this year be defeated. The Bultimore Son, which for more than thirty years has been the main reliance of the party in Maryland, and which is one of the most influential papers of the country, has boited the ticket and has been pouring the bottest kind of hot shot into Cormanism every day. It eays that it is a fight to the fluids, and that Gormanism is descured. The Eccuracy News, the independent Democratic paper of the State, is openly supporting the Republican ticket. The Baltimore American, which for years has been the leading Reputlions paper of the Skorth, has the contest, well in band. Not a single daily paper of Baltimore has come to the support of the German ticket, and all that formerly supported him are now fighting him. In addition to the opposition of the influential press, thousands of Democrata laye declared against him, and in the resinties anti-German movements and anti-German ticlors are being organized and nominated.

Senator Cornors is fifty six years old. He comes from Irish stock, and is a native of Maryland. At the age of therteen he became a page in the Benate; from that to private secretary of Stephen A. Douglas ; then to menuger of the Fenate, americant door-keeper, door-keeper, meditant pretruster, and flustly pertmaster, of the Senate. He beld office all through the Civil War. He sided with President Johnson, and when he was removed from the postmanterritor of the Neuste, Johnson, appointed himcollector of internal revenue for the District of Muryland. This brought him into the I wal politics of Maryland, and in 1966, at the age of thirty, he was elected to the House of Delegales. Two years later to was returned, and was made speaker. The powers in the Dennecratic politics of the State at that time were William T. Hamilton and William Pinckney Whyte, both of whom expressed great lopes of the young, month-facul, tacitura politician. No highly did Governor Wayte regard him that he made him prosident of the Chesqueeke and Oldo Canal, the great ditch stretching from Washington to Cumberland, in which the State had sunk more than forty millions of didbest. This was Gorman's first great opporfinity. He converted the canal into a political machine, and in a short time he was a power. He broke with his friend, floverous Whyte-He insugurated political corruption in his own the charges being made by the post reputable people of his own neighborhood, and standing to-day uncentradicted by the Senator. He had his way in the nemination for Governor in 1875, when Carroll was selected, and the ticked was defeated by at least ten tissusand majority, but ballet-boxes were tampered with and Carroll was counted in. Those who requmitted the frauds have since freely confessed their crimes, and the criminals who did the work in Benntur Gorman's county fold all about is from the platform of one of the city thealres to a large audience. In 1878 the contest for the Senatorship came, and German was elected over his former patron, Whyte. For fifteen years the Democratic party has explicitly plotged itself to a reason the property of the State. It has been the usual fight between the country and the city; between the farmer and the capitalist. In this the Gorman - Rasin partnership worked with great effect. Gorman made personal strength by favoring reassessment, and Rasin made thousands of dollars and city strength by defeating it. But there was a limit to this sort of thing. The leader of reassessment was Thomas G. Hayes, a Baltimore lawyer of svreflent character and standing. He was a friend of Senator German, and when the reslutions were offered in the last Lagislature condemning Gorman and fillnow for their cours in the Senate it was flayer who saved the day for them. Of all the men in the State Gorman had no more useful friend than Hayes. There was a general call for Hayes for the Generaceship, and Gurman told him to go ahead. and make his fight. far Democrat of the State heading the tirket, with a sound namer plothern and the propart of a plethorse pure for campaign purposes, the weather would be if the Democracy of Obserdal not make a respectable element.

James E. Campbell, the party condidate for theorems, is a wonderful companies. He has been called the "named" of his party to times past levame of his storess against Republican shit. This title fell into discuss after his defeat for Governor in 1991, and since then be but been in private life, devoted to the work of repairing his shuttered personal fortunes. He is just fifty years old. During the war he was an officer in the gun-boat service on the Miseiseppi, and saw much hard fighting. He was a Republicum until the Greeley movement of 1872, and has served three terms in Congress. He was elected Governor in 1889, and in 1891 was defeated fur re-election. His home is at Hamilton, near Cincinnati, and he is very happy in his dismetic relations. His wife is counted fully as good a politician as her husband, and there is no woman in Ohiomore gifted or popular in social circles. Mrs. Campbell was Miss Elizabeth Owens, of Hamilton, before her marriage, and for bushand's storess in politics has been largely due to her graceful tact and high social qualities. PRANE B. GENENER.

AMATEUR APPLIETICS

Hovey Scores a Brilliant Victory.

FRANCISCE H. HOVEY fully deserves the title of the country's laws tennis champles, for he wom It fairly and on the morits of the game. Lack did not fuver him, petitier did the unlookers closer him on nearly so warmly as his work descript. Hovey won because, unlike the Bovey of old, he displayed the steadbeen and the self-command and the unflagging strength of purpose which characterizes the play of English experts. While his guite failed to show quite the brilliant passages which were went to sprinkle his game in past years, it was first and last a careful one, and one of such power as to place his appound on a centimoour and beartlaventring defense.

Wronn by a majority of experts was booked to wis and to win, be it said, not un form or behaled skill for his form was admittedly poor as compared to last your but on these mental qualities of his moto-up which embrace a rood hand, stendy nervos, and confidence. On the other hand. Hovey was slated, as of old, to "go down" because of life want of self-conmand and curef. lasse. Hovey, however, refused absolutely to show any of his errotte and unnerved play, and Wrenn failed signally to force tom flown.

The estimation was not exactly the reverse of the expected, for while Wrenn failed to rise to the occasion, he played a roof, if not a wet) planted, gates, and a placky one right through. At no time did be feel that the day was his, and as several revasions in passingto change cour! - a certain speciator souted by an official's chair, he would remark: " Now I am going to win those straight"-" Now I am going to win this game."

While Waven's game or idently unifored from but much work in other sports, to foot-ball and too-infl, and the midaken notion that he medial but six works to properly for a chanrionaldy match, it would be impossible to say to what extent, for the simply marvelons way in which Hovey would short along one ride lise, then the other, delled mostery.

And while here we find a reason for the almost total absence of railing such, for instance, as attenuated in the game between Wrenn and

EXPONENTIAL LEWIS E. CAMPBELL, AND MISS CAMPBELL, Phelograph to Elimit

Goodbody last your But Goodbody, it must be clearly understood, did not play the game Hovey did. Goodbody's game was simply a safe game, relying almost entirely on his oppopent's carelessness and errors, rather than tries for brilliant scholine shots and showy, though offertive, cross-court drives. Quite the contrary was Hovey's game, and quite as unsuited to a successful defense by Wrean,

After the game. Hovey, in speaking of his victory, claimed that much, if not all, of his ancress was due to the visit of Dr. Pins, the English expert. From this player, who exhibited his superiority over the tentis players of the world in the West Newton communent. However increased the fesson of self-control, and that careful playand droster easily played, and played according to a well laid-out plan of playing the side lines and crossing, new right, new left, more furtetter than the alam-hung careless, though at times brilliant, play of which he had previously known in other.

Finithingtz Firrey how little there was really in trying to kell the full always, these readering accuracy a child of rinnine. And tennamenthingants, rank and this reasont full to be interested in a result which surely marks a slep forward, and a nearer approach to be. From a worthy standard of excellence, to say the least

As has been aired in this department before, our tennis men need the right kind of object-how-in. Nothing can compare to practice play with a master to armitive rapid progress and most in steering clear the while of runs and the single of self-salisfaction.

Dán

Only one-during the simplifier of the champies, dak the question of itests arise whether Horny would be compelled to play a fourth set. With the score time to one against, Wronn for the first time put fire and dealt into his work, and though he but the next yame, his super-cu sould man apparent. No modificating, he capitmed the next two, the former game going to dence and variage a half-desen fitten, and the latter ture. However as this time was searling only that aggregating "but point," and by playing steedily without sign of senkness, a display of which would probably been turned the title resultinely against how, he showed charty than next se Wronn nught come, has held the upper hand. Finally Wream gave Herey the set by netting a full after a stary detre lig Hovey

Wanted-A Higher Party Standard.

R. WARNER MILLER, when asked recently as to the Republican prospects in this State, is reported to have said that there could be no doubt of the party's success, for the reason that "the people are attenty disgusted with Democratic incompletency and dischargery in the tensor, the Republican party is to be continued in power, not on any grounds of positive achievement or compliquence public service, but because, relatively. It is not so loopshady and Presidentially had as its amagentiat.

Does Mr. Warner Miller really think that this is the surfof argument which Republicans should coupley in the camjudge new upon as 2. In there are thing is the Republican record or policy which entitled It to popular support 2. Are the failtness and Daults of its selectuaries its only stock in trade 7. Must if depend for moress, not upon what it has have affirmatively in the public interest, but upon its fail-are to do as builty as the purry of the other part?

It is not automorphise to find a man of Mr. Miller's experience and neknowledged moral aprightness horing his hopes of success input such a theory as this. And yet, in duing write merely reflects the tion and paller of many of the party managers. Every one at all familiar with our political libitory fromwa that some of the most influencial of the party femlers, as called, have for yours paredwish in keying the jurty policy just to this hier. There has been me high regard for principle, no elevated conception of party responsibility. The effort has been to win, not by holding up the party two high anothers of performance elecating its methods and making it in the largest and fullest sense representative of the highest impulses and most patrionic purposes of the people, but by so for avoiding diagrant sins, and just so far recognizing the popular will, as, comparations, to give it the advantage, in any general estimate, aver the Primerucy. Thus, sid the criticisms of the infidelities and the corruption of the last Republican Legislatime have been met, in some quarters, not by an house, confession and spoingy, but by the plea that, anyhore, that Legislature was not us laid as the fifth Legislatures which provided it. that, while its governing spirit, was sellish and parthage, it is no no some things, lived up to its comagemems; whereas the Donnermy, ranker like circumstances. would have been aftendately buildless. Sie as to the questhen of the enforcement of the excise how; instead of facing the question equarity and applicating the action of the outbortten, these leaders have from the first played the coward, addressing to the lawless classes the pitiful planthat these laws are of Democratic origin, and that any inconvenience resulting from their enforcement by overzonlous officiate next be charged upon that party.

It is stomeful that the Republican party of this State should be humilisted before the country by any such contemptible policy on this. With all its faults and mistakes it has a magnificent history, and has contributed mormously in cital crises to the preservation of the national honor and the promotion of the interests of good governmont. It shoul for the national unity when the Democracy as a party was against it. It upheld the runse of freedom when that party was for slavery. It has been a ladwick of honest finance. It has mainlained the corne of honest elections and the right of every mon to cost his bullet without moleculation or binderence. It has thus a capital in served and solid performance upon which it may safely and supersolubly depend, if it chooses to use it in every encounter with its fees. That expited should be employed. We can afford be appeal, and we ought to appeal to the people of this State for their continued support on the strength of the fort that the metre mount as a whole attacks a genuine devotion to the public interests, and a real desire for the chainsthes of the rath forces which we struckled for the mastery in our politics. Resent events have demonstrated most conclusively this latter fact. The party ought, in a word to have the courage of its convictions, and seven to sur for favor on my lower plans. It counts for nothing in its favor as a positive force that the party in opposition is unworthy of confidence. Upon its own merits it must stand or fall.

The New York Novel.

This will write the great New York moved? A rather extracedinary opinion regarding this has been put forth by Professor Boyesen, in a fevent newspaper article in which he said it will "he written either by a backeter who has spent years of his tite in the metropoles and netized into the country with a competency, or by a married author who is rich enough to be independent of editors and publishers. In other words, Professor Boyesen believes that the great movellet of New York must necessarily be a most of memor first and on author afterward. He had a for grouns not in a gerret, fixing on a shally crust, but in a rich maintent, worder his facers and survey and putifying to the esthetic institute.

The writing of a great mayer under early in maximizers, it must be unid, which he counter to fitting history, for when has it been shown that a condition of laxury and would be a prerequisite of great fitting-writing? And why should such an environment be impressive in this instance? The answer Professor Boyeses gives is that at book longuage involved in a book longuage incubation is movied for the production of such a reveal, and that no one of the liberary New Yorkey of to-day is able to give to any work that amount of time unlies he is publified to—and pay for his work in courie not expect deart of the acceptance of the narrow ripid.

This seems to be a point well taken, but it reckens nor of some countled elements of the story. For Instance, there can be no good New York moved with the stame the dark side of our life-sell out of it. This seems at maly to have been recognized by most of the contempotenemiA writers of source with a New York setting. Yes neither the burdeler who has spent some years of his life in the metapolis," nor the independent literary man con know the slame with anything approxibing accurate information of their many skied life-Society life in New York, on the other hand, is no open book. Even if the literary may are mit of it-from preference rather than the architect of electricism-en-got it might be given effort of the Insightation to portroe that life quite trule, The motertal has been found to be easy to get at. That the alams, see an insulved toystery. They cannot be underabout shoply by walking through them, in Mr. Howelle has disse, not by studying the seports of the ustal poformers, nor by warching the work of the United Scittsment girls. The absence of New York are a visit social and moral deared whose above hopotenmon, and certaining trace and dark trappilles, whose stories of webb younge and hence will sacrific and the force, murlening straggle for cultivary, can be emiliard only by these into love fixed there, who have been of them, and who have corrupted with impromise memories of Pair hornes, meeting only the story-reling gift to startle the world with a virile and maying take. Some native of the alums, some velocated conor daughter of the temments, who has recaped the perabelous influences of birth and browling to words a place, to the more likely one to make this contribution to American literature. Of all the places of American civilization than for treated in the form of School it would be difficult to manie one that has not friend its delineator within the Brain. of the boulty where the some is bid, or at least in urstimusphere of sympathy with that faulty. This is the keps of literary production. So it will be with the novel of the shame.

With his exceptional chilinies on a writer, and with an over interesting Americalize of New York, Mr. Henetic is really the best equipped of all our literary sees to silvened this predestined foot. The agretion is, could be give power to this work by a deep and displemental empathy with the hopelessness and dropole of life in the equalit East Side ! In his published works he has everyed his characters from unionly different soil. It is well known that Mr. Howells is a good deal of a socialist at heart, and displicamore would. It is regrettable that he could not have an joyed the houndless opportunities of a New York reporter with a literary style. Thrown futy the anvironment of a proceed brought face to face with the mover and crime and reckless fiving and possion and fully and important spelit, Mr. Howelle ency of the webs not have fulled to have his sensitilities quickered to the point of producing a powerful road. It would have been bettye, for that matter all certain others of our mixed westere mailed have reviewed night assignments at police bond-

Crime Avenges Itself.

Bittings himself as he case, a man's sin is purity surto find him out. It happens sentimes todayd that the affective is able to haffle parties and escape the punishment he deserves, but as a rate the fact is solvenide. There is a Namysis that here was he in the universe and lets oncrime go machastised, so matter how it may discuss the II, or in what far corner it may seek to hide itself.

Two or three metable illustrations of this fact have recently been recorded in the newspapers. One is that of Hr. George W. Fraker, who, some two years ago, after laving fasared his life for a large sum, suddenly disappeered from Excelsior Springs, in Missourt. The story given and was that he was drowned while our tishing exeursion. Three persons who were with him at the time swore that they had seen him perish, giving a electrostantial account of the affair, and on the strength of their evidence: his executor-the insurance companies having refused to pay the claims because of the suspicious circumstances of the case-brought suit for the full amount of fifty eight. thoseand dollars. In the first trial a ventict was given for the defense, but a new trial was granted, and in that, judgment was given for the full amount, which was duty paid The counsel of the companies, however, believing that Irand had been practiced instituted a search, which was presented for the years, and this was at last p-warded a ittserves. Dr. Fraker being found to the wilde of porthern Minnesota, where he was living with only a toy for a compunion. Fifty today away from the meatest post siffice, he regarded binovil as secure terond the much of low and justice. But he was mistaken. When arrested he made no resistance, and later no confessed his guilt. He had not as yet received from his exceptor any part of the money which his fraud, was to bring him, and so carns at het, se its outr compensation, disgrace, penery, and imprison-

The experience of this offender simply duplicates that of hundreds of ciliers whethers that transful it first windom of meaniff whether in their struggle against the retributive lorses which are an formal in the constitution of things. The obvious bosons is that it is hone-ey, after all, which pays the largest disclosely, that there are no prizes in any of the laterths of crime which possess a postuneral value, and that it is infinitely better on a purely selfab basis, to say nothing of higher matrice, to make an issued to of total and expectantities, remind to care and cupy the front of labor thus stopleyed, then to seek abundant principle or projections to the rights and interests of others.

The Roads and Local Authorities.

Notice beneficial reconstruction, and metallician is of public highways one governmental echient. Janeil of home rule, appears to break disconstruction completely. This bard does not constitute off organization and home rule, but more ly forestelles appeared to meaner that every human whome I course to be foundly to some positionlar. It is und the purpose of this article to discuss the monits of the stems care as alon of protestand, but to point out where in mode for the science one against him alread he made as to pulle's reads. Let the experience of more than a hardred pears in this creamity had in Karepe tracker as that the local anchoration should not be lettered, with superone control of the tends to make to tablothood. Until the tends were loken away from head administrators in Fogland all of the effect to improve them mistarried, and military of popular expended in the highways were matter. So, has it has been in this country traday through in Europe whenever has been taken of experience, and how to Europe whenever has been taken of experience, and how to Petites and the other continuation of experience, and in on the Fourier and the other continuation countries, and in a moreover about in Great Between the pools are administrated by the control authorities.

During the faction after Washington had refind from the command of the army and before he had been sworn. in as Pre-sident, he fired quietly at Mount Vernor and inserested himself with his pricate affairs and the bininess at the State. Patrick Henry was then Governor of Yir gints. To him Washington works advanting that the read have be in changed that comes cours about her have authority to beate raids, but that these beations should he determined upon by white engineers. His musin was that merely head is horses would inflome the county most and all retirem of the neighborhood, and that they here not two arts, thing, but the healty counter thing, would be done. But Washington and time was not taken, and the Virginia road have nee as faulty to-day so they were a houshed years ago, while the routs are a diagrace to the civilization to the CGi Discinion. The other day an onlightened ounty judge in Virginia requested advice from the origin ward bureau of the United Department of Agriculture. The original made a reconbelonger of the muckly where the road was to be inprovised, and showed the remain pudge, to his entire satisfurtion, that in one or more places the location of the road should be rionged, as no the present like no good and was possible. The law requires that tracholders should petition the court to make any change is breation. The freeholders of the neighborhood some adard to held, of the plan. Being inadiagent own they saw that the plan was wise but not a mound then would sign the position. They explained their referred by costing that the almost would be disagreeable and disaltantageous ocone of their number, and that therefore to sign the petition would be marigidently. Therefore the road on the old beating is no be parentanded; and every penny speed upon it will be worse than wasted for the new payment will not much improve the root, while the cost will fix the highway in the wrong place for several generations, and maybe forever.

So, lost in one of the most beautiful and presperous counties in New Jersey a large sum raised from the sale of bonds for road improvement is being wasted at this moment. Without a man in the county board with any knowledge of read-building, it is not wonderful that an engineer was selected without any experience. Taking good advice to begin with this ignorant local board and ignorant local engineer have abandoned every wise conssel, and new propose to pave over hills so steep that a horse can only climb them laboriously in a walk, and to use in the construction a native hostard stone so cenzein grain that it disintegrates when in contact with the weather. This money will be thrown away, and in that section of New Jersey the movement for good made will be seriously in jurnil.

State roud laws should be framed so that, while home rule will not be interferred with, the ignorance of the local bumpkins will have small chance to wreak itself on the public highways. Good roads should be universal in every American State, and therefore their construction from funds relead in part by general to calleng should not be a hardship to any. It is a had plan, as a general thing to help those who won't help thomselves, and for this reason not every kind of ment interest and responsibility should be abrogated in any State road law. But a State law granting to each county State and to the extent of one-third of the cost of road improvement, provided that the plans should be made and the work livelf supervised by the State engineers, would secure the desired results without relieving the enemty of a good proportion of an expense made in a large part for the hearfit of the residents of the

The road parliament which is to convene in Atlanta in October next cannot do a better thing than infriste a morement leaking to the adoption of the policy and the screenplishment of the results here suggested.

In quoting a recent editorial in Lamen's WERKEY, in which we remarked that the Libersh in England but lost control of the government because, like our Democratic party, they had failed to live up to their pledges to the people, the Atlanta Constitution remarks;

Citange the scort Libertle to Democrate, knock on Bladeon and exhauster | United Status" for "Goost Herisim," and the above would read like a decomposite of the process mates in this country.

It is containly a writing possible. Like the Libertie, the Deportule traders in percei trade their pietges, had the confinence of the masses of their party, and suffered define. Whele failure in keep their pennises discretized there each the people, and they eare released at the people of party and its business must keep faith with the people or wifer the people."

Title proposition to consurant a bleyck-path along the towputh of the Eric Caust has been brought to the siteution of the superintendent of canals, and is understood to be now ninter self-beaucht. The libra is to appropriate a strip of land five feet in whith along the entire extent of the canal, a distance of these hundred miles, and countract. a path which shall be first class in every particular, and the expense of which shall be paid by private subscriptions. and the concritutions of associations of wheelmen, many of which have already toudered their co-operation. There is no apparent reason why the project should not be carried out. It will involve no expense to the State, while on the other hand such a course, pract'cally anequaled in length, would be a source of almost infinite anisfaction and pleasure to thousands of our citizens.

Tire ratest and growth of the railway mail service is illustrated by the fact that the number of pieces of mailmetter of all classes handled in the second division, evenprising New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and the peninsula of Maryland and Virginia, during the year ending on the lat of July last, was 1,249,749,307, This is an increase of three and one half per cent, over 1894, and of twenty-five per cent, in the mail distributed in the last five years. The improvement in the character of the service is limstrated by the statement that had your there were but 78,051 errors of all kinds in the bundling and carriage of this vast volume of mail matter. The decross in the number of errors in the last five years has been about twenty-lour and one-third per cent. The numher of clerks employed in this branch of the service is $40. The superintendent of this division, Mr. R. C. Jackson, is one of the olded and best-equipped postal officials in the country, and the efficiency of the service in this metropolitan district is very largely due to his landwess-like policy and methods.

by a mot by any mann impossible that the British Consorratives may undertake to andronous the force rule agitation in Ireland by unking conventions which have been long ilemmental but never horelabor assented to be the new resumest perty. The is fair Burdle, the west-. known English bile; arthites, when is now in this country, said in a recent interview that he would not be surprised to see the Conservative government give to Ireland "a comprehensive system of municipal government, with a national Parliament under some other name than that of home rair, and by an extension of the principles of the Ashbourne acts and the half acts, pacify the tenant farmers." He added so within his personal knowledge that the government proposes to meet the demands of the clergy by name liberal grants in church schools. The policy indirated as to freiand would rectainly be "good polities"; while it would not appears the Irish extremists, it would satisfy the great body of the people, and make it difficult for the factional leaders to maintals a successful propuganda in behalf of radical and revolutionary measures.

It would seem that there cannot be any room for doubt as in the rourse which should be pursued in the coming monicipal election in this city. Mayor Strong expresses the exact fact when he says that "the only logical thing to do is to form savilier union. That is the only way to keep Tammany out. With that call in view all Republicans, all good Democrats, and all loves of a sun-partison ministration of this city's government should form a union." Of course the publical mercenaries in the Repulfican ranks are violently opposed to a combination of this sort, and are doing everything in their power to secure the monimution of a straight party ticket-a policy which would afford opportunity for largains and trades, and resalt incritably in the restoration to power of the old going of correptionists. The conditions are perhaps less favorable for a miss than they were one year ago, but if Republicate of influence assert themselves in behalf of such s result, and the independent Descerate afters hearstly to the position which they now hold, it can no doubt be brought about, so far, at least, as to preserve substantially the galos for good government secured at the last election.

Tun experiment of nominating a free-eliver carebblete on a sound money platform seems likely to prove disastrons to the Kentucky Democracy. General Hardie's refusal to withdraw and his stubborn adherence to the flat money views he avowed in the opening speeches of his campaign have already provided withwaread confusion in the party ranks, and it is fruity predicted in some quarters that Colonel Bradley, the Republican nondine for dicorroor, will be elected by a safe majority. It is to the credit of many of the leading Democrats of the State that they refrom to have anything to do with a compaign which prombeen to be one of false pretomes throughout, and there is every reason to believe that most of these will carry their protest to the point of voting against the party randidate. As to Legislative conditions there is so yet no break-up of party lines, but it is probable that the Hepublicans will make gains to some districts where Senator Horkburn has secured the conduction of free reimage advantage who are favorable to his re-dection. The Republican leaders apparently approviate the appartunity which has some to them, and if they act whelp, and in a broadly patriolic spirit, a victory may be son which will place Renturky permanently in the estimate of Republican States.

"This passed you by you and day by day."

The heat of the past summer has been unnaturally inremard at different intervals by the unwested warmth of discussion over Mr. George Moore's latest book, "Collbates," a coffering of three short stories published by Mesors. Macmillan & Co. Bot now that the dog-days have gone the way of all other dog-days, and the contains of autume is in the air, I think I can venture a few words in praise of these three very sphile studies that will not bring down upon me the ireful reproctive of half the New York book reviewers, or even of the Cestor's artiful "Loung-With the exception of Mr. George Meredith and Mr. Thomas Hardy, who stand quite alone in really isolated greatness, there is no man in England to day who combines assessor attributes of the true artist as George Moore. He has feeling, dramatic power, and skill, hendes unusual knowledge and approviation of the complexities and diversities of character. He has shown this repeatedly in his novels, and it is patent in this little group of short stories, though not to each an extent as in some of his former work. In 'Agnes Labons," however, the last of the three, he last his very host, and in the study of the entrast father, Major Labers, he has done something worthy of his master-Balme. There is the touch of real tragedy in his handling of the pitish's despirable contrast and it brings instantly to own and the series ful images of Pire Gerict and Conda I'ves. The inventor works of the migest are but as knilefactory, "Mildest Lawson" being two long, and "John Norths," the short. They are both rather rappe, and I most confess to party they are broad. But so doubt Mr. Money would senser; "Life is least, ton." You ton time; but there are equipment man alreaged us who don't turn to mountain the fact. At any rate, there is a millioust remnant who are not affect to confront life's resilties, and to them, and to all lovers of strong, virile studies of human life. Mr. Moure's work will appeal strongly:

Mr. George W. Smalley's exile to his native land for the benefit of his adopted country promises to be as productive: of good as every one good-naturetty predicted, on his arrival several months ago. His New York letters to the Landon Times are already beginning to have their effect. and it is no nonsual thing now to find erticles in the various English magneines and papers, on United States topics, that are partially correct-in fact; it is but in the last number of the Sectority Beriev that I read an article on the New York police force that might have been written in Printing House Square (though hardly, for it was in correct. English: It was accurate and full of some and understanding. A quotation from the Time showed the source of its writer's knowledge, and a feeling of thankfulness empt over me on realizing that at last the separational agencies" and "correspondents" were effectively checkmated, and that in the future Englishmen could rest asmural that if they saw it by the Times it would be so-ut least about us. The only pity is that Mr. Smalley hasn't a

As if a consciousness of the very low eith of the dramatic instinct to themselves and suddenly struck our writers for the thestre, they all seem to be exambling to put into dramatic large save the mark !- whatever movel or story werns to them most adaptable. And we are promised versions of "The Prisoner of Zenda"-by the time this is in print Mr. Sothern will have mude this an accomplished fact several of Starley Weyman's stories, George Ellot's "Remola," said my number of others. I have no doubt that a good dramatization of a book is better than most of one sescribed original plays, but so many adaptations argue for a vitiable pagesty of blea in our dramation-that is, if an organism were morted to establish the truth of a very reident fact. The hone of our thentre is the lack of ideast in author, actor, manager, and public : they are, one and all, suck is the rut of commonplace and sufgerity. What lacky person or circumstance is to joit them out remains to be seen. It may be the adapter and the dramatized LOUIS EVAN SHIPMAN.

-At Most at the same time that the foremest actor in England was receiving the honor of knighthood from the Queen, the Joreann French actress was being oddly snubbed by some Brittany fishermen, the story of which has just become public through the Parispress. While Madanus Bernhardt was spending the summer to her ruined castle at Helle like she noticed how dangerous the harbor of Sauzem is, and now likely to came ships rock to fishermen's boats. She thereupon proposed to present the fishermen with a stanch brigantine to be used for life saving, and to bear her name, but the villagers declared the offer. They were willing to accept the gift of the bost, but me if it was to be named for an artress.

-Although Jim! Edingaray, the Spanish dramatist, has written more than a bundred plays during the past twenty. years. mustly all of them unversaful, he aspires to be famous as a mathematician rather than as a playwright. He writen plays in the intervals of leasure from his schoolific studies, and none of them has cost him more than a fortnight's labor. Echogaray is a lively old man of seventy, and he has recently learned to ride the bicycle. He makes thu curious boost that up to the age of lifty he had read every novel published in England.

-In addition to his knowledge of the law, Judge Harmon, the new Attorney-General, has the reputation of being one of the best-dressed men in Cincinnati, and one of the few able to keep their lines immorphise to that seet-stained city. Judge Harmon has found brisare to acquire various ecomplishments. He knows a good dual about music, he fences skillfully, and he is easigh of an artist to have painted were very crafitable ministures of his daughters. Judge Harmon is still a few years under fifty, and even younger in personal appearance.

-There is probably no more popular divine in New than Dr. A. H. RÉBAUVAL, like his friend used model, Robespierre, was fastificate in his attitut. Whether in the dress of a private citizen, or arrayed as a representative of the people, he was carefully harbered; still were the tie-wig, though most of his collengues had discarded it for their own hair, which was worn short or long, according to taste or growth; paid erupulous attention in his lines, and combined with the air and man ner of the aristocrat the revolutionary principles and jargon of the time. His bine coat, with its broad lapels, was serupulous!; is tok-ed, his white neckerchist planted with a glittering tersets, and be were a sword within a showy ambhard and with an astentationally fushioned bilt.

The resider can no doubt recall many instances of two men who were very much alike in appearance when seen apart from each other. Brought begether, you observe how scrupulously nature has separated them, the bound, in his tri-color such and the wig, with his artistically fadounced overel-tall and acre-policially rison lines, might, to a cuscual observer who was arrigated with Count the Fournier, have been mistaken for that arrient regarded managementing as a Jacobin. Seen sade by said, the difference would have been marked, in goit and number, in facial expression and tome of voice. They were sufficiently shike, nevertheless, to be resmarked upon, as we have already seen, by ordinary people; and it was of considerable moment in the development of the appirations and adventures of the two-ness that this was so.

Pierre can to the descript, followed by the company, to recrive the disputy and his escent of National Guards, brave in Latir new uniforms that were bright with the national colors. Machine the besteen retired to her chambler in the roof to meditate and plot her extense of respective above, her indigenal and new in personnent result against Pierre, who was a Giraudist retirer than a stood in, and like many mother that marched with pitte against Lasie and the Queen, might have been repaited if reyally had maintained its station with courage as well as generality. He was a startly fellow of strong build. His arms were long, his body short to proportion, but densiting great strength. He tail sensething of a rubicand countenance, with a ness that was a liberal indication of a fastal character. He had enjoyed himself in his time. Not that it was a Bardolphean nose, though it was provident and a trifle builbons, and his checks were lumpy with a bibulant staggestiveness, but firm withal. He had white both and a thick crop of hair, denoting good health. Pierra was a man whom you would notice in a crowd; he was more tike a Vorkshire grown than a French publican—a remarkable contrast to Jacques Roden, a slimy, besetted, loose-lipped, pimply wretch, who had drunk away both his moral and mental faculties, and had only retained the simularity of a once powerful frame both we to beight and strength.

Jacques was, in fact, a giant game wrong. He was, however, still able to terrify a few undersized mortals with his height of lody and his still taller habit of busting and brawling, a noisy instation of reckless rearrage.

"Gree our horses a feed and a rule-down," said Grébauval; "they are weary; men are stronger than borses. It is not imply the ride from Paris that has fatigued them; we have achieved a great victory over the common enemy, and there is a bunting to follow

"Vive is Depute Grebauval " said the hest. " And whom are we hunting ?"

"Vive in nation!" shouled Jacques Reden, "Vive le grand deputé !" pressing forward and seizing the deputy's right hand with both his grousy fists, Grebaraval releasing himself from his admirer with an impatient gesture

"A word with you, Pierre," he said, taking the landlord by the arm and withdrawing into madame's parter behind the bar. " Excuse us, gentlemen, a meanint."

"It is coming to pass all I warned you of. The overture is finished, the drama has begun."

"God prosper the right," said Forme "He will," was Grebauval's possipt repl/. " But listen, Pierre; it is the cause now men, not mightors—the cause, the people ?" "Of a surety," sald Ploree, " we have grouned and suffered long enough; it is the turn of the others yes, yes. But do not blame me if I remember the count with gratifials." "It is of him I am here to speak," said thebouval, fixing his searching eyes upon Pierre's frank, open face.

"I know it," said Pierre.

"He has to-day been a lending figure in the first great lifest the people have struck in Paris; he has had his horse shot from under him, and is on his way to the Châtean de Leavet on fact.

"Yet be had joined the newly-organised company of humars, memdeer," said Pierre.

Yes; and were his uniform for the first time.

"He supported the National Assembly," continued Phyru.

"Did he so !" remarked Orchawood

"And was about to lower Parts to you his illustrious comendo, the fleneral Lafayette.

Whose legalty is very much in question, Friend Fierre.?

Nay ! Then who shall us trust ?"

Well, you've look are not support," Grebanval replied, " and I am about to commit an important duty to you."

"Thank you, Monting to Depute. I lope it iv a duty I may like."

'It is a duty you must like, Pierre, It is not for true patriots to consider what they like, but what is uncommer for the safety of France.

Name the duty you confide to me. If you plener," said Pierre, with seasething like a defined glance at Greingrah, with whom he was not by any means having the first awkward in-

"Heart Lavelle, whom you call Count de Ponenter.

"Call I" said. Pierre, "They he is Count do Fournier Who questions it !"

"No matter," unit Grebusynt. " A file of the National Guard, or purhaps a company of conductionic are on his track ; one or the other will light at your door. You will receive them."

Cortainly," said Pierre.

"Your Count de Fournier-since you still kere titles will also make his way to the Line d'Or , he will trust to that gratifiale you spoke of. He warned, Pierre, to sholter him may mean arrest, perhaps death. I do not and you to take part against tim; but all and abethin, and I cannot save you."

"I am not a brute beaut," unid Plerre, looking Drobenval steadily in the eye and thrusting his strong learnly into his browdess pockets.

No you are a free man, with the right to choose who shall govern you, and a convergant to the ratio of kings. " No sours, king's or propie's, will induce me

"I don't ask you to raise a hand against him; but to be madeal -not to aid like excape."

"I will promise pething."

" You will?

"Wher will make me ?"

"I will!"

" Your father once said that to me, and did he make me ! No man makes me its what I will

" You will lose your book, Pierre," said thribauval, impassintly

"Others will full when mine goes, depend alt," said Pierre Inther-

"Don't speak of my father," said firefineral, omickly.

I am speaking of the merchant, not the count of that day," said Pierre, drawing himself up as if in preparation for a blow,

A REA OF TRUCKLES.

Functioner among the gulfant defenders of repairty on the fatal 10th of August, when the Duke and Duckes do Legyot were inascently. not to say recklosely, propering to receive their coronomicus guests, Count de Fournier was a conspictuous actor in the tragedy.

The king bad plenty of treeps and faithful guarde to hold his own against all the blackresent Marwellate and red-rape of the few brough, but there manted that slay a king with the physical convage of a Matth and the illow of a do Fournier. Maille was there, brave as an old line, and Mandaut with his they staff, and the king's fiwise horly guard, ready to figut five warriors and to die like heroes. They were ready and under arms all the night of the 9th; roudy and under arms in the morning of the De Fournier was there in his bright new unit form as an officer of humars, his black stake with its defient feather, his quaint hair plaits, his bine and guld parket with its for transating and gold furings, his red vest and length gift buttons - a veritable benn selever, full of youthful ardor. He was not the best distinguished -looking representative of the section poblems aroung the patricians who surrounded the king, drawn thither by logalty and sentiment. They were in various ocstumes, private, official, and nulltary; but few had arrived on tersetsch. De Fournise, for the time being, had joined the staff of the commander of th heavy designous to an immensy rapacity, and made a cotable appearance among the different The died non and officers and they were consulted by twelve pieces of artillary. The graderments it chiered were an about equally important force; but, ake the National Guard, they were onfortunately not to be trusted. They desert ed, in fact, before the night of the 5th was over. Peties, the maker, by traitorous arrangen with the robel chiefs, went to the insurrection ary bearignanters at the Bilter de Ville and med Marshart, the cummunder of the National Guard, who was murdored on route His death was a heavy blow to the royalist de-

When the king reviewed the troops at five in the neurainc de Fouraise and the rest of the suburner or it by his side, the bettallon of the Crots Ristor raised the cry of "Vive la metion !" A regiment of pakemen, defiling before "And do you think that knowledge will shield. The king, shouled "Vive Petitin " and " A late le Vete:" The king but all the little spirit of resistator be had bisberts displayed, and west back to the queen depressed and wretched.

If her Majesty had possessed half the power with which abe was credited she might have saved the king and the country even at this supreme measure. " Everything you held nest dear," she said to the groundlers of the National Guard, "your bosses, your wixes, your childem, depends on our existence. Today our cause is that of the people."

But the people, swarming with pike and gut catelle the palare gates, thought differently, and the king could not be persuaded to stand by his faithful troops. Otherwise, there was a moment that morning when the Swiss Guard alone would have turned the fortunes of the day and rescued France from a nightneare of horyors, and Prenchasen from a lasting blot on their lumstify; though it should sever be forgottes. that if the Revolution developed a flendish decilry that eclipses the worst pages of savage history, it also has rederming instances of virtue and beroiss among the persecuted of all classes, mobile and benirgenie, that are equally without parallel in the records of insurrection and revolt.

What need to do more than movely recall the midakes and blanders, the horses and the nervison, the marriding and remoter-marriding, the desperate fighting and the regulity desperate running away, the tourrities and tenteries, and the ultimate massacres of that swini day? In not European history full of it.) Do not the pages of Carigie exhals the silver of the burid powder and its weltering corpus ! "Oh, ye gallant Swim, ye gallant graillened in black, for what came are ye to spend and be spent? Threat by Fate late their nodel when regults vanished forever and left them to their tolappy lot, unbred to lay down their press, Count de l'impaier was traust hitler and thinker on the tide of steel and intermitted explosion of guns, fighting with all his implet. finding in every formen a Gretauval, and wiping out in every stroke the memory of the birutiliation of that suchten duct outside the Chittean de Lanver.

At last fetracal and rept | betrayed of the king, betracial by Louis of his most devoted troups. Backed by artillery, mad with me meexpected triumph after their overwholming define at the beginning of the day, the richery recried fury and currency into the paleon. The Fearner with the dragmen had made as lastfeetnal stand in the open on foot, with a few efficers of the royal body general, but had for a three withstead the measures in the palace. The king's final review to lay down their arms had left the stwice all limb defeniences, and interfer demonstrated the cognities unlike who had rulited to the support of the king

There was a running fight from stairrass to stationer, front room to room, throughout the palses, which at length because a fride-inmanagery. A few excepted by leaping from the windown. De Fournier was a murked man-His nafortunately completions mattern, which should have sayed lifes, only sugmented life denger. The palars was to flaure, and the esultifiede were atterking the fire frigule that had arrived on the spet by ratinguish the Same, when de Fournier, dated and bireding, found his way into the Hue 50. Honor, and thrained shelter in the passage-way of an empty house at the back of the church of St. Hirth, whose stores bell, with the other furious tintip salulary performance of the day, had to saled the pure of the Rue Durnele.

Juffray Elliests, a spectator of so much of the attack on the Tulleries as was possible for largers on, had more than once estight eight of the objections Count de Fournier, and had seen him eyem the line St. Honory, but from that reserved had lost all trace of him.

The yount, finding that his wounds mere tool. serious, wheel has eword upon his torn uniform, realisation it, breatled a short prayer of gratitude and application, and milled furth from his femperary shelter. Byery marrow street and court seemed to be deserted. Citizens who had not looked themselves in their launes were taking part in the insurrection, or leaking on deling and passwores. delute whether he rould not safely routh his own letted, which was close to La Madelence, and there reladelings himself ; but approaching the Place Vendime be once more came in emited with a fanfarameding crowd horrying from the faubourg. Furthermore, he had one desire in his much, which was to reach the Chitons do Louvet, as som as the news of the disactor of the Tutleres should have traveled thither. It was not unlikely, be thought, that Ge/bapeal might in some villataous was utilized the event to advance his purpose against Mustille. The doke had made the recement of responsible to public that the through would apply find excess to make a patriotic demonstration at the children if the sungularry business in Paris did not servey all bioattention.

Grebouval would not, in his love of liberty, forget his own tiomediate interests or dedres. "Gestaurcal first and France next " represented Grehmovni's principle, and he was not singular in this, now is the fashion of his patriotism end of date. So ile Fournier, by devious routes, made for the Liam d'Dr ess his way to the chiteam, hoping to obtain useful news from Pierre Groppin, and perhaps a loose for the exceptetion of his journey.

Having reconsidered the locality of In-Maddetne, he made for the Champs Elysies, and found points of shelter as he advanced strong the trees. Once he had a narrow on cape, coming soldenly upon a wounded Swiss guardeness who was cut down with yells of execution by a dozen same dottes with pikes and knices. Fortunately they were all too hissen with their exertions to have chosel de Fournier, eyen if they had seen him. He was half melined to have fallen upon them not handed, but the uselessness of his vengounce and the clok of it to bimself rame to him with a flash of thought for Mathible, and he pursued his prairie, but with his sword drawn for margeness. As he legt on, however, he saw fewer and from persons, and creeding the open country between the furthest outskirts of the Faultourg St. Honor and Muneyan seemed at most to be comfortably free from possible maket. A creajenty of horseinen, however, torned him for a while out of his route. He pailed up beneath in socient cluster of planes. observe the rules of the gate of Montmartre. It had been recently burned, and the way was

To think that on this day of all others he was to be betrothed on this day of all red days in the year ! But who could have dreamed, when the diske marked it down to his culendar, that patriction would be tearing the uniform of the motten Perio into strips to descents their pikes and celebrate audder bood and piliage the downfall of royalty in Paris i

The Sedan Celebration in Chicago.

One hundred and twenty five thomas it fortuen, or is other words, the German born population of Chicago, relatested the trentyfills ansiverary of the lattle of Yedon on the first of the present month. The celebration, as the leaders were careful to print not, was not to much of the triangle over Napal-on III to of the event which opened the may to the inestablishment of the noviest German empire. The distinctive feature of the German characbe a love for the fatherhad. It is not the victory over France that these Germana releiests on the monversary of Sedan, por the triemph over Austria in Sadowa, but the smillration of Germany. Americans, others of a the Disgrawing and never-subjugated comour assessly comprehend this German pride in the restored unity of the fatherland, not a realisty ago prestrate and dissentered, now a powerful suspire. Nor can the Frenchman, whose France, through many vicientules of returning houses, has yet been Presser for a thousand years, comprehend the real eventing of the German rejectings over the unity of the fatherland.

It is natural that the national entipathies of nileus who become citineus of the United States should be greatly modified by their new environment, and we are not surprised, therefore, that Germans who have settled among us are not actuated by the same violent among the broard the Trunch which are fell by their countrymen at home. There, the recent Sedan celebrations were undoubtedly characterized by a very different feeling from that which pervalled the pelebrations here. The becoming Court made the distance of 540 miles between bilington and Abrylian in 512 minutes, or 63% miles as how for the whole run. In both cases the trains were light. It is to be communitared that these English reads have no crossings at grade, and are without the sharp curves which mark many of our principal American lines. Then, their conclus are very much lighter than the ordinary American cars. While the time made seems remarkable, the fact still remains that the New York Central Empire State Express, between New York and Stuffalo, is the factor train, regular rouning time, in the world for long distance. It makes the trip between New York and Duffale regularly, a distance of four bundred and forty miles, in eight hours and furly minutes, and does it without difficulty. The English result, it should be understood, the not propose to maintain the speed demonstrated at these trials, but have already returned to the ordinary scholule sone.

The fact of the East Court line, it which we have only barely referred, resulted great enthusiasm along the route, and provide vertenmed the train of all the prairies stations.

The Use of Wind-power in the United States.

Visitous at the Chicago World's Fair were much interested in the very pretty display of wind wheels, and probably most of them had the impression that about all the whosls in the country were gathered together in that large group which they saw in motion.

Dwellers in the cities have little idea to what extent wind-power is utilized in the country, and especially in the broad valleys of the apper Mississippe, the Ohio, and the Missouri rivers.

It has been estimated that the one hundred wind wheel manufacturies of the United States love sold considerably more than half a million wheels, and some individual firms count their present annual output by the buss of thousands. We probably manufacture more wheels in a rouple of years then are at present in use in the whole of Europe.

Even with this enermous present usage, the use of the wind wheel as a motive power is still in its infinity. The reason of its long delay in being generally introduced has been the comsess of the great wind wheels of Europe; but Vankoe ingentity has given us such must, compact, and handy whode that they are easily put up or taken down, and are most applicable for private family use. They are mif-adjust-able, and do not easily get out of order. There can be no dealst about the wind being the prime motive power of the fature, for all kinds of stationary work in the rural districts. Such work as word-mwing, charming, pumping water, grinding feed, etc., which need not be done at any specified four, can be, and is, done by the wind-wheel. In the near feature, when electricity becomes more widely used as a motor in individual daily life, and storage batteries. are used, wind-power will be used for generaling the electricity, and the force will be available at all times. It is profable that the windwheels will thus become reminou to cities; the main eletacie to the urban use of the whosh being that in cities time is considered too valuable to wait for a wind to spring up.

We usually look upon the wirel as a most fickly phytotagenon. So it is, if we consider only short interveds of time, such as a few minutes or an hour, but when we take the total amount. of wind for a work or a mouth it is supprisingly constant. That is, the month of March or August will have about the same amount of wind from year to year.

In the United States the wind velocities are greatest in the marthern part, and decrease toward the south. They are greatest on the counts reliether of seems, great lakes, or Guif of Mexico, and decrease with progress inland to a certain distance; but in the central region. of the prairies and great places they increase again ; and on the latter, where the surface is almost as level and the fertion as limitless as that of the owner, the wind velocities increase again to almost the same amount as when over the mount.

Within morrow limits of country the wind force varies greatly, due to the environment of the localities. Thus at Sandy Block the average wind veto-ity for the year is about fifteen enthe per love; on the top of the highest buildings in New York City it is almost ton miles per hour, and in Central Park about flee miles per hour, while perhaps fifty or one hundred miles out at on the valuelty would be nearly twenty miles per hour.

These yelocities are the average for all tears of the year. During some of the hours there is a cular or two light a wind to mayra wheel, and again at other times there is too much wind, and the wheels council take advantage of the full. force without grout danger of their being broken. It is probable, however, that wind is available as a direct motive power during at least one-third of the time, or for an average of night bours a day

The wind relocities vary considerably, not only with the season of the year, but also with the hour of the dax.

There is the greatest amount of wind in March or April, and the least in August, the clamps from one extreme to the other being very gradual. The amount of wind in the exemple there month by from thirty to fifty per cont. of the average amount of wind.

The regular diarnal change in the wind is much greater than one would imagine. The mount time of beast wind is at night, the lowest point being renched just before sources. The time of greatest wind is in the early hours of tio-afternoon. At a beight of a few handred feet alone the ground and on the pushdain tops, however, the reverse condition prevails. These diurnal changes are relatively greatest in summer, when they amount to from fifty to one landred per cent of the average amount of wind, and are least in winter, when they average from fifteen to forty per cent, of the a termico amount of wind. Wherever the daily change of the surface temperature is greatest the greatest change in the wind will be found.

There is very little change in the wind over an extensive water surface during the twenty-four

The wind is stronger, more constant and more uniform at a little distance above the ground than near it, so that in mounting a wind wheel it pays to have it on a higher hower in an open, umbettered place. There is no reason why a wheel should not be mounted on the top of a large time which has had the upper PRANK WALLS, PR.D. part removed.

FRANK CHAPPER,

The "Defender" vs. the "Valkyrie III."

Tirk first race of the 1865 series for the lybe styled the genius who judges the oppor-A serice's Cup was sailed September 7th, and the Defender, the American defending boat, won, and that handily.

All n all, the race was most uninteresting. The sea was lumpy, but of that dead sort which tires by its very monotony, and the wind-well. it never approvehed even a breeze, and its strength, averaged from start to thish, could not have been over seven knots.

During the entire proceedings there were two revealors cely when snything approaching exinterment among the thousands of enlockers may be said to have eak rd. The first occurred at time moment to tack or to accomplish any one of the several manageres best calculated to fill the bill.

Sycamore was the sali-man on the Volkyrie III., and he it was who ordered the ill-fated tack which resulted to a distinct loss to his side Symmore thought, of course, that he could ones the Beleader's bow, and had Tarry thought likewise the incident which followed would never have happened; for he (Terry) would have come about directly after the Fulkyrir III. He did not, became he throught he could foot fast enough to checkmate his Engas he did, this optation rould not hold water, for at which preceded the cross of the line, Half had gained by it the borth of advantage, or the windward position for which he had played.

With the exception of the good work of the Volkyrie during the first hour of the race, with the wind at its highest during the beat out, when she apparently more than held her own, a comparison of the work of the two boats was all in favor of the Defender. The Defender's showing in the reach for the finish was particularly preminent, and the Hughet sullers, as of old, showed that they had still semething to learn of Americane about trimming a balloon Metopasil.

Though the accompanying diagram does not claim to be at all accurate, it gives, perhaps, a clearer idea of the way the buttle was fought from first to last thee words.

The official measurement figures obtained on the day before the race, and verified by request us the Sunday fullowing, are as follows. They afford an interesting study :

Though the Vallegeer spreads but 425 square feet more canyas than the Defrader, to the ye she looks to spread double that amount. The announcement of this small difference was therefore a surprise to all, save, perhaps, Messra-Watson and Herresboff.

The name of this great skipper and racing man is italicised here, and for the purpose, be it said, to emphasize a fact not generally recognized, leset of all by that class of person known as newspaper experts, which is that Torry, as the one having sole charge of the sails, practically runs the boat; and for whatever good or iii which occurs during the race he deserves the lion's share of credit or blame.

It is a popular superstition, and a pardon able one, too, to the causal observer, that the fellow at the wheel, or the tiller, as the case may be, is the one who techning the "trick." This is not so in the first particular, the least respect, upon a local the size of the Defender, when it is all one man can do to "keep her a-going." He has no time to rast eye about to watch the numerous of the among, or, in fact, do anything but get all the speed possible out of her at all times. Strictly the situation, which was a distinct feather in the cap of Terry, may be enmosed up in this way: At 1/22/25 the Defender and the Vallegrie took starboard turks aboard, and for the encreating half hour the latter-to the eye-looked to be doing the better work, and she also looked to be about. At 1:47.00 the Failtyric cases about, and Hyramore supplemented the order to tack with the remark: "Now we will give them a game." He thought he saw his way clear to stress the Defender, and by giving "them a game" he mound to take a chance which looked hime for the Defender.

The Infender, however, rejused to follow out. Here the situation was the Valkyrie III, standing along on a port tack and the fivfemler on a starboard tack, and both coming together rather slowly but surely. Until the very crists came no one sould predict to a vertainty the result. There were more persons, however, who thought that the Vielkyrie would cross and accomplish her purpose than not.

When finally the English feat were around, defeated, punismunium among the thousands reignal supreme. This was really the one inspiring incident, though the start of the race did not fail to prome unusual interest and an-

"Turk whitespread interest in the races for the America's Unp is well illustrated by the eagerness with which little trations of the events have been welcomed in all parts of the country. The special yachting number of Lasarus WERRLY, and the issue in which we depicted the first and second races, both communical an extraordinary sale. The Nors, of St. Jeseph, Misseart, says of these numbers that they led all other publications in point of interest for Westorn readers, and similar commendations name from many other journals. It is the also of this paper to portray aff. events of great importance—to give, in a word, from week to week, a pictorial bishary of the times. That it leads all. its competitors to this purpose is strikingly demonstrated by the fact that the forement of them did not give a singlepicture of the initial race for the cup, which challenged the attention of two continents, in the number immediately following the event:

A Good Example.

TOE Ohio Republicans have uponed their companies with an enthusiasm and signs which are prophetic of the tory. The party leaders, who were expected by the Domcerate to presence their rivel ambitions at whatever risk to the part), have put aside their desppointments, salest direction their personal interests to the higher considerations. of patriotic duty, and in this respect they present us example which might well be capital by the socialed leathers In this and some other States: In New York the offers seeins to have been, in Legislative as in offset communitions, to strengthen one or mother faction, to " get even " with one or another rival, rather than to secure to the public servise men of the highest equipment, and the result will he that some districts will be had which might have been saved, while some of those who are likely to be elected to Legislative and policial positions will be in no real sense representatives of the best character and highest intelligeneral the State. There has been a great deal of talk to therefort that New York is 'sore for the Republicans by a hig majority," had nothing in more avelain than that if such shalf prace to be the case the world will be subjected. in spite of the houses, who, in physical the game of "perangul politics," mean to have cutively forgetten principles and policine.

We buy to suggest that the Otion way of commercing a computing in wher those that followed here. Present on an broken front to the Democratic assault; convenions every element of strength in support of the purity cause. If beels are to be broken, let them be those of the opposition, and if there are private grievances to be adjusted, let them be actified exteller of party lines. Any Republican of whatever degree, who pursues my other source, is answering of the porty, contidence.

Do International Yacht-Races Pay?

The interse public interest manifested in the interestional yacht races this year has been a distinct revelation of a great characteristic of the American people. They dearly have a struggle involving the question of uniform supremacy to any line. No series of events, with the exception of those of vital importance to the welfore of the country lise of his arcused such continuous throughout the length and toronich of the land. We have been one people in loyalty to the Depleter. These races have been a vehiclefor the display of patriotism to such an extent that we have even surprised ourselves. We have all been plagues for the time.

It has been estimated that it has ever this country morethan one million of dichars to keep the America's cap on this ship of the execut in the last forty years, and the question that arises is Twee it pay? Has there been any praclical benefit? Is there any bidding good to us us a people from these struggles? Let us are.

It has been one of the fit times of ship highling that there has been in improvement in fashioning the hulls of sailing ressely, especially since the days of the wonderful Yankov ellipporeblies. We could improve the speed of our steamgoing yessels, but in sailing craft the good old these of the ellipper ship must always remain supreme. True, mest of those ships were built by the rule of thought, but we have had the satisfaction of evelog, in contest after contest for the possession of this cap, a steady and constant impense ment to the wirntillie development of sailing each schoolhas not yet tracked its limit in this respect. The study of the resistance of water to a step loss had wenderful results Of course memor will pretend that the leaft of the Defender would be adopted to steam propulsion, but the fact re-unitethat, becing shown such improvement in a deal where it has been a belief that there could be almost no advance, we are now really for a steady and admitted development in the hulls of steam craft.

Those achievements, asserver, bave a direct hearing on our welfare as a teation. It has been noted with satisfaction that the Herresholfs have been the lowest bidders for our three new torpode boots. Now, the chief requirement of a torpeda-fant is tremendons speed. Astonishing feats in that respect have been schowed in England and in Prince. The Herreshoffs have submitted their own designs for these new craft of our easy. The direct question for our government efficials to do like is whether a firm that could make each an unexpected showing in such an unexpected field as the sleeigning of buils for sailing craft could not produce torpedo-beats that would also indución the world. If the Herreshoffs should get this parol contract, and if they should produce satisfactory results, as in all goal reason we might expect shall it not be said that these yurbi-rows have been worth to so so a nation all that they have such? Then, too, if we can take the lead in torpeds hade who can predict the extent of that impulse to American shipping? All other things being equal does it not seem worth the while that the wonderful designers of the Bifeasier about have the opportunity of showing their skill in the motion of steam end in

All patriotic citizens will undoubtedly agree, also that these contents have been a paying investment in according national priot. In the test few years there has been a transmission revival of reverence for "Old Blory." Patriotism is the fearedation of a nation's accurity and a nation's prospectly. Every closer that has gone up to the nonated country hands to us as a people—if such a thing as measuring patriotism in influes and result is possible. Sentiment of one kind or unatter really rules the world. Patriotism analysis of the domain of religious life, is the greatest of all

We may rejete, then, over the great specials that these races with all their missind-retundings and subcontoptions, have afforded. We one as a people steadfast and heavy thanks to those public apirited men who have given their time and memy in the effort to keep the America's cap in this country. America's Wierness solution the members of the December syndicute, and the homelrods of other patriotic cultures who would have contributed to the course had bloom been occasion for it, and wishes them all long life and command prospectity.

Grovier, to prove that "seeing of the sphinx has post in rold rock, They admitted that the Aretic regions are continually interesting. But with our volve skey declared that not for a motions are they to be compared in attractiveness with the regions of the worth. And so these group sphere appointed a committee to by before citilized governments the expediency of degentring a grand interestional Antsixtic expedition.

What would suck an expedition, if it should be dispateded, accomplish t. From a cumin-relal standpoint, probably very little. There are well in the worth, to be sum and their skins, though not valuable as fore, make very good leather. Their oil nor is worth countbing But the scaling industry would not pay for working up-As for the while, they are numerous- all except the members of the only family that is of value normalnys, the Bilitable whose mosths most be porsied as long as stays on in vigue. How thought he see right whales. such straining the water off from his dinner through the stiffening of ten thousand govers. But on one since figure him bound are ounce of whistelesse in the South, and experts posed that the region is sed a labitat of the Believe. Not is the process; of a gramo island sufficiently imperiod to demand the attention of governments. It may be that the mineral resources of the Astarctic regions are north norking. It is perhaps a fulse emitting between them and those of Greenland which Mr. Benjamin Mills Piece out mad the United States to buy, but whichexcept the arroite minus-have proved much relation. But no specimen has not come from the for south that watrante intestigation of the country by a commercial feation.

The advantage of sending the expedition would be purely sensible. The tesk of the asculars would be not to peer literach the thick American inper store wholes but to observe the inga themselves, the temperatures, the precipitation, the wind velocities, the ocean, its currents and its life , to make charts of the coast and assertain its geobeginal character; to how through the ive cap and observe the depth of by and the regulitions of stratification, etc., at different distances from the surface; and above all things to note phenomena of electricity and magnetism. Doubtless some of the studies of the scientific corps will not be permistrily profitable. It is not easy to see how the knowledge that, at latitude 78° 4' S., longitude 175° E., the botfrom of the nevan to not globigation once, but blue mud, will bely the sale of a Western farm mortgage. But, on the other hand. there is the science of meteorology that is not complete without observations in the south. Any farmer knows how beneficial unerring forecasts of the weather would be. Yet they cannot be made until complete abscruations shall have been taken in every quarter of the earth-as well as the upper regions of the air. As for the arience of magnetism-our descendants, three generations honor, will regard in with ansacment for our ignorance of the miture of the magnet upon which we live. Of the conditions in the far worth we have no accurate knowledge-only theories. For our thing, we do not even know whether there is but one southern point of great magnetic intensity, or whether there are two. Progress in the selence of magnetion, which concerns to so intimately. is suspended until observations shall be taken at several peans within the Autoretic Circle for at least a year. This state of affairs above is sufficient reason for bestirring oursoften to word observers to the routh.

Whosever seeks the Antarctic aphlex must not look for an easy conquest. To be sure, she is not as willy as her markers rivel. The Arctic sphinx lures you with plateaus of small azimule; in the midst of which you are ket and starry and with a low lying pack, lote which you push till she chouses to ernoh your ship. The Antaretic sphins, sterror and more fromed, opposes your from the very first-When she wishes to check your ship she interposes a wall of for three hundred feet high above the water and a quarter of a mile drep beheath it. For every observation he must struggle in temperatures and which can as jet only be interval. To reach the magnetic pole rear Bose's discoveries he must not only make a sledge yearney of a hundred and sixty miles inland—a small feat for an explaner—but also climb a snow-covered range of monorairs, perhaps as letty as Mont Blane.

A Field for American Capital.

Wittig the Inpunese are preparing actively for the methor emergency of a wer with Bussia, and propose to increase their nury and court defenses practically without regard to cost, they are but by any means neglecting their industrial or commercial interests. On the contrary, they are coucling out actively for the control of the Eastern. markets, and seem to be confident of their skilling to competo succeedully with the older nations. They are now exporting large quantities of manufactured goods to India, and every mouth shows an increase in the volume of trade. A fitte of Japanese strangers plies between Yokohama and Bouley, in addition to several lines of English, French, and Germon weech that touch at Indian ports, and all are reported to carry bravy cargoes. It is a little surprising that in view of the auroese of Jupanese meaufactores, American rapital does not more largely seek layestment in her domestic industries. The vice minister of commerce, in a recent interview with the correspondent of the Chicago Resert, expressed his amazement at this fact : "Our manufacturing industries pay better than they do in any other country. I don't understand why foreign expitalists firmer bring more messry force to loan. The average rate of interest on loans in England is two and one-half per cent, and in the United States four per cent, but in Japan the manufacturers and metriants will pay eight per cent. a year for all they can get and give government bondsbracks of the city of Tokin and other good collateral as security. Why? Because they can realize from twelve to fifteen per cent, in manufacturing enterprises, and often as ligh as eighteen and twenty." The views here expressed are well sorthy of the serious consideration of Americans of means and an enterprising spirit. The same official, when noted as to the forms of enterprise in which Ameriruns should preferably invest, indicated section, woolen, and print factories, muchine shops of all Lords, railway supplies, nels, who, brass works, ship-building, and particularly construction from."

ON THE TRACK OF THE GALLANT BUSSAR.

ALT?' shutted a hourse voice as Pierre re-entered the house. He pulled down his agreen and pushed the one pistol be had left into his belt.

It was musual for Pierre to wear an aprox. but, as he said, a cellarman who has to look after his wine and his guests must not be too particular; though his man, Jena, had become much more fastidious in regard to his dress and the character of his work since there had been a talk of "Liberte", Epslite, Praternite, a mere phrase at present, except to the more ambitious organizers of the revolution that was beginning to spread with devouring force.

The word of command which had arrested Parre's attention was given to a company of gendarmeric it chernl that had dashed up to the lan, the horses wet with form, the men in bright new uniforms, the tri-colored cochade in their three-cornered bats.

Under the remained of an experienced officer they were accompanied by a commissary of police wearing his official worf. They had tracked the count to the Lion d'Or. The clew had been given to them at the burnt gate of Montmartre. Moreover, the Deputy Gréfanical had mained the wayside cabaryt as a landmark on roots for the children, whitten he knew his man would find his way accurate of later. He preferred that de Fournier should be taken by the commissary of polics, who through his instrumentality had held a warrant for his arrest, beging himself to impress Mathible and the de Louvets with a protonse of his protection.

Grehanzal was not only moved in his intrigres against de Fournier by his love for Mathilds, but by that bitter resentment of the har staider upon his secutchess, which, ever since he could appreciate the difference between his position and that of the Count de Fournier and the wrong done to his motion, had in his mind been a constant impulse to some great act of revengebul compensation. It was hard upon Mathilde that fate should have made her a factor in the cruel ambition of the Deputy Grébauval, emphassized the more by the deputy's gennine and consuming passion for law, and his desire for an henorable and legitimate alliances, as both a means of vengenace and an approach to restitution of rank. There was something incongruous in this desire on the part of a lender of a revolutionary movement for the expant rights of man and the overthrow of aristocratic privileges and distinctions; but the aspirations and conduct of the lenders on all sides were full of incongruities of sentiment and action.

"Henri Lavelle, Count de Fournier," said the captain, " has

" Tes, Menniour le Capitaine," Pierce replied.

"It is punishable with death to give succor to traiters," said be commissive.

"He's no traiter, please your excellency," said Pierre.

"Den't address use as excellency," answered the commissary.
"Thank you, I will not, Monsieur Préfet."

"Nor prefet either, citizen."
"Monaieur le juge, perhaps ?"

"Nor judge either, citizen knave," said the

"Very well, monstear," said Pierre. "I was only going to observe that Monsieur le Comte were the uniform of the new hussars, and was ell route to join the national troops on the fronther."

"Oh, that was his allegation, ch?" said the commissary, making a memorambum in his note-book.

"Everybody hermiouts knows that, monsieur," said Pierre.

"But everybody does not know that he disgraced his uniform by a murderous resistance of the people this morning in the grounds of the Carrousel," replied the commissary. "Encugi-Cition Pierre; where is this model hissair inhis new aniform ?"

"May it please your excellency," said Pierre, " his uniform was not now when he came here. "Peace, kneve; where is the man. Heart.

"Pleare knows," said Jacques. "Pleare protorted him. Pierre threatened as with his pistols; he has them beneath his agree."

"And he'll blow your tend off with them." suld Pierre, turning upon the vociferating getemonche, " for a tiar and a coward "

"Think of it I" he answered. "Why, really, I've so many vivid improsions emerging it that I searcefy know how to get at them. The first thing I think of is that I have never seen at any of the other expeditions of this country just the same manifestation of personal totarest and enthusiasm as I find here. In Chicago, for instance, the people were inscient to you; I tell you it's a contrast to the South in that way. Then, in New Orleans they were good-natured enough, but unlosty seemed to manifest a spirit of pride in the occasion. Here the very air is filled with enthusiasm and good will. Every Atlanta man seems to feel that the expection is his very own-a sort of personal property that he is letting out to visitors to have e good time with."

The official weak on to speak of the buildings, and said that, although they were smaller and loss benutiful in appearance than those in Chicago, they were on a far more practical businesses they better united to their various purposes. "As for the Covernment building itself," he said, "if will contain the first and inter consists are hill near and from Washington."

THE MYSTERY OF "KID" WADDELL'S MURDER IN PARIS.

they would, testify in O'Brisa's favor. This detay was granted, and there the matter stands for the present, the trial being fixed for some time in Order. In Paris the general opinion is that O'Brisa will be found guilty of marrier without extenuating circumstances, and in that case the funcion "King of Burses Sheeters" has an condient chance of ending his days below the new year, under the bright blade of the Parts guillottne. Should such be the entermo of the trial, O'Brism will be the first Americanies for so is known, who has come to his death by the French method of execution; certainly the dirst who has gone to the guillottne as the chief actor in any casts eleber.

As to the real came of the quarrel between O'lbrien and Wmidell, while the Paris pelicu are austing their time in vague theorizing, the detestions of the New York Police Department have much charge blood on the subject. To understand then it is accounty to consider the relations of O'licies and Washiell and both basis enodily over O'lirim's life, which has freet provided with deeds of during lawlessness and automobing infrantures, with as would excely be found in the annals of crime. According to Detective-Hergount Thomas Adams, keeper of the New York Police Department records, Themas O'Brien was norn about forty two years ago, in Cambridge, Washington County, Now York. Almost all his life has been do voted to criminal enterprises, in which he has been washefully successful, having operated continually all over Assersin and Europe, and cut in the point buring excepted positionant. For many years lie has been known, dendish and admired as the "lumes king," the great cross-rouds worker, the "farmer's friend," probably the most fugurious operator in visc thictive games, the most plausible appender to homone guillibility, ever known to this or any other country. A quarter of a mailton of stalhave long low estimate of the amount of his retonings from those swindles in the last, ten years. Washiell was a frequent confederate of O'Brien's used a sharer of the spotls,

One of Olitrian's favorite tricks was to broke some farmer known to have a comfortable sumof money laid away to the bank and then approuch him with plausible manner as a stranger desiring to privilines shark. He would constall a transaction amounting to a few landfed dollars, looking payment on the spot, but leaving the stock with the farmer for a few days mitil it was convenient for him to take it away: Monetime his associate would come along and, reviewing to dissover various fine points in the carrie or because that but been sold, would offer for them a much larger price than O'Brien had paid. The farmer's coverious spirit being scouss! in this way, he would ask the sevent stranger to return at a specifical time, and proceed to buy the unimals back from O'Brien at an advance of several hundred dollars. Then, of exercilaving property the difference, the Iwa contelerates would promptly daugeour in search of assister farmer. On each operation of this sort the profits might be four or the hundred diction, and by repeating the struke often enough very large same were realised, with practically no chance of detection.

Ais ther where that made powerful appeal to the capality of the coral mind was the gold brick, game, which see either insected by "Kel" Waddell, O'Brien's associate, or practiced chiefly by him. This method of evin-illing, only possible among men like farmers, whose lives are passed away from the great news control, consisted, first, in gaining the conflictors of a wealthy countryman, and then proposing to him a plan which seemed to office immense gain; this being to parchase, for half their value, tarings of which gold which could be easily disposed of at the ruling price at the treasury or elewhere. There was always n good and cofficient reason given why the actual holders of these guld beteke were mable thus to dispuse of their trees nor in person and so retain all the profit. Naturally, the tarmor obvious to be victimized would insist upon seeing the gold brick he was to purchase, and upon having it awayed by an expert. This presently was provided for by the swindlers in an ingenious way. The brick, which was made of tenate or once cleap alloy gilded over up the nurface, was always toole with ten or a denses below bered into it to various dipths, and those were actually filled with pure gold. It was easy for chiese manipulation in they were in matago it so that the immedicions farmer in cutting from the brick the sample to be submitted to the expect should all unwittingly choose one or the other of those holes, the one requires being that the metal dug and by him was really gold of the diaset quality, and works he as propounced by any interplaced. The one inding steeder in the transaction was to sell the lariek for two or these themsend dollars and to the furnor, who, he simple calculation of wright, new himself were he scalar a profit of as much more on selling the entire argumnt of gold. And so he would have been had his supposition been current that the latek was compowed entirely of such metal as the spectimens he had bed sourced. more of these forcies, decided and terminised with the Jupes of time, and showing the coupty index for whose pullry contents some perf increased and given (Fifteen and Washield his band-carned, timescale.

O'llrien first came to grief in October, 1981, when he was arrested at Alliant for awarding a wealthy furner, Burns W. Fock, of top thou send dellars obtained from him in his fals-histery where, Having galled Perk's couldence unite pretext of purchasing seem real estate. be finally brought him to an office hard for the where a confederate named " Due" Mincloss protended to be running a Western mortage assessment on their sening bloods in a fair way to make an advantageous shall in lated, was he high good burner and nothing both to trying his look, in up intorval of some formality, at a lettery page that the martisus agent had there. The game consisted of drawing cards from a box, such card being nonterms to correspond with prime to be paid, some of these amounting to large sums. In a short time Firsh had wen ton throward dollars at the lettery, and then the mertgage man protented to get very augry at his had buck and declared. that the play had not been fair, since if Feck had lost he would have been unable to pay an equal sum of money. Peck, quite carried away by the prospect of this unexpected winning, instated that he would have been able to pay, and when challenged to prove his words, went to the bank and drew and ten theorem! dollars in reads, the mortgage man having promised in that event to pay over ten themsand dollars, which he also showed. As may be supposed, when Perk returned to the offer with his tunney he was wind by the two men, who now threw off all diagnose and obliged him by force he surrender the ten thomsand dollars. With this in their possession (Three and his confederate smale good their ascape, as they had done many times before.

But their safety was not for long, O'Brien being arrested and brought lack to Alluny, where he was referred on hell precling his trial. It was never a norther of certainty whether his hombonism on this occasion was only a man of stans or whether he artist in good faith. At any rate O'Brien promptly furfaited his built and find to Liverpoot, where he was again arrested and, after tedions extradition proceedings, sent hark to America. His wind come in April, 1982, when he was undersood to been years in the O'Datem or Damesters process.

But the "buses king" did not despuir yet. and through freedy outside, among others a noterwise Ution politicism named David A Dicker, organized a plus for regaining his liberty that proved surcessful. Having been brought to Uties on a writ of holeas corpus, he managed to escape from Baggra Hotel, where Keeper Black brought him to pum the night. In spite of hot pursuit, O'lirius savoeded in bearding a saling-ressel which brought him to France and to a temperary safety. A little later, however, he was accepted in Harry but by some adnet mean, or perhaps to the mood maner, he resemped to get out of the electron of the French officers and took ship again to the Argratine Republic, where he druppeared from view for same smooths. Ensure had it that he made his way to Hayti, where his clevernoss serured him the consciousn of office in the army. Later he returned to Paris, giving it but that he was a back-maker and showing an absockers of memy. He also made frequent business trips between Paris and Branciswas at this time that (Phrun renewed his relanner with Waddell, who had also, for good and sufficient reasons, grave to Parts with tirty. themsend deflars to his proceeded. Perhaps it. was the Blum Wehlen affair that done Wedited alread, for the White Platter yetter of his published whom was still grantifup in spire of the fine thousand dollar compromise more likely rouse for the "Kid's "desire to be alread was be grantedly resculed presenting with O'livies's meage at Union, it being believed that Washell furnished fifteen thousand dollars by flavilitate his remande's recope. It is verticin that Korper Buck was charged with complicity to the after and discharged from his past,

This assumption makes it may to anderstand of the reasons which may have led 17 firies and Washing title a newny spacerel. O'lleice having lives for assettia a ingitive from justice. and made to make our bold stroke, least lays run short of musey and been obliged to draw lowerly on his friend, who, finding that there was email chance of his being copied, and growing weary of AFBelow's continued demands, as but, an doubt, durated to refuse further laune This would have bel inevitably to florer ouprosolurous villeins's part, for the lonest long one always a nom of widest trapper and on perions disposition. If is altogether probable that Walker's refund to assist him further, and his detunds for the return of money aloudy schooled, brought the down-fallen king to such a state of eage that, effort with deliberation or writing trader an outpresentable impulse, he dove his revolver that mirraing in the Northway statem sort shot to his doubt the man who had believeded him.

Of source it is possible, as the French police. are inclined to believe, that the quarrel more one the dicion of profits in some recent stroke assessed in Farts or on the continued by O'Brien. Waddell, and the three missing mem hers of the hand. According to this theory O'Bring's grievance would have lain in the fact that Washfull clouded him cert of his proper dury of the speak. The Parts distortives have gothered evidence elevering that of evered months O'Siriou and Waddell land departed somewhat from their total methods by whating the line of card-chargering, plandering texcelers on the strainers by the familiar methods of these their fingered gentlemen, or plying their trade of card emogratation in carriers places on the conthent sters reseives indige in game of chance. Some room to this theory is given by O'Brien's elaboriest to one of the magistrate-Wfto wtanning him.

"But," perseted the magnifrate, "gamblers do not always win." O'Brien is said to have smiled at this in a superior way, and required: "When I gamble I always win."

Within the past few weeks O'Brien has been transferred from the Conclergerie to Mazas prises, where he is new languishing; writing, doubtless, for the return of "Mrs. Huntington," in whom his hopes may centre. It will be remembered that at the time of his escape from

The fizzle race of September 13th will not soon to forgothen, particularly by the ton thousaid odd culturitata who were present. The Intender exceed the starting-line first, and, with all sail set, started like a greybound on the run of fifteen units to the layened or order. mark. The Valleyrie followed shortly afterward, but immediately came along and much for her anchorage off liny Ridge.

To say that every one was disgusted at this netion of Lord Duarneyon would be expressing it militly indeed. Yet the patriotium of the crowds could not be altogether dampened, and the Difember in remesparacy was followed in her lonely trip over the course and gives a right royal reception at the fluids.

And now that all is over, what remains to be said of the flaren? In a word, the rememors of upfairer places Duaraven in the most uneaviable berth of approximantile action. He had esme lare nuder an agreement, to sail the best. those of five races for the cap. He had been here in 1905, and know, consequently, all the conditions likely to be in evidence on racing days of Sunty Book. He knew, therefore, that steamboats and riga and other craft would be there in profusion - he must have known that, try as the cup committee might, there would be cases (few or many) of crowding and hathering the racing beats.

He knew all this, I report, yet agreed to sail. But why? Simply because he knew the crowding would be as fair for one as the other, and he further fell rectors that he sould win. But how different the state of his lordship's mind. after the first and second tures, when the Itefeeder's superbrity was so prominent that even the l'inferre backers could not help admitting the corn ! He felt certain that he could sof win then, and that fact must have telluenced his subsequent action or insult to Americans and the American standard of sport and fair play.

On Tuesday evening, after the second race, Donraven addressed two communications to the cup committee, protesting against the interference of the excursion floot. In substance he declared in both betters that he would not sail another race under the conditions which prevailed in the first two races. Though the rup committee seattred him by word of mouth that they would not start the race until a halfmile of sea-room was granted the boats where in to jockey for the start, Dunraven wanted the further assurance that following bonts spould keep mike from the course during the new, and if they did but, bored the race off for that day. This the conneitles could not grant.

Ex-Communitors James D. Henith, chairman of the America's Cup Committee, speaking on this latter point, after characterizing Duors one's demands, by the way, as absent, unbeatmedike, and otherly impossible to comply with, said; Now, supposing the Pelityris had been a mile und a half aloud and we declared the race off became used interfered with the disfractor, what would people say ! Why, the country would be too lot to joid us."

Lerd Dustaven made at point of it that the conneittee did not unever his letter. How coul they I They did not receive it until eight o'clora. Thursday neuraling.

No one knew where to find Lord Dunraven. On Westmining afternoon the cup on tehi a special meeting to set on his request about keeping the course clear, and a sub-committee of two started out to find kins. They first tried the Bossohne then the Pity of Bridgeport, Bay Kidge, Mr. Kerwey's office, Mr. Kermy's apartments on Fifth Avenue, and then the Wakker. When the committee finally found Lord Dunrayer they explained to him verbally that they would do their best to have a clear course, but that they could not postpose the rain at such short suiden.

They also agreed not to start the heats until they had a clear field to conneces on, which was all they could do under the electronianess When they left him Wednesday night be said that he would start the Unibyris. In his meand letter, which was revelved in the morning of the race, he soft it to doubt whether he would server the source or not. It was then too late for the committee to do snything.

In New York Bay, where how govern the percentage of craft, this might have here done On the high own-impossible. Yet they assured Dupraven that all possible were and truckle would be taken to keep the encurries dead in

Had the cup committee consisted the wishes and whims of the Irish sari shme-or, in plain terms, told the American public to go to the devil-they would have called a postponessent. of the year, then arranged to have a meeting of the two in other waters at a time secret to all save the contestants. But the cap committee did not see their way clearly to these ride outlelooly over the feelings of thomsanis of sportloving Americans who had paid their money and made arrangements at personal merifice to see the race as schoduled. The accurance, then, for which Dimrayes called never came, and he, in rensequence, refused in sail.

BROKET POR HURRISHING.

We must all feel deep regret at this orderable sulling of a series of contexts for a tropicy about which has electeded as much of hours; good sport, and friendly rivalry in the past; but un regret is so keen to many of us as that the Infender, the greatest, the flactest, and lest racing yacht ever built, abould not have had the chance to show conclusively just what size

The work of the workly greatest grains in yacht architecture, Nathaniel Horsestoff, seems to be thrown away. The Defounder was his greatest arbitroment, and in her evaluation he had spent the labor of a life-time. This year, of all others, he had felt that to win he must put his heat first forward. He did, and he anticipated the way of figuring in international contests no marial can Torotell.

Three may never be another race for the America's Cop. and the way may not be clear for yours for an Assertean load to go abroad and try conclusions in English waters.

All in all, it seems a pity-a "crying dame." on beautiful that apply part it; and to Dunraven We tree all.

Description deserves the popular evertics of disapproval and rendemnation. He has fortested all rights to ever again challenge for the cap. Yet it does not seem fitting that my should call stum. Compensing such an action as his, the least said to a bitter met of way the moner forgotten. Historians who shall later treat of the effair will doubties second bits his just dearts.

No, Loreing Dunsween a proy to his own conscience, we gladly turn to salute the Defender, the greater who designed her, and the able men who run and satisf her. Not only the all Ameriram great her the pain of superturity, but Mr. titemate, the friend and advisor of Donraven, who maked on the Unityeir, publicly expressed an epinson to this effect | " We might have som at least one race," said this good sustained Enginhouse, unity, " had conditions over which us upe had control been different."

From beginning to red, the rup remmittee of the New York Vacht Club having charge of the conduct of the races acted which and in a spirit of farmon. At all times, even during the negotiation busing up to the agreement with Duarante to contest for the rup this year, they showed a willingness to go more than half may in the pastler of convenience; and in willing the protest entered by Mr. Sedin on sevents of the Varience's food in the second runs. they showed Department every consideration.

After the flace of Thurwley a number of offers were made to Distrayer and Mr. Iwlin of meany prime and cups, to be sailed for at any time and place they might choose to miret. These offers were politely declined by the intter and ignored by Donraven.

INTERESTREE PARAGRAPHS.

"There's hite to come out not noncerning their international rarse," said a well-known yachtenen to a party of Intimates who sat disrussing Duoraccon's action. "And when this impress there will be for a piecey. I refer in particular to the results which attended the re-measurement of the Defeater and the Fol-Aprile after their first rare, September 7th." Scortling was wrong there; but just wait and watels f.

A castrond man of affairs in New York had this story to relate concerning the cost of the Definite, and the man cloudd be a proof of the receipes of his descriptions: "The Defender crest one hundred and fifty throward dellars, of which Mr. Vandertilt contributed one hundred and torty thousand dellare, Mr. Issiin five thousand delters, and Mr. Morgan five thousand dollars. Mr. Vanderbilt, however, was not out the filling to the full of his cup of self-eatisfacof pocket-in fact, quite the reverse, for he speculated in railroad stocks, rienred the one undred and forsy thousand dollars, and then bet that amount in England that the Defender would win the cup.

A Notable Turf Event.

No resent event on the American turf has attracted wider attention among sportsmen than the race at Sheepshoad, between August Belmout's Henry of Navarre, James R. and Foxhall Kesne's Demine, and R. J. Baldwin's Rey of Santa Anita. The race was a mile and a furloug, and it was from start to finish a magnificent struggle. At first Domino had the best of it, and his victory seemed abuset assured. But in the home stretch he failed to hold his own, and Houry of Navarre, gradually resenting up, was by nearly a half-length, with Hey of Santa Antia four lengths away.

Pillsbury and the Hastings Chess Congress.

I was not surprised at the result of the Hastings International Class Congress, I had booked Pilisbury as a world-beater after witnessing his phenomenal blindfold performances and Morphy-like genus for recalling games and complicated positions. Question him at any time about some line of play which might have resulted from a certain combination, and you will be extensibed at the depth and correctness of his analysis, given at once, without the aid of a chess-board.

An Outspoken Deliverance.

HE covereds among the lie pulslican leaders who sought to precent any expression by the New York Republican State Convention to reference to the Sanday liquor question reorived a religio which was at more decisive and deserved. The platform as constructed under their manipulation com-tained on reference whotever by this question. There were words in plenty concerning every other remericable and Ject, but so to this one complement being not a willable was breathed. The obvious design was to dodge it entirely, and to combiet the coming compaign in contemptions disregard of the real party leading. The convention, however, was in to mond for effence. If refused to be gagget. Under the lead of Mr. Warner Mitter, who in a brief approch set forth plearly and strongly the duty of meeting this better as the party has not other issues, aquarely and forchooly, the convention adopted by an necessiologies rate an additional reminition, discharing in favor "of the maintenance of the Bonday have in the interest of labor and morality."

It is a striking evidence of the decadence of the moral standards in porty buildraids that any intelligent or reputable Republican should have advised a policy of silence are a question of this character. If the Republican party stands for any thing at all it stands for how and order. All He great and historic achievements have been blearthed with the maintenance of her and countrated authority. If has never was a triumple worth the having on any other the than this. The proposition is commit it to a negative course in this Empire State was to flat contraventian of its librative policy. He adoption would have nearlied meritably in defeat. Victory gars with correspond asserting of principle unit a manuful defense of samul pathey -not with pattering, shuffling predilingimity. If will come to the Republicans of New York in the computes now concred upon became they dured in spite of unwise connectors, to its class themselves positively and definitely on an issue which goes to the very core of underly government. And the party will be the stronger in all future emissis herebring monet principle because in this orbits it was wise and brave energy to declare its houst conviction and affects its fidelity to low and the interests of west unles,

I was in our of those new noments of inspiration which at bung intercals milece English persodical inscature that a recent exist chanting neclera define as 2 the epitie, the recorder, and the tomany entire." What the writerest tomory od " may think of this beautifully direct description is more of our office. The author of the phrase has done the world a service which beneffewered by subsequent attempts or the part of his evanuamentations to shift the oma of "tanantent" to the French decodents, and the "intergrand "thetime of the mostle. Holgium, and the mostle with the usual scheme apostrophizing of Jissep as a most conspicuous and convenient sespegant. The English firflow of the last few years intuishes abundant justification for the phrase "Decidentism is no exotic growth, ansuited to British soil," says a record English writer with an air of thunking God that the Bidrish are not as other men, but as he continues we first an acknowledgment that "The predikerion for the fonl and repulsive, the pulling continuation and the abile sensionness of the French departments, are also the leading characteristics of the suscend English schools. And so flow we could mill that, some there" schools" book the digitation of touch and soose of their French forbanes, nuscent might as well be spelled simply maty

It is England that has birmished as with the mod promission of percharather heroines who have driven American resident to take refugi in the pages of Nordau. From . Engined it is now; but the woman who yearned for one selfsurrender for born's sake before wedding thereas for the sake of pell our rank; the wnoun who republished here but whiled in matty for the take of emission : the ecomon who reputing an origin and preferred a "voluntary union"; has amounted the intention of exercising control of the physical sequences of wedlack. It is England which has given us, in the gains of fiction studies of estions citsease, of accourbements, the climans of histons, and the most startling exploitations of free-love, which in their frankness are unexcelled by medical Discutture or the muchberated French realists or decadents. Men of standing in other brancies of literature, like Mr. Grant Aften, who is old enough to know better, and particions like Mr. Le-Gallienne, full of the neal of the "literary log roller," dock to the standard which weres to have here first cuted by the unlamented Owar Wilde, and lift the our temperature In behalf of free leve, or join George Egreton's neutralic women in striving to "compass the whole physiological guant of their being -whatever that may mean. The Phytie of the prosic halls is held up as no object of astletic aboration; the "bushead feast" is pilleded in moved after moved, and there is a bitley ery of coroll against "the namelume child." These are characteristics of a large proportion of the English fireion which has been most in evidence for the last two or three years

It is abolics that the inspirity of the writers of the physiologics-persographic" school, or it has been been ril, are proreguithe, but they are not all examples of crops mania. There is a foundation for a result spales the element of bruttshoen and luck of consideration for woman which seem to be inherent Droguently, in the clurarter of tion English male. Much of the claract in this firtion is hased upon an injustice spain apparent to one who has moved the mount English statute toward women. Unfortenately the justice or injustice of the initial cause has been obscured by the outpenrings of norvious some of where are simply enoug, and others northy multiple in the name of art, while others will have given expression in the vibration of their disordered nerves to moud in outpourings agent." the neteral workings of wa," and relay places of the tirement problem," which form the perfect flower of dominations.

Over against the mornil and absorped in the English forms of the sky, we may are the Shelemment and the carry of mre like Kipling, Doyle, and Hall Color. The American professions in his their work, and for the advects. are attation of Westman and Hope, and the Scotch ide is of Barrie, Crockett and Marione. American previortation is dismissed with a contemptance smile by Lewien aparetra of new symmetrical countries and liberaries; but notice all the standards of the past are to be obligated, the insularity of the made-half in more flerotics than the procuredness of the continuat, and the day of the cords, the re-cords, and the tommerate will pow with the "were and yellow book."

Chicago Drainage Canal and Lake Navigation.

HE report of the board of army enpineers, compaling of Columb For and Majors Roffner and Marchall. appointed by the Secretary of War. to examine and report upon the perchabit offeet of the Chicago Indiaego comál ispos loko novi horbor le csix, although not accompanied by per definite conclusions, which were in the mature of the case improvible blint very arrangly at a possible loworing of the lake here's from three mearing tickes. "The abstruction of ten thousand substituted waters around with kencer the levels of all the bloss of the system," says the repost. " except have Superfee, and reduce the mongable our pathy of all barbors and shallows throughout the system to on extrait that may be determined. If at all, by wrong now measure only." The effects of such hencing of breck wiff, of course, to felt in every larter and channel between Phicago and Buffale, and in all that portion of the Eric Camil which depends for its water upon Lake Eds. It foalready proposed by the State of New York to deepen the channel of the Eric Circul to nine feet at an express of served pullions of dollars, but If the pumping of threeligaded and 850; thousand entire last of mater per minute out of Lake Mirlegus-more than is supplied by the Chicago Hiver, will bead, as suggested, to lower the lake bettely built as frest, them a large part off the labora of New York State on the cursal which gives the only make from the lakes to an American seaport will be though away. and eight and a half feet of a stor is all that can be obtained for the Buffali grain and bushes these. At 800 context tim it is figured by Secretary Keeps of the Lake Carriers' Association, that the surnings of the bole carrying their month be referred $1,142,000 in a single season for such a polarties of lake ferois, and the house to come corriers. worst by in proportion

And perhaps newhere will the effect of a leavening of the lake level be more severily felt than at Chicago. Itself. Chicago at present has no real stoop ander harber. Her river is limited by her turnels and bridges to resels drawing sixteen feet. Not such would the ferrel be reduced, but the rapid current outsed by the south larger strong of this renal would make revigences in the already extended thoroughfury much tons difficult than at present, and tend in still further divert commerce is send South Chicago. It is well therefore, that the government and a voriferous group who lass yained in denouncing the cares the moment it shall appear to affect the lake levelsfor so we mader-tand the report—and to see to it that those brook are not reduced.

Practical Methods of Reform.

HERE is probably no woman in this metropolis who is accomplishing larger results along moral lines, in the direction of the reclamation of the tempted and way ward of her own ses, then Mrs. Ballington Booth Cultivated and brilliant, with exceptional charms of person and manner - a warmin who would grace the most pullshed and exulted cirries sir has devoted herself, in a spirit of absolute selfsurrender, in the work of rewning and redoring to mefulness the fallow mitracts from whom excisty furns with averdon and abhorrence, and it is not too much to say that her influence and example are dring more to indicate the rms and was medical of dealing with and solving a most sifficult problem than all other influences combined.

Her theory is a very simple one, and may be summed up in a scatener: The way want and the sinning must be deaft with individually and not in the mass. "Some people think "-we quan her own words- that they can reach the desired result through the muses. They think that by sharting up the exil resorts they will crush out the vett the if with one felt enough. We think differently. It is through the individual above that we hope to accomplish onything." Mrs. Booth believes, ton, that there is no modirim so licipital and cumitive as work. It is her aim, there hare, to give size adjects of her adicitude semething to do -und surrely to intervel them by one form and mother of surpresent and recentlon. "They wenter have led unthinking lives. We think it best for them to be quiet and to work; to be made purposeful, curued women, and to put frivality solds." They are tought reading, handreing, wying, and housework. Some of the most successful workers in the shape are nonzer who have amber those methods, been recidined from the very lowest deeps of entendess and sire. Here true it is that there is more potency to the teach of a idealy, hoping hand, in on exlabelies of practical sympathy, thus in all the preachments of morellity who are Pharteen at least.

An interesting fact stated by Mrs. Booth is that a gent about manufacture with the arms were work in often mentfested in most unexpected quarters. " fiven converough men are kind to our aron girls whom they weature have been recome and low resorts," and salour keepers, and infrequency give practical andstance in painting out perone worthy of their attention and help. There is in this fort uncher proof that sincere, genuine elemeter and nosellish philanthropy and constitutes of Christian living impress even the ground and most callons natures,

The Problem of Pauperism.

OME engeniter facts and figures relating to properion or the United States have lately from given to the press by Mr. Frank B. Saulwire, formerly a impulser of the Manuschuperto State Board of Chartetes, and a mixed specialist to westelogical study and hey stigation. Mr. Sanleren complities, and very justile so if appears, that the statistics on purperson gathered by the Federal Conour Bureau are very inaccurate, incomplex, and midisding. This arises partly from the fact that the laws of such of the forty four States make different distinctions as in who are pumpers and who are not, thus making it almost impossible for the Federal enumerators to arrive at anything like exactness in their datistics. It is shown, for example, that in 1801 the reason building gave the whole number of the poor in the almostragues of the United States as 75,845. This is shown to be not soud! by comparison with the magar-stoned numhers to relates a bich kept exact accounts; probably the true number was $5.500. But he 1894, in the "Compendium of the Eleventh Counts" the figures were corrected the wave g way; the total stands mor in 28,204. Mr. Sanborn has compared the figures in this table by States with the afficial returns of Dimess, Mary land, Massachusetts, Michigar. New York, Ohio, and Pomoylesson for the same year, 1800, with the result that, whereas the consess number is 17 flow the true number is $2,000. The Pederal statistics do not be into these persons receiving "our-door relief," which Mr. Santorn estimates at 250,000 in the United States, on whom were expended just year about sixteen millions of dollars. Adding to this the twenty-nive million. defliers paid for the support of pumpers in sections and other charmship institutions, we have a total of about forty million distlers as the sum expecuted by the people of this country cores year for the support of pumpers of all kinns.

As so the everage cost of maintenance, it appears from Mr. Sephern's figures that the Eastern States expend consideralds more per emplie on these pourpers than other sections of the Crime. Thus in Mussachusetta the per-capita exposer is much much remy for each member of the population in Wisconsia it falls as low as farty coats; while the stemen yearly men per capita for the population of the whole country is about fifty cents. The proportionate number of pageers in the older States of the Union is much greater also than in the more recently attied regions. Thus Massachusetts has almut one pumper to every eightrsix of its inhabitants, while Minnesota has about one perper to every one hundred and fifty eight of the population In the whole country the ratio is about one to one hundred sml forty.

As one outcome of his investigations Mr. Sunfects makes the interesting statement that panperism is our increasing in the United States. This is contrary to a governd impresston founded mainly on the depreciated character of journigration in recent years. Then has been an increase of purperism in the South since emportpurion but not enough, in Mr. Sanborn's opinion, to accerbalance the comparative decline in the North and West since 1970.

But whether increasing or not, the facts and figures given by Mr. Sauborn show what a tremembers problem the people of this country have before them in the instiment of paupertum. An expenditure of forty mollion dollars, at the lowest estimate, is not a small min to pay for one item of charity. The most serious question in the whole matter is tow large a part of this forty millions of dollars goes to the relief of the worthy poor, and how much to the support of logy and vicinus trumps and prefessional beggers. The charity organization unletter exists ing in murly all our targe cities have ambountedly done much toward abating the cylls of indiscriminate charity. but there is still enough of this form of chartry to make the country at targe a profitable field for the operation of professional montheants. This class of people -these who deliberately art out to live without work-ought to be regarded everywhere as criminals, and to be severely dealt with as such. And those who through substaken scutiment or sheer indifference, make it possible for armies of victous and dangerous vagnate to exist sught to be made to understand that in so doing they are inflicting a two fold injury upon the enamounity-encouraging some to a life of deliberate otherce and imposing a lickly hurden upon the industrious and the provident for the support of self-mode criminals and paupers.

That was a fine display of the true American spirit. which was made the other day by a more or an of schoolboys in Resoklyn. Two Chinese hale had been boycottod and mobbed by their follow pupils at one of the public schools in that city. They that in terms to their house, and had ahandoned all hope of making weather centure when, on the next day, twenty hele it be next with used the notringe upon their, visited their home and, off-ring them preterties, excepted them to the school, carrying themselves so bravely that a gong of headlines who mosttated another amount thought it wise in refroire. There are a good many whali Americans, partiest monded and ininteract, who may study with profit this monty act of the Juning Brooklymites.

by he this country the abuse of the liberty of the person is instant upon with under interaction, it is dealt with in Germany with a soverity which some lacapable of partifleation. A Berlin efftor who criticised the corne Sedon Mes has been are sted by personal order of the Emperor. and is to be presented for high treason, and the probability is that under imposed pressure a spenty completion. will be had, and the offender and he prison for a herm of years. It may be doubted whether the propagation of the swittlets and the existing tilesentent throughout the empire will be easily allayed by these severely restrictive nous ares, which make could establish impossible and revealan absolutistic tembesce in the government which is wholly incompatible with the German leve of freedom.

It is not mary in the matter of war see globation that the courts are exhibiting a commendable regard for the ruforement of law. The saloon keepers who are being fixed and imprisoned for Sunday setting are no more autorished. perhaps, thus the dealers in adulterated milk, who carried on their reference trade practically without asolestation under the Tammany regime, but who are now being end turn and compelled to a with a refull penalties of the law. It was shown in the cases of some of these offenders that the milk sold by them to the poor contained pine per cent, of water and four per cent skim. The punishment of one bundred dollars fine and ten days' imprisonment was certainly, in these cases, pure too severy. The decision of the more reputable wholesale dealers to co-operate with the outborities in punishing miniterations is a marked tribute to the potency of law when honestly asserted.

Wis get an idea of the activity of the American inventive faculty from the official statement that during the hat. fiscal year 20,745 patents were Issued by the United States Patent Office; while the tital number of applications reprived was 36.972. Of course many of the applications made from time to fime are of no practical value, but the number granted shows that American inventors are in the main practical in their designs and ideas, and that the resuits of their studies and investigations enors actually to the popular advantage. The Patent Office under its pres ent administration appears to be one of the most admirably residucted branches of the government. The commissioner states that on the last week in Jone all but one out of the thirty-hour divisions of the office had all its work done up to within one month of date, while the remaining division was only into months in arrows. We fancy there are few depertments which keep their work so well in hand so this Time new-paper has uniformly pleaded for the elevathis of the character of our representation in the State Legislature. It has justisted that more but the best men in point of personal character and equipment should be sent to Alleany to legislate for the people, and that so long as an opposite policy was pursued there could be no possible protection against jubicey and all the even which followup in the rule of self-weking incompetency. Why should not men of the stamp of Mr. Depen on the one side and Mr. Who let II. Perkham in the other be called upon to serve the people in the Legislative superity ? Who doesn't know that the men who co-operated with the Coomsittee of Seventy would symbot more efficient and catgible service. than the Tayoribes of the shops ? We are gird to see than the New York Reeld is urging the selection of persons of this class. In a recent room it said :

in the said days You York City was represented in the Legislaturto the highest appears of her medium or levest claim. Is the Cuban insurrection about hold out until the meeting of Congress on effort will no doubt be made to wrate the meagainlast by that budy of the belligerous at the insurgence. Petitions are already in circulation calling for such action, and those will no doubt be signed in such numbers as to compel attention. What soght Congress to do in the pretabes? Obviously it ought not to rivinguse the imargents as helligerents for more scatimental names. So matter how acutely we may sympathize with them, we must be prevened by numberations of fact. Certainly we ranged commit ourselves to a policy which mould turke as their practical allies, so long as their result la a more incorrection, without coherency of character, with me attributes of autiomality -seimple guarrilla mean? upon the constituted authority. But if the livergreets vinc-How in maintain themselves, and after reasonable time it becomes appeared that Spale varied subfact them-then, in other words, there is in Cube a state of war-then we may properly recognize them so hellipsecute. Present initios tions favor the belief that the impercetion cutnot be not present with the means which have so far been involved to that end, and it is doubtful whether, with the large is inemund re-substraturate which have been undered to the fleid, the Squaints authority can be perfectly restored. If this should be the outcome, Congress could hardly refuse to set on the aphiery in the sour future, in barming with the desires of the great authority of our people.

To the onlinery, unperfessional preson who channel to attend any of the mostlings of the recent Medico-Legal Conpress held in New York, musy automithing and even disquisting things were said, none more so than the following, however, by Mr. Albert Bach, vice president of the New York Medico-Loyal Society .. "In my uninten," he said, " a pleasterns has the moral right to out beams or brute sufforing by administering drugs . . . and I know that physicians do so caid life. I consider a physician only formula who relieves one of a positively assertained fatal and toronius abusical malate or condition by administraing drugs that will end the paintensly." I think every hummiteries will agree as to a declor's moral right to end a patient's hopeless suffering-that is, with the consent of the patient-and the humanity of it can be questioned by no mu; but it would be an impossibility to frame a law ciety a great haly of auptrocipled medical practitioners. whose weich would would be "morality and humanity," and whose object would be murder for personal gain. I fear that the small, suffering micority will have to bear their Ills for the vake of the marry of the healthy reajority, and reputable doctors will have to restrain their sympathries, even though their patients are analogoing langeless and queless suffering.

A reader of "Men and Things," who signs binself L. P. Ross, of Rochester, New York, writes to me from the Hotel de Flandres, Braxelles, as follows: "Dear Sir:-1 lace just seen your very just criticism of Theodore Rosevell's article on Klod's 'Social Evolution, and it so exactly expresses my thoughts when I read Rossevelt's acticle that I wish to thank you for putting in print so correct a statement and a se-much-needed criticism of the article." My correspondent gave an : But how about Mark Twaters ridicalors criticism of Ferimore Cooper, which appeared abe in the York Jacobon. Why don't you hit him as be descripe, and over his aboriters the editor, for publishing such a sifty, unmatable and abogether foolish article? I den't 'hit him as he deserves " for two rescous . The "sally, untrathful, and altogether feelish (though I must confess delightfully Tweinish) article" deserved no comment, as it was written from a pulpable wrong point of view and besides. Mark Twain at present has so many treables of his each that it wouldn't have been fair. As for the cultor-well, all offices are such hopelessly abandured creatures that there is no use trying to touch them wither by ridicule or investive

Professor Casar Lembreso, the very learned Italian satherity on original authropology, opens up a very wide field for speculation by the following extract taken from a several article of his in the Parame. AT THE CHATEAU DE LOUVEZ, ORE than once the Duchess de Leuret had drawn to her receptions advanced mumbers of the National Assembly. General Lafayette had been one of her constant friends. The dries had even tolerated the American here, who will retained a friendly intercourse with the Count de Fournier, although they had long coased to be in political sympathy with each other.

The duke generally found business or pleasureolsewhere when the duribus crawded her country house with summer guests or her town quarters with Parisian society. She had not been form in the purple, as the dake had. Her origin had linked the bourgeoise of trade with the cordon blue. She had been a beauty in her time, and married the duke for wealth and station, he taking her in a freak of passion which soon came to an end. They telerated each other—level each other, the duke railed B—for a mouth or two, and then both discovered squrate individual ammoments and occupations; but they were united in a sincere devotion to their only child, Mathilde.

It was more for the cake of Mathible than to entiry are owninclinations that the duckers had cultivated certain prominent leaders of the democracy of Parts, though she was more athome with combers of the National Assembly and their wives than ever she led been with the high noblems.

Mathilde was a true descendant of the de Leuvet family, her pride somewhat tempered by the democratic influences of the times. She was not what the vulgar world calls beautiful, a model for a painter—neither a Venus nor a Galatea; but she was a sweet, womanly creature—fall, graceful, with an intellectual face, fine eyes, a goardon carriage, and an amable disposition. The expression of her face was not always alike; there was nothing monotonous in it.

Mathilde de Louvet was unaffected, succese, and Freuch in all those little unnamable charms that have given lences to all nationalities. Her complexion was unusually fair and may for a Frenchwoman; otherwise she peasand the de Louvet other - loved such other, the duke called it - for a mouth or two, characteristics the oval face, short upper lip, delicately-rounded and then both discovered securate individual among one of manner.

She loved the young Count de Pournier, but had a keen sense of the duty she owed to ber purents; and it is quite possible that had they been united in pressing upon her the suit of the Deputy Gerbarrul she might have merificed her feelings and inclination upon the altar of oledlenos; me would this have been an unusual thing in France, where he this day perents consider they have the right to select bushands for their daughters. But Mathilde was encouraged in her refusal of Grébaneal by her father's objection to such a match, and also by a sentiment of family pride.

For the hour together Mathilde, on this fatal August day, had an looking out from her window over the broad country stretching away to the Seine, and the woods and meadows of Courbevole beyond, with its unresped fields of yellow corn, its browning forest trees, and its bright bine sky.

Up to the very morning which was to usher in the sweet hour of her betrothal to the man she loved, her mother had urgest postponement, predicting some terrible denominant of the coronomial. The duches had not dared to be frunk with her daughter or the disks tourshing the more than vague warmings of Guebauvai, St. Just, and other wire-patters of the Assembly.

She had intrigued with both parties, king's men and people's men, and at one time had meanly succeeded in negotiating a league for the king with more than one democratic leader. But nothing she could say or do would touch Grebanyal; what hold she had upon him was through her daughter, and this only went to the extent of procuring privileges for the family and encouragement in the acceptance of the duchese's social invitations among certain of the untable revolutionary leaders of the time

The duckers might baye done much it she had been an clever as she was ingentions. For a time she aucreeded in bringing together many of the more mederate men of both parties, with their ladies, such willing to make concessom; but the duke insisted upon his own rights and the wish of Mathible to confirm the berethal of their daughter, and to make the secusion moreoruble and worths of the two is sees of do Leavet and de Fournier. Minhigse In Duchouse had been compelled to accept the saturation. The invitations and been bound before the insurrectionary movement neight be said to have actively limited out in Paris; atherwise it is probable that even the dake himself might have admitted that the time for the betrethal, ne at bust the very pulbe manner of it, was the bosen

Many of his friends laid been fuithful to their promises to be present, and the durhou had been allowed a certain margin of license in regard to her own politically mixed circle. It was significant of the rapid murch of events. however, that while several of the duke a mear est neighbors had emigrated since the notification of the reception at the Chateson de Louves. had been beyon, only two or three of the persom who had been hapeful to see some accounmodation between the bing and his opponents had driven liste the court-yard of the chitma at the invited home. These were not of first class importance, and were half suspected by the duction to be spin rather than friendly greats.

While the de Lauvets were receiving their guests the king and queen, secondanied by the daughin, had left the palese to see protertion with the National Assembly. Print. brave queen |- linked with a king who found within him no impalm to respond to her horotoepirit, but only the resignation of the mart'ry.

"I would rather be territor to the walls of the palace than have it ?" she had mid; but nothing would move the king

Are you proposed moduse," sold Rudorer, " to take open yourself the responsibility of the denth of the king, of yourself, of your children, and of all who are alwasshed with you f

No one replied. If the ignores value had been raised in response it would have been " Death. rather than critrat," but she was allow, her courage was one thing, but devotion and data to the king unriller.

"Let us go " and Monseur Montgore "Honor commands it I the safety of the state requires it. Let us go forthwith."

The mole robbed the queen of her pure in the way , and from Brd to said the entire sters of the downfall of the times is sulfied not alone by the crust tengedy of it, but with every thing that Is world and mean.

This was no time for Assembly near for Jamilton or Otrombieta, by he visitors sattende the barriers of Paris. Crefmuscal, much as he was personally excremed in consection with the affair at the Chatego de Louvet, did not ventare furth until after the depotation from the new mountapality had appeared at the bur, doinsuling that their powers doubt be unifers ed, the king dethreard, and a national renvention convened; and it was not writtent difficulty that he and his military excert hed made their way through the Chungs Elys're, where the massacro of the flying Swim was active, and ghould of firth seam were already materialing. and plundering the bedjes of the dead

It is lined to consider that within a mile or two of these seems of riot and slutighter there should be a yourt und quiet country, a calculy-Bowing river, pleasant gardens, and honostenia in the midst of growing crops.

Both the duke and the duchess ties; occasion, now and then, to have the arriving company, she Marthible de Fournier, Wideh begon to be asarming; the more so that several grants brought disquisting: reports of new and grave troubles in Parisstorn messengers of the trade of which were already mounting for Neully and the wellknown chitesu that much the view from a bend of read beyond the little of the impressive with agricult trevers and fine the timber.

This decliration of the New York Democratic Convention in reference to the excise or Sunsiny question, strapped of all the ambiguities which characterize it, commiss the party to an effort to secure the legalization of the sale of liquor on the first day of the week, molet the presence of protecting the "personal liberty" of the citizen. This action, of course, was not onexpected, it was the legical and necessary outcome of a natural party sympathy with the victous and democrafising larges which constitute the most serious memors of the public moler.

It is well, now that the lines of butfle have been set as to this question, that the precise form should be stated and understood. The laws of the State prohibit the sale of fiquot on Sunday. In this rily the police department is charged with the enforcement of that how. For yours its enforcement, under Taninanay rule, was conditioned upon the ability and willingness of its violators for purchase mamunity by contributions to the party treasury. It was used in other words, for purpowrul blackmall. Against these who refused to pay toll to Tammany it was enforced with pittless severity, but me against every man with a "pull" it was hirroless and imperative. In Nevember last the people elected by an overwhelming vote an administration pledged to the reform of Tamamay methods and the restoration of agright and rhandy government in the metropolis. The police commissioners abelieve to their obligations and to fulfillment of the pludges made to the pumple, addressed themselves promptly and efficiently by the enforcement of the laws which had been violated with impunity except as they had been employed as an instrument of oppression. They closed the valuum on Sunder, They re-established the authority of law by bringing as punishment the Signor-sellers who sought to exist it. No man was distracted in his rights. There was no perthetics or discrimination at between offenders. All ables their or poor, uses with a "pull" and mea without it, were compelled to obey the low or to suffer the penalty of its infraction. The authority of the State and the people was vindi-.ed-that and matching mure.

It is this straightfur want and conscientions performance of a public duty which has aroused the heatists of the Democratic party, and in now assulted by it as a "basel, arbitrary, and unlabeltiment enforcement," of an administrahew," so an attempt to "uphobt a granting tyranny " as an interference with " personal freedom," and an investor of the smethy of the freshie. The people of this Empire. State are asked to declare by their vetes that they are opposed to the enforcement of a law reacted by them for the purpose of suppressing Sumby description, and breast a Legislature favorable to the Instroyal upon liquor afters of pririleges and immunities not culously by any niner then. And until this result is achieved it is instelled by the party orators and organs that this particular class shall have bull liberty to violate the law-start the statute against the open Sunday solven shall be suspended, and the continuous shall be unrestrained in their invacion of the rights of lawabiding citizens.

This is the issue presented, under the firmer disputse of a suffeitude for home rule, to the electorate of New York. The Democratic party property a policy which partial to its legical conclusion, neares marchy and the destruction of every maniment of the public safety. The Republican party answers that informore proposition by the declaration that the authority of law most be uplead, and specifically that the secrelled Sumby laws must be maintained in the interests of labor and mornity. There can not, as we believe, be not doubt as to the automoral a struggle fought on these lines. The sums may respond to the bugle call of Senator Hill and his followers, but the conscience of the State will assert itself with a fore-fulcophesis which will at once overwhelm the partison conquinters and determine conclusively the flability of our ple to the principles of good government.

A British Third-term Advocate.

The London Specials is inclined to ridical the American aversho to the idea of a third-form President. It proassumes it is political superstition, which is the apache of justification on the basis of compount wave. As in the comtention that there is thenger that an executive whose norm of office is prohonged will grow auto-estic and come to regard biosciff as supreme, the Specials argues that "there are very few great men who grow more analysis and revolutionary as they grow obte," and it is unmite to see why there should be applied to the averative office a pertiple which is never entorest as to representatives in a gralative budies. In England, it mays, "constituenches are not afraid of giving their numbers third or fourth or liftle terms; not are parties afraid of social the same leaders in office year ofter year and Parliament after Pauliament." It then adds: " If it is different in the United States, it is not a much because the people desire change as because they cling with a seri of superstitions tensority to George Washinglenia authority on a question of this sort. If he had soil just the century-that a good servant, when theroughly proved, should be preferred to any servant who had not been poved-his authority would have had never weight for that renelucion than for the other. It is the conservation of the people of the Latted States, ast their lose of change which coalstars Greetel Washington's probably reflect heaty connect to the apportion has of the United States." The advocates of Mr. Cleveland's monantion for a third term could not have a better compulge discussed than this article of the Speciator, from which we quite these suggestive sentences.

A Striking Contrast.

WO Senthern States are just now alterating an exceptional degree of public attention. Our rhallenges commendation by its illural and broadgauged enterprise, its runitvation of a national spirit, and its acceptance, more or less to orty of the conditions growing out of the COST War; the other principles tellignation and contempt by its persistence in old and persistence bereden, its refundto utilize its industrial and business opportunities, and its undersont heavility to every principle of liberty and equality, and every then of senior and political progress. Georgia and South Carolina represent, in a puruliar sense, the antipodal forces which are struggling inday for the mastery to resulters. He

The Litter States and International Exposition, which is now arreading visitors to Atlanta, is committely the entrose of Georgia entreprise. It represents fashed the progress and development of all the Senthern States, but It had its initiative with and the surrous to largely due to the crurps entirelated, and broad-minded consequence of representative citizens of that State. For twenty fire yers Arbeita has been the complements progressive city of the South Smitter and decanated as few other other were by the stotus of war it lifted itself penalty with the return of peace, from the ashes, and set about the work of reliabilitation with resolute purpose and a determinaion to militar itself homesty to the legle of events. It did not corget the anothern it had made he's but come ; if did not applicate. The list part, in the war against the Union. for it accepted the issue of the struggle as that and doorminative, and set its face loyally to the future. The Many, of which it is the metropolic felt the inflavored tracaample, and while the process of classicating old pre-judices and expressing old saturations was slow in the cowould's at larger there was from the first tool and authorise. and progress and to day Georgia stands combinedly Joromost emong Southern States in all the elements of untertal strongth and prosperity, so how then in her privacy as a conservative force on mail the political quotion of the riouth Carolina, on the other hand, suvepara toolay agastantially the attitude, concerning the questions of the normal averyelenty and 8tobs and individual rights, which slar recorded when Sunder was fired upon. She has server accepted in good faith, and does not now accept, the results of the wat she provided. The indiscuse has been muchonsex. If not revolutionary, all through the period of greenarraying and rehabilitation. She delles Polarat law, jum contempt upon Federal courts, moffs at the rightend Amerhore ritizenship, and puts family and obeliense to law under buy, socially and politically. Undoubtodly there are South Carolinius who lament these pervious tendencies, and who would rejute to see the State delivered from the clutch of the political desperadors to be hold it in leads. that these are only on strawn floating on a sund and turbuless herryn. The State as such, is percepted through such through with the spirit of revolt against the spirit of the age. Comider the specially it is today presenting in its Constitutions Convention. Here is a body, charged by the general electance with the responsible duty of reconstruct the the fundamental law, which is bending all its surgeties to the see purpose of elefacting the provisions of the nafrom Urearitation in reference to the suffrage and perpetnating a government by a mismesty. According to the last census the resing promistion of South Carolina was new harded and two thousand white and one hundred and (littly real three-ned negrows. Under the Federal Complestion the stable of the bases to the elective fearchise is as perfect and absolute us that of the winter. The railing dynasti proposes to deprive them of this right or to inpase signi restrictions upon its exercise as to make halojuyment practically impossible. There is no pretons at all that such a result can be achieved by any straightforward previou. It must be desse for indirection and artifice. This is in itself a rendressian of the injuries and subjects of the proceeding, but this resoliteration of course, does not operate is a deterrent. For weeks and months these South Carolina statesmen have been scheming, panning, and intriguing how their inflamous purpose could be best accomplished, and now that they have agreed upon a method, the whole Tilliannite constituency is in an erstasy of delight. While Georgia and other Southern States are astir with facilitative and competing legally for the prizes of wholesome progress; while a spirit of tolerance and real syngachy with the principles of republican government are manifesting themselves more and more aggressively in their cirile life. South Carolina, the mother of secosion, still sullen and malignant, plots and conspires against the severagary of the people, and seeks to anchor inher constitution a limitation of personal rights which the crucies of Old-World desposions are beginning to acknowledge and respect.

There can be no question as to which of these two States, so cadeally different in their tendencies and dominating spirit, will exect the larger influence upon the national future and sequire the larger measure of material prosperits and greatures. Georgia representing the New South, will become more and more the Inspiration and the guide of all right thinking Southern men, while South Carolles, elliming to old projudices, and striving to restore the old South, with all it stood for in our civilization, must inevitably decline in influence and become more and more an object of derisan and contempt. The world does not move backward but forward and that will be infallibly the mosterful community or State which keeps near nearly abreast of the broadening ideas of the time, and reflects most truly the highest and best impulses of an accending incommity.

College Life of To-day.

offic opening of our redieges for a new year of study brings to mind, the changes that have crept intocodings life in the last score of years. One of the characteristics which is now apparent is the tocreasing independence of the college student. He has coused to be a boy, he has become a man. He now has the freedom of checking his studies to a large degree, and is not obligied to follow a system.

prescribed for him. He shows his sunthend and his maniferes in the absence of tricks and the spirit of trickiness. It is no lenger a mark of the ablest came to steal the tangue of the redlege held, or to get a new into chapter ready for morning progress, or to be louds the walls of the recitation dails with continualish pictures. The redlege man has become independent, and has also become, usually, a granieman,

The introduction of athletics as a system is a second change in the order of endege life. For more than a gontrution find ball has been played to the American college, and also for more than a generation gymmatic work has bein done; but it was not until estable a few years that arbicities face hold the large and strong place they now hold. In the epinion of some this place is too large and tise strong, and probably in some institutions they do occupy the large a place in the livered the students. But on the whole it must be acknowledged that athletics have done more good than barm. Emerson used to say that light is the less policemen. The college officer may also say that athering are the feed marel force of the college. It may also he and that athletics represent a great intellectual condition to the rollege. For fast-half and base-half are games of loading quite so much as of muscles, and many a man lies does gave eligorous work in the recitation man because he face but the health arrowed on the athletic field. It is in he added. Surface, that by the force competitions of American life a strong body plays an important part. Although the body can be called by me means intellectual. It is get a tool and a rendition for the use of the best inschinated forces, No man, however able in brain, can do the work which berought to do hampered by physical weakness. Athletics, therefore, in tending to strengthen the body, do represent a prest important movement in American college life. Yet It is ever to be observed that athletics are not an end inthemselves. The horseful relations which they accupy in pertain coffers have orisen from making them an end in thems lies. They are ever to be kept separate from the great and of rollege life. They are ever to be regarded as HOUSE

A third characteristic of the American college life of today is its im-reading hexarimments. It is a well-known and sail fact that the cost of getting a college education is now for targer than it used to be. It has increased two or threefail. This increase is simply a part of the increased cost of American String. It rests a family in New York twice as much to live new as it did before the war. But It is always to be said that college life should not become laxpriors. The cost of rollege education alumbi be kept as low as possible. The scale of expenditure among the students should also be narrowed. There should be at least our place where men should be measured, not by their wealth our by the lavuriousness of their apartments nor by the elegance of their parments, but by their sheer and simple marrhood. The American rollings could hardly do a better thing for American life than by in every way seeking to illustrate the truth that the great verities, the cardinal virtues, are the supreme things in life.

The duke tool once upon a time repored in a magnificentetablishment which had been administrated by a right trival fashion ; but on this occasion it was a triffe practile quest and coldending to talk of the master of the horse, who even no more than his chief stablemen, his ferror converse of fewer their half a dozen; but such arrangements as he had been able to make for attendance upon those who might require tureb-bearers or guida were on a fairly literal scale. The ceremony of betrothal should have taken place before sunset. though it was expected that some of the gueste would remain over their wine until late. Many were staying in the house; others had come long distances: a few from residences in the suburbs of Paris, which were in those days practically in the country, cut off to a great extest from the immediate news of the capital:

Harrily and the duke finished spenking and the cheers of his guests subsided when volume in alterention were beard at the entruses to the salon; and before his grace could turn to inquire the cause of it, the commissary of police, in his searf, attended by his company of gendarmes under the command of the officer who had interrogated Pierre Grappin, forced their way into the room, the recombeary atternor his shibboleth, " In the name of the law !"

Almost at the same moment the ladies were put aside, and the gentlemen, with few exceptions, drew their rapiers. Grebauval and his triend, Captain Murcy, remained apparently

This results in making each one of the party drink more than he desires, stay away from home later than he intended, and in many instances spend more money than he can afford. in Europe the treating hubit is unknown, it being a matter of reminou assurence for one man to invite a frond to drink without the friend feeling it incumbent upon him to respend, at lowe on that particular occasion.

METROPOLIS, 1871 -1895.

THE CHICAGO OF TO-DAY.

SCARCELY a quarter of a century has passed over I breage since the city was visited by the greatest sulamity of modern times, and one hundred thousand persons saw their homes and landress houses had in astes. Yet not one city, but two, have been built upon the rutus of the old worden Chicago of 1871.

The Chicago of to-day is a proud and powerful metropolis; a city of foundless wealth and some claims to beauty; no longer provincial or sectional, but metropolitan and national; dominating by its vigorous and nervous energy the whole continent except that narrow but still important strip between the Alleghanies and the Atlantic. It is the centre of the continent's railway and inland neveration system; the presture supplying, manufacturing, and jobbing centre of the western hemisphere, and developing a commerce which calls to mind the boast of the old burghers of Nazewsberg, that " - their great imperial city stretched its baied through overs come.

True it is, and no bills boost, that the trade of this pushing, hustling inhead city crosses every sen und penetrates every bind.

What are the conditions that have made Chicago what she is, and which give an assuring promise of an even more glerieses future ! What is that which will strum the eye of the practiced observer as the one distinguishing feature of Chicago as a metropolitan city !

Such an observer will note first, Chicago's slogular profiles almost at the centre of population of the North American continent, at the head of a vest system of inhand one and river over two themsend miles in extent, and he will not fail to see the great ship count which is being out through the glacial drift to unite the waters of the laim with the headwaters of the Mississippi. He will use on every side the evidences of a wonderful hatteral wentth; vast prairies of the most fertile soil, extensive forms of proc and hard woul, and inextensible deposits of building stone, coul, from rupper, salt, and paredenne Locking more cheely be will then observe the score and a noif of railrouds entering the city from every pedat of the company, and encouring it in concountrie rings of ideal - a great geometrical spidor's web of railway truck.

THE NAVEL OF THE CONTINENT.

Ton great systems of railways pear into Chirage the golder predicted the West and Northwest, while five from the South and Boothmust living myrinds of five stock to the great afaittoirs, and a stearly stream of source in continue our trains of coal. Millious of fast of lamser and thousands of tens of ore are floated down from Lake Superior in vessels a bondred times as hig as the ship that here Columbus across that sens from Spatin. Dut of Chicago andward run ion great trunk colleges, carrying accordly four and a half to the million tens of freight to the sectional, while her take commerce is alrundy greater in tomospe than that of Beston, Philodelphia, Baltimore, New Orleans, and Han. Francisco all together, (Report of found of trude.) The roll lines and the lake rents comterbulance each other, so as to fasten the great lukes portanear the southern end of Lake Mich gan, and to keep the rates of transportation remaintly at the lowest point. These then are, in held, the completes which tend to nath Chicago the great meteopolis of America.

and on the "slope"; in Mexico, Central and South America, disputing territory with the English and the Germans; and ellowing all the world in Australia, Hawaii, and Japan. There is, at the same time, more than one large house in Chicago that does a beavy mail-order basiterm without employing drummers at all; one of these, founded in 1972 as a grange-empty house, and dealing with country customers alone, reports the sales last year at five million delians, and this year largely on the increase |

The inining everyunies, the real, iron, oil, and lumber companies, the land, irrigation, and improvement companies, foreign manufacturling espectre and financial bouse of every kind, not only throughout the West but in the Flact, require offices in Chargo, so that there has grown up a womberful office population. Elling a hundred or more grant buildings - to say nothing of the least ones.

Towers or Person.

I have said that not one, but two Chicagos have been built since the great fire which swept away two thousand seres of buildings, value with their contents, at two hundred million shibture. The reconstructed city was by no means " fire proof." The ordinary business building was four or five sturies, of stone or tros front, and worden flows. The need of pasts office roun in the center of the city created, a demand for tall buildings, and the yielding character of the subsail brought about the iron and concrete foundation upon which the new "Chicago comstruction," the newer of stool and leave costs, was rearred. In the down town districts no less than ten million dellars' worth of " old " inchitage have been not down to make room for these structures, which an able erchitectural critic of New York line discribed as approaching perfection in symmetry and design.

The years after the great fair -- itself the most stapendone feabling enterprise of the reutury, were confinedly years of dollness and deprestion. Vet in 1982 there were erected $1.0 miles frontage of new trainlings, at a cost of $20,250, 000; and in 1904 there were built 41.9 miles. evening $51,000,000. The new bucklings for the first six months of 1865 rost $19,000,000. These figures of cost, says the Economist, should be incremed by termity-five per rent. This mould indicate fullding operations this year of op-Ward of $47,000,000

MEASURAGENTS BY MILLROYS.

The commerce of Chicago has made gigantic strides times 1970, and one penaltar feature of her progress is that the great fire of October, 1970, seemed to produce no pause in the standy advancement of her humans. In 1824, 72, 000,000 brashels of grain and first were shipped. from Chicago, in 1971, stranger bushels to 1471, 01/00,000, and in 1602, "the year of plants," 200,000,000 beabole. In 1979, 600,000 entitle and 1,700,000 large were precived. In the following year the number rose to 004,000 and 2,000,000 respectively. And so on. The fire second only to storolate features, and belongede is. And in right to the niggretions that here been made from time to time, that the grain business must eventually go to the need of Lake Superior, the parking business to some point further wort, etc., we have only to compare a new figures of 1800 and 1806. The expectar of Chicago's allowators in 1900 was 11,590,000 inschels. and in October, 1871, it was less than a million. In 1805 it was 45,000,000 licebols, or meanly twice that of Duboth, and nearly 5,000,000 business more than the capacity of all the elevators of the four principal Atlantic ports combined. Here are some other comparisons.

It is the latter set of figures that shows this enge's wonderful progress as a manufacturing centre. Over five times as much power, slerve times as much from and steel, and logs hatchest and fifty million feet move of impher ! These are the real figures of Chicago's advancement. By the remain of 1979, thirty-me thousand perwas were reported ougaged in manufactions; in 1980 the censors gives the quarker at rise hundred and sixty six thoround, or five and a third times as many ! Over ten thousand perests were employed in transportation.

And my less on sen than on hand is Chirago. great. User a third of all the done-tir tentage of the country belongs to the great lakes, and the steel vessels mov tailt at the Chicago chiayards are the bestviest that foat upon fresh water. At the port of Chicago in 1884 the entrances and clearances, 16,765, were more than these of any other port to the country, and more than half the number of lightmore, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, and San Franciscs combined. The burnings of 1804, 10,322 001, was lowvier than that of Marselles or Antwerp or Liverpool, and to this is to be ushful the heavior rail tentage of any city in the surid. The above figures, it should be noticed, are those of the custom loops, whose impartial rules are the same for every port in the Inid.

In 1879 Chicago built filteen wooden vessels. of an appregate of LEDs tone. In the first regist mentile of 1900 there have been built in her ship-yards four wooden vessels (three of them purchas, of afacts the torus, and four steel ships of eleven thousand tone.

Pinancially, Chicago is a city of exceptional etrength. It is the clearing bosse for the wisdo West and Southwest Comparing 2071 with Derig her banks show as fedience :

The increase of hank christances in the tweety-four years in Chicago has been five lumited. and forty per cent. They appeared bunking it founded upon practices and integrity, and in the past twenty-five years the failure have been few and summertant, comparing must Invariably with other financial centres.

The reflection of customs at Chinago in poli-i were last a triffing amount; in 1981-4 they had riven to very tear six millions. A comparison of Chicago's importing business for the past five years with the three leading Atbanks peers, as shown by collections, will prove suighty interesting reading. The stories of the street endway companies for 1970 automated to about $1,000,000 and the surnings were insignificant. PROPERTY NATIONAL AND PERSONNEL

I have been at pules to give the above eta tiones, to show from official sources some of the particulars to which the "learning" of Chicago is post in vam. And expectably us to population. Clarage has present the period of her asplinggreatly and is as sturily and sound a tree as stands in the American forced ; a very sensorie giornales of trace. Its devadal rings are purial with the following figures :

Debit	65.10	7000	1591,000

The remarkable subdivity of Corregors attracted phere and remainious of life is perhaps not the most enimportant reason of the radial brainth. Issued of better as could be supposed from fer situation, the most unbouitty of cities, Chirago, above the lowest death-rate of all large cities of the world, the list standing as follows: Chicago, 15:24 per 1,000; Philadelphia, 18:28; Brooklyn, 20:14; New York, 22:08; Boston, 29.10 ; Landon, 17.4 ; Paris, 20.2 ; Bertin, 19.3.

THE SCHOOL-HOUSE AND THE CHURCH.

In its educational institutions the city shows itself really great. Chicago has two buildred and eighty one fine who of buildings, beades two implied and eventy rented risins, and has eighteen buildings unit additions under construction. In curoliment (212,000 the city already nearly equals New York, and in average daily attendance exceeds the older city by ten. the search. They art institute, Armour Institute, and other art and technical schools are crowded; her public literary owns to occupy one of the finest library buildings in the country), with its 380,000 volumes collected in the brief period due the great fire, leasts a larger circulation than any other is the world, and is justly proud of its first mostal at the last Paris expanition. The attendance of its Art Institute and Colombian Museum compares favorably with that at South Kennington and the Metropolitan Museum and the attendance of school pupils is mitirality large. His Newbery and Clearer libraries, Armour Institute and massion, Chirage University and Yerkin Observatory, Pield chumbian Museum, and Matthew Lettin Memortal (Academy of Sciences), the Lewis Institute and others, testify to the princely smanthcommend has ritherns, who vie with Massume of Rome and the Medici of Phyrence in their generone support of arm and letters. The newspapers of Chirago are published in a dozen tongues and the leading journals rank in retroutation, enterprise, and ability among the first in the hand. And the churches! They are numerous, indeed, but not the most elegant and couldy. To their credit he it said, they are not exclusive, and are most idered and practical in their work among the people; while each movements so the Hall House, the University Settlement, the People's Institute, the People's Church, and the Woman's Club are doing a grand work in splifting and inhightening the pace and the unfortunate, saving the young and innecess and Assertmenting the ignorant foreign classes. Of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Young Woman's Christian Association it may to said briefly that they have the floor buildings and the strongest itembership in the United strates. The sydencial tremple of the Westnern's Christian Tomperance Union speaks for the temperator work in the great cits, where upward of the spinor mile of populars territory are and have been structly prohibition.

Sail-maker Ratsey on Sails and Sailing.

THURAN W. HATREY, of Cowes, England, is, perimps head so well so elevablers above any other sail-maker in the world. His art is not an acquired one either, but rather one inherited From government of Hatseys, all of whom made the making of sails their chief livelihood.

Just before uniling for home on the Abspector, Wednesday, September 18th, Mr. Hutsey consersed with me at length, and while he refracted naturally from expressing any opinion other then complimentary of Lord Dunraven's section, he spoke his mind on other matters farmere agreeable and interesting.

First, the great English mil maker acknowlshed the frefender's superiority, and in the event of her sailing to English waters next year, opined that a new lead would have to be lands in order to keep the Defender from paite filing her lookers to the full with the Breaten's Reaf Cup, which the National fulled towns, and counties other valuable trophies which are open for competition to all representatives of re-seniord youth clubs the world over.

While Mr Herresdoff lad gone about ar residing to Mr. Hatery, this year-that is, hast down an advancement in the science of yacut architecture, the designer of the Linkyele III. (Mr. Rates settiently did not specify Mr. Watwas had shown a cetrograde movement, to wit, in the extreme beam which was a marked characteristic of the Unlique III.

This, indeed, was an admission from an Engindown and showed that Mr. flatmy, ortside of his sibility as a sail-maker, processed the qualities of fair-mindelines and freedom from prejude - quite a refreshing trast in these days of custroversy, when, for instance, a taxii like Cranfield, of the Unit pric. can see nothing fair nor square in anything American,

The group of Nat Herreshoff was thus duly extelled thench Mr. Ratsey frankly condenced the sails who to the British firm had turned out. -it is just to through I had tained my hale to designing a cop-challenger," said be. " Why, 1

PROGRESS OF LIFE INSURANCE.

A New York Company with Texas Henricon Millions of Ingland of Indepenty

THE present, above all other ages in the history of the world, is distinguished by the artisevement of great results. And those are not confined to any particular hearch of science. savigation, engineering, or general activity. In no branch of onderprise has there been greator progress made than in life insurancy. It is practically the offspring of the non-twents was my, only a thing as life moreove buting level almost andmovia one founded years ago. Note it has become an absolute percents. To each an extent is the the case, that the amount yand by Mr. meanness companies to exhibit and wyfinia now extends one handred million fest lers such year. There is probably and a tomic be tillings, however much, in the A nited Hintes. to which there does not made one or have families which have received most practical evidence of the good which life insurance is at emplishing in the remaininty in the way of providing for the widow and orphan, furnish ing fixed and children for the children, and defraying the expenses of their education. It is a fact which no me who has taken the trouble to examine the question will dispute, that the surery expended in paying life-insurance premines would be spent to some value way if the normal hard more percentalist for him faculty by take ing out a policy on his life, and this being the one, it follows that the one tropdred millions of dillars per annous now being paid to bishow and orphism is practically "found" money so for as they are married.

There is probably as imaging in existence in any plan which has made such wonderful progress as the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Aswritten has done. It has become one of the largest and best-known companies on either eith of the Atlantic. He police dedders man be found to almost every hown of way imperiance or the Cuited States, Canada, Great Stream, Francis and other Kurryens countries. Decline of Pugilism.

It is the opinion of all cureful charvers that purplies as on its fast lags. This may or may not prove to be the fact, but it certainly looks, from the which provide appoints at its notably that in connection with the Corbett-Fitmingsons contemplated fight—as if the decline were a serious one.

Once upon a time an American fighter was willing as go into the ring against an Englishman just for givery—new memory, and loss of it, is the only consideration to induce two men to lattle within a roped inclusive. For this very reason, to say acthing of moral considerations, pugition has degenerated for the most part into a war of words, and in consequence has lost what held it come had on the patrongs of a certain class of sport-leving people.

But while sailly degenerated, the game is not altogether one of words for those who pose as champions. This fact has been demonstrated pretty theroughly lately by the recent training, shout New York, of the best and Firedinamous, in anticipation of lighting for exty odd thousand dollars and bets on the contain and ments.

Now, while the admiration perhaps of only one man in every one immired would be excited by exing these gladiators parameting each other for namey, the settire one bundled would undoubtedly be interested in seeing other of the man go through his hally training work. This is so because there is no because undoubter as ingrain reliab for exhibitions of strength, voluntaries, and the skill of the trained athlete.

The pictures of Corbett shown on this page give a very fair idea of the server "course of species" which he, his trainer, and advisors think resented to a true fighting condition. In the one, he is seen to be resulting, and any one who has wrested known now the emburance is taxed. Ver Corbett, after pulling and busing about one virtim, takes on another and yet another, and in the real course out treater than the first man, who has a rest of some

It is no with the statement that the habit of internarrings arong their citizens is not, as some people rentend, a host of nation between countries. "If it were so," it remarks North and South, England and Ireland, would be lot it here for one another." It emphasizes this view with the distinction that the "wildest sendled of opinion has seen blimbel Englishmen to the cherms of Irita girls; while have I cleaning over coused to work brides in Englind." A a matter of fact, the Spectator holds that engagements met as the one above recorded would naturally become own of hid continual jeakousy rather than affection, and it note some signs that they are as becoming. Thus the labor newspapers on the other slile "begin to make savage reqments on the American girls who earry off the good price in the English lottery of marriage, while the America men are asking in natoniahment, not wholly untinged war sager, why all their beinoses should prefer stiff-backs ealture from Europe to themselves." To the Specielo. largerer, the process seems to be a very natural one or in an way theorying the hard words with which tidiage of such a betrailed are isomatantly received. It says in the resupposition:

White all this is true, the Spectotor is facilitied to mare: why the American girl so after prefers the English or Garman or Ballan makin to one of her own kinefula. The American suitor, it is kind smough to say, "Is often as pellefted as the European: be is usually much better radi sated-cultivation but h lag by any means the strong pain of the European artifocrat; be in richer, rather than poor? and while he tear has a conger a lover, he I, by the conseal of two costinents, a rather more dereted hudoid Why, then, it he proved ever for any who excess from the out his ?" ONE OF MISS DODOE'S WHEELY CONVERSATIONS.

prove the paradox that the best charity is no charity. Begluniar with the lattical calmismary enthusiasm to attempt the reform of criminals, she has proceeded step by step to the position that the proper education of teachers in a paid college to the publist philasthropy.

Twenty years ago Mile Dodge, then in her toess, was a sock ty girl of bright prospects. She had the good fortune to be the granddaughter of William E. Dadge, Br., one of the most becored of New York merchant princes. Ils was president of the Chamber of Commerce, a trulie of Eulen. I herdogleal Seminary, and one of the founders of the Union Lengue Club. As the oldest child of an nobert child, Miss Dodge was a favorite with her grandparents, and resided with them.

At that time she taught a class to the Sunday-wheel connected with the fubioushic Madisan Square Church of which Dr. Parkhunt is now the paster.

When the greatest of moslern Beanerges, D. L. Mossly. commenced his memorable revival survices in New York, the chier Design was glad to receive him as a guest ander his own root. Thus Miss Dodge became acquainted with a man whose passion for the uplifting of humanity it cominglous. Those who are wont to discount the efforts of emotional religious exhorters, on the ground that their in-Buence is fleeting and followed by reaction in the direction of irreligion, chould consider the case of Graen Dialgo. Her zent has increased steadily with the flight of years.

It is curious that a sweet Christian girl abould have chosen Magdalens for her first missionary labors. Yet such was the fact to Miss Dodge's case. If society girls gen a ally should coddenly purses such a course, what, I wender, would be the effect upon numbers of suckey men? Would there be any fear of possible revelations that might be made by the postents ?

Mrs. Charlotte L. Williams, the widew of a clergy man.

was motron of the Woman's Infirmsry in New York ct that time. Mine Dedge sought her out, and so made the acquaintance of one of the gentlest saints uneanontent. The infermacy was a chaeltable institution for young women daring confinement, and the object of it use reformatory. For this fesson it was open only to first offenders

The young missionary cultivated the acquaintance of these unfortunates, who were often without other friends. She was surprised to learn how many of them had been inlated through sheer Ignorance. Many more might have been saved if they had had one Christian friend to Influence them in the hour of their tempiration.

Miss Dodge is eminently practical. Why not put up a bulwark at the top of the precipies, she saked, instead of binding up the mainest and injured at the fact of it? Why not be the one Christian friend of the lanceent workinggirl, and by counsel and loving companionship prevent dis-

Most of the inmates of the infirmary came from among the employes of certain factories which employ large numhers of girls. Miss Dodge visited these factories and organized classes which met for conversation with her once a week in a room hired for the purpose. Of course only the best girls would be attracted, but by organizing the better element and by gesting hold of young girls as they come into the slope, so influence for good was set in motion. These classes were free from any creed beyond that of self-serriflow for Christ's sake. Gir's of the Catholic faith were just as much at home with Miss Dodge ne any others. She has also issued to no operate with rharitable Hebrew women in benevalent unterprises with perfect conound.

The incuble with weekly conversations was that it left the girls six eventogs for Scuptation to one for Improvement. Morrover, place con versations, even when conducted by one of Miss Dodge's vivacity and amiability, are not as attractive to the average sloop girl as the play of the ball. The problem was to get up something the girls would be envious to John. And so Miss Dodge originated workinggirls' eluba.

It is useless to debute whether all the working-girls' clubs

Tun experience of Grace Headley Dedge may be said to in the world grew out of Miss Dedge selab. No doubt the time had come for them, and more than one worker may have fovested them. At any rate, Cored on danger of infringing on a potent if anybody dusters to indtake them. They are to be found to targo either all over the United States England, Proper, and Italy, and so far as known, all were formed subsequently to Pebrussy, 1984, the date on which Min Dodge organized the Thirty-eighth Street Working girls' Club.

The attraction at the Thirty-righth fitrest club is dancing (without gentlemen). There is also a library and read-Ing-room, which is not nearly so popular. For those who nes willing to pay outra there are chance in newing our heddery, cooking, and singing. Some years they take leasures by duraft-field or other nildetic exercise. The club is self supporting, and Gere is no tolot of charity about it. The members pay dues by the month. There is a sick brack meity and a racation society consected with it for the auditance of were out girls.

Near by, in Thirty sixth Street, there is an employment to be heeded, and he knows how to bring to bear all the resources of the organization upon an institution that is mismanyg.d.

But the best work of the State Charities Aid Association was the collection of intermation bearing upon the causes of poverty and contributing to the formation of a new science, now taught in a number of leading colleges - the science of philanthropology. To the influence of the State Aid Association are the such diverse and valuable auxillaries to charity as the New York Charity Organization Society and the Training School for Nurses.

Miss Dodge resolved to improve the houses of the poor, A new matron was found for the Woman's Infirmary, and Mrs. Williams was induced to manage a kitchen-garden, or a school for instructive in kitchen work. The school was bented on Eleventh Street, and it had an office on Pourteenth Street through which employment was found for graduates as domestic servants. For the poor had no greatdesire to improve their own homes, and the only inventive to learn cookery for them was the promise of situations,

The teaching of kitchen work is still continued by more than one mission enterprise in New York, but Misa Dadge's kitchen-garden has grown into securthing as unlike it as the butterfly is unlike the larva from which it spring.

What with kitchen gardens and kindergartens, and the study of manuals on training and so manual training. Miss. Dodge had developed into an authority on pelagagies. Accordingly, when in 1886 there was a densud for the appointment of women on the Board of Education, William R. Grace, who was then mayor of New York, naturally selected Miss Dodge as one of the first Iwa women ever made reneminationers of education in this city.

Miss Dadge not only attended committee meetings and teard meetings, but she claited all the schools in the city, became well sequainted with the Unchers, and berned the needs of each school. Her great desire was to establish co-operation between teachers and the parents of pupils, which is still a cardinal point In her system. One evening of every week was trackers' evening while she continued a member of the board, and that evenlay any teacher was welcome to cook Miss Dodge's advice as her lause,

Miss Dudge was studying two things-the homeo of the people and the schools of the people. She became convinced that much of the instruction of the schools was wasted. She also believed that the things the poor most needed to learn were not taught in the schools. When every begger can read and write, the question arises whether no shem at boursel eved leader to elider cale for troping and hences and useful living. Miss Dadge wanted to see boys trained to good workmanship and girls to good beauthorping, right from the beginning of life. She wanted to see instruction of the hand and eye as well en of the mind.

forces started by Miss Dodge to find work for girls who are out of work. Nearly one half of all the applicants to this burned have been placed in permanent citratives. Girls who have married are not last to the Thirty-of lith Street club. Miss Design has a circle of mothers and bales once a work. There are pibeacen olubs to the New York association, with a membership of about investy-five lumdrest

Miss Design's interest in her girls has continued un alated, notwithstanding she has gone on a great way to philanthropic enterprise. She still meets them for a conversation every Tursday evening. Mrs. Richard Irvin has relieved her of much of the detail work of the club.

Miss Dodge's study of the character of shop-girls conrinced her that in order to be efficient the good influences. should be thrown around them before they came to the shop. She resolved to train the children, and this led her to study the homes of the poor.

Miss Dodge was now getting at the heart of the problem of poverty. She became acquainted with Louise E. Schuyler, who had organized the State Charities Aid Association. That society consists of philanthropic persons all over the State who are accustomed to visit public institutions, to converse with the inmates. One such infividual standing alone has little influence over the management of an explum or similarise, but as the representative of an incorporated society with privileges accorded by law, his advice is apt servetive. The Normal College did not tesin teachers to teach by the new methods, nor could it afford to spend public money in experiments. It was a cituation to discourage the ordinary reference, who could have were out his life La vuin jareminds.

But Miss Dodge to not an ardinar, reformer. She has the advantage of laving had a million.les grandfather. She resulted to have a normal endegs of her own. The kitchen garden made a melamorphosia. Mrs. Williams stopped graduating servants and began the lastruction of teachers. As old theological seminary building on University Place was reuted and the trachers' college was a fact. It was chartered to 1300, and a year ago it respond to a beautiful new home on Moraingeide Heights, in Harlon, where it forms one of the Calumbia College system of educational lastitutions. It was Miss Dadg: who induced George W. Vanderbilt to give the site for the college, and It was her own personal friends who erected and equipped six handred and dixty thousand dollars' worth of buildings. on it; making, probably, the most perfect pedagogle laboratary in this country. Dr. W. L. Hervey is its president,

In stature Miss Dadge is queenly, and she mives to an air of abounding and healthful helpfulness. Although her features are not regular, her face lights up with animation when she talks, making her most attractive. Especially when speaking on religious themes her face fairly beams, Tax Capid that presided over the loves of Mericido de Louvet and Henri, Count de Fournier, and of Jaffray Efficiett no l Maria Bruyat our the Armscho of Le Sare rather than the winced in ant of Ovid.

In deference to the worship of clusted and mythological decise, under the chiefs of the French Revolution the cold of Love assumed as many shapes as the ancients cave him.

Enterior into the spirit of the mad fancies of the time, one might imagine Paris as having pworn allegiance to the world Non and Ereline not to the legenious offspring of Justice and Venues. He was morely a multiment spirit that held sway when Gardes Françaises and Confre. Melionofes, dumen devantles, and triumphant mesculates reged and drimmed, and spiked the gross of abeliabed regulty.

And yet he was not all manner, not all Asmonitor, not all devilish, this domain of mythical power. Once in a way be put on the wings of parity and breathed the breath of love into the nose foreign lives that were beeting against the bars of La Force, the Abbaye, and the Concherceria. Now and then, his white phones claimed with the black of p or, persecuted has manity, he needed beaten's own angels to rob amending of its berries.

There were glints of smalight between the shadows, intervals of recentry that were quared the worst crimes of the Bevelution, stear vallager that recepted the receive of war. And erm in Fark there were hundle parasts and out-of-the-way abode where a pertain close instartion of quirt and repose and happiness teld abuset uninterrupted sway. Jaffray Illicett's tablets gave the home of Ma lame Laniche, to the Itan Barnold, as his most fullitual retreat during the hours when his services were not required to the office of his patron and conployer. Madaine was a patient deed of he we know-as infortrops, submariantive Frenchwomen, who epent but time between the marhet and for Alleian, and who caref and who secupied the palace of the Tolleries, so long as ate fast mesor cough to keep her note of recent point, and Larurhi was in a renormality good temper.

Jaffray had taken the boat of Marie Bruyset, madane's step-faughter to make friends with Language "gross water," - for Lancto inclimit been heard of minor he took his loave of Marin No word, no et a of him, either in the Roe Bureach! or at his official reminerous in the autorises or office of the Deputy Gr-bauets.

THE SCIENCE OF COOKERY.

A Max of most liberal cultivation was recent ly heard to say that he wished that he was not fast sticus as to his outing, because then he could niways satisfy his appetite for food and never be made unhappy for the vile residing which all of its come across new and again, and which we most put up with or starce. Unfortunately the twee for good enting is almosted and developed along with other forms of enlightesment and a men who can be content movely with the victuals which will preserve life cannot peasibly by claim to a well-remaied and completset cultivation. This is no suggestion that every man of cultivation must be what we applestand as an epicure, a goarmet, a bon viewet : indeed, in an appreciation of well and artistscally-cooked food there is nothing in the least incompatible with the destrine of plain living and high thinking of the semi-ascette tranevenirofalists who have given a tone and a value to New Engineet literature. This, however, must not by any menus be countraid as indersing the ordinary New England cultime, which is not always, by any means, of the heat. However this may be, there to one thing sure, that no matter how fast dismon man may be as to his food, there is no mason in the world why in New York he should spend any time in repining over his own good taste, for in New York, if a man but knows whither to turn his steps; he can breakfast, dine and sup every day in the year as semptoously or as plainly so his taste or appetite inclines him, and at each meal have set before bins dishes, the artistic exectlence of which would be switnessed the far-fumed. mode of the hexurem, knowling,

MARGHERITA ARLDIA HAME.

Something about English Volunteers.

I was very much interested in England in the manouvres of what is known as the Cycling Corps of one of the crack buttalions of militia. Many of the volunteers, as they are called, have long had mounted companies attached to them, but the Cycling Corps, which was formed to act for scott duty, was, until two or there yours ago, a new feature of British citizen-soldier life. All of the manageress of the hieyele-riders were carried on in the presence of the Duke of Cambridge and Lord Wolseley, and the notable military critics of the British army expressed thermolyes as highly pleased with the results solitainal. The Cycling Corps was composed of about a hundred well-trained athletes picked from the different regiments. The men had already acquired profetency in breyes-riding, and they were mounted on low, light renning. rubber-tired machines that bud been specially constructed by the war department. There were racks behind the easts for carrying knapsacks, canteens, and the like ; a musli chest of tools was attached to each nuchine, with duplicute bearings, and every reasonable provision made for repairing breaks by accident. The men lost a bicycle mount and all the regulation drill of the envalry corps up to the sword easecise, but their main work was in carrying the patches, exploring small reads and by-ways, and covering great distances noiselessly at night. Bome of their operations were wonderfully mecessful, and the whole bicycle corps could move. thirty miles into a country, get hold of any measury facts, and and reports back by relays which they had left along the road, is an incredibly short space of time during the night. They were absolutely posseless, and their movements were swift and certain.

Numerically, England has a militia force which is far about of that of America, though it is to be remembered that the United States has a voluntoer reserve of alife-bodied men who could be called out to case of an emergency. This course consists of seven or eight millions, and it has been shown that it can fight. Rather. There are, however, many points about the British voluntary militia which it seems to use might be incorporated in our own service. They have, for instance, what is called a land artillery which has reached the mormous number of forty-ax thousand men, and which is as thoroughly trained in rills exercises, marching, drilling, and the handling of big guns as the regulars of our own army. The artillery regiments are composed to a large extent of men in the latering clasers, officered by "goutlessen of leisure," who go into the militia from motives of patriotism. Once a week, in the summer months, the artillary go to the nearest forts for target-practice. Every year tag detachments from each battailon go to Shoeburyness and shoot for prices with nighteen or twenty-four-pounder gum at ranges varying from one to three thousand yards. The artiflery full-dress uniform is a vary has-beene binck with red facings, silver ornaments, and white cross beits. The men are armed with a short carbine and a sword layount. * . *

A great many people have heard of the Yesthany of Great Britain without knowing exactly wint the word means. They number fearteen thousand, and would be very useful in time of war as tregular cavaley. The Yesmany own their evan horses, and very nearly all are good consecunitry riders. They form the aristocracy of the volunteer service. The colonel is generally a man of rank; the Duke of Westeninster, for example, is colonel of the Royal thester becommy. For fourteen days every year the men train after the methods of the regular cavalry. They were small tunics, high boots, belinets, and swords.

On Master Morelay, every true, there is a sharp dight in which all of the different proactions of the action participate, and the disk is which there are a press many thousand man, sharps found there is would need a characteristic for which there are a few at the action with practical in the action when the reference are expressly for beam and the case of a radio of matters is the extension of a radio of matters in the extension of a radio of matters. But it was expert intention into its quarters fixed at ourse greeness.

town, and could be quartered there within twenty-four bours after receipt of orders.

The enthusiasm with which young English volunteers devote themselves to the military part of their duty is one of the most interesting features of modern English life. Therty years age the British voluntiers consisted of two or three small companies of riflences, each mdividual member of which had to provide his own neithern, arms, and accentrements. Now it is a force of over two himired and fifty seven theorem men, well armed, thoroughly disciplined, and embedying all the branches of the service-infantry, substacion, engineers, cavalry or youmgery, and the land and coyal moval artiflery volunteers. The Euglish government spends about five milition dollars a year in support of the volunteer service. This is much in excess of the cost of the militia force of this country. The friendly shooting routests which take place between the American militia and the English relunteers at Creedmoor, Dallyment, and Wimbleson have shown the English markenes to be possessed of a good deal of skill. There is quite a uniform degree of skill throughout the whole body of amatour soldiers. The "Elche Shield," which is shot for each year between teams of eight from England, Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, thorn a very high order of ability among the men. The distances are 900, 900, and T,000 yards, fifteen shots at earts range, and it is very rare that my man of the thirty-two fails to hit the buil's eye more than four times at such range, and there are invariably full strings of bull seven made by men in all of the home at the different range.

... Of the different branches of the English voluniters, the infantry, of course, comes first numerically. They number about two lumdref through men of all ranks, and they see dressed in a great variety of uniforms, though the principal style is that of the regulars, via., below, tunic, and trossers. Many wear clothes of the Zenave fashion, with period cup, short, bose jacket, baggy knickerbackers, and leather luggings. Occasionally the historic scarfet of old linghand is still seen, but the soon want tints of gray, haff, black, and laveible green are favored by the battalious which follow the advice of military experts. The men are armed with the Martini-Roury rifle. An enthusiante viduoteer has many opportunities of testing the sweets and bitters of a soldier's life. Every batialise gove into excep for one or two weeks in the assumer, where exactly the mean roles are observed as in the regular service. Nine privates elsey in our tent, their sleeping-gent remaining of waterproof ground sheet, a light straw matters, a pillow, and two army rage. All their meals are taken in tents, sentries are always posted day and night, and drill is the certain of the day.

The social standing of the men in the differont faitalious is a vexed question in Great Britain. Class problems are always arising there, and nowhere are they more swere than is the volunteer service. Seems of the festialisms are compand entirely of laboring men, officeral by well-to-do pen who can afford to give a goal deal of time and mency to the russe. In those battalions it is quite tenematile for a man. to rise from the ranks, the close prejudice being too strong; hence, there is always a lot of distemtent to the runks. In other battalions all officers most rise from the make, and it would be impossible for any man, so matter what his position might be, to go late a regiseral and take a commutation. In the event of there being two men of upual standing, such wishing to take a vacant reaction, the captain formerly selected one, but gowadayy the winds receptany have a ballot and elect the men ther varifer. In battalious of the higher class, which are usually composed of men of fair position, up entrancefee and subscription have to be ruid, and reequits are elected as to any club. The feeling of patriotims among the British volcadors runs high, and the government distinctly on BLAKELY HALL. murages it.

AMATEUR ATHLETICS

AnInteresting Feature of the Foot-ball Season.

Persons the most interesting, as well as the most important training of the food-half season at the time in the common formal and the food-half season at the time to the common the piece by business the play mean of all and arrives ing one proofly next to be formal as for the passes, and post of the food-half as double passes, the passes used to be all the payment again, and were affective plays, while all the man time their expectations process. The operation, while could follow without effort the course of the hall from one player to another.

When mass plays role the play, however, the spectator gets a peop at the ball only at infrequest intervals, or when, on a third down, a kirk lecenses necessary. For this reason the game is a complete parale to all save these who tare followed the sport year in and year out. Last year an effort was made to make the play more open, but any partial success resulted, and had all the different college teams finished the season in a resembly fashion and heat on continuing the good work, a reform convention would have follower, and by intelligent discuseson during the wanter settled upon a set of rules likely to open up the game to the estidaction of the most familion enthusiast of such a game. But Yale and Harvard had to fall out also Princeton and Jenneylvania; and as a result the two factions spring up to effectually kill any regulated reform movement.

It is apparent, however, from a study of the rules each will had adopted, that the Yake-Princeton ones alone aim at a result which the public decre—that is, a more open game. For this reason if we can as though they must finally prevail. They are not only the legical ones, but the am justice of beam are using them, which is an additional reason for believing that the Harward-Cornell Frameytramia code is destined to unjoy a torief emistance.

HARVARD AND YALE PARE TO AGREE

Harvard and Vale will not most on the gridimm title year, and parliage, after all, it were better so. A year of calm reflection on both sides can do no increa, and much post may peathly result. In the part Harvard has been, ever, a hard loser, and until she learns to take defeat in the uncomplaining and emiling manner so marked in the behavior of the Combridge truck and field athletes after a crushing defeat at the hands of Yale, there can be no desirable contests with Yale. The present strained, relations between the two are due safely to the designeeside and public manner in which Harvard graduates and the players themselves have acted when the tattle has gone against thrus.

THE GOLDSO CHARPOSIUM.

The recent guid tournatured for the areateur and professional champonichies of the country, which was bold upon the brantiful grounds of the Kroppert Chit, Newport, Rhode Island, was a povel on well as an interpreting event.

No one present at the different matches could have dealeted for one numerate the fact that golf as a popular game has come to stay. It is a game which, like crucket, appeals to the young and the old alike. It is only necessary to try it must be become infattanted with the sport.

On October 54, bands, of the West-haster Club, met McDonald of Chiruge in the finals for the amateur championship, and the former was defeated by the more of twelve up and eleven to play. McDonald's form was superisticronghest. The course was thirty six hids four times played over the links, a half course being played in the morning and half in the afternoon.

McDonald by his win secured personnent premotion of a valuable gold medial, as well as the ensistly for one year of the one-thomosof-dollar aliver wase offered by T. A. White in play and male is two moves

By a corious coincidence the above problem is received from a correspondent who asks whether "a position is correct, and at the same time we find it in a German paper, asking regarding its authorship. It was one of a set of problems which carried off the first prize in the American Contemnal Tournament of 1876, and created at the time no little discussion regarding features of problem construction.

THE SCIENCE OF PLACE-KICKING IN FOOT-BALL.

Kicking in fast-hall may be divided into three branches or departments—that of posiing, drop-kicking, and place-kicking. Of the three the third is by fac the seeded to deside cornt in a way too first To one who has no two, posting offers more opportunities for a display of science than drop, kicking, and w harder to master. The novice, on the other hand, would class drop-kirking as far the more difficult of the two.

Hot, may so place kirking is, the fact remains that there are more players who can pont betfor than they can kick goods than the returns, by a large majority. In every game which is played, and during which translatores are made, a player will give a wery exhibition or two of place-kicking for goal. This should not he so. On the contrary, when a feath worse by basebdown there should be several players equally employed kirking a goal within Personalite brought And as with place. kicking so if is wire.

the drep and pour. Players right and left, upon whom shoulders the kirking responsibilities rest, do not begin to perform so they should. Less year I wrote automitvely on the value of aleking in feet-ball, and from beginning to end of the season tred; a leading stand, pointing out the possibilities of thus kick and that, and livetrating from games which had just taken place why this and that kick should have been tried at certain times.

By reason of this advancy of testing I received many fetters, and the hursies of many of them was for an illustrated chary dealing aciontifically with the place-kiek, the drop-kiek, and the pant. As such a story could not possibly be covered properly for the went of necessary space, I have decided in vesser; this time only of the place-kick.

Unfortunately, for the want of a subject, I nomi, the closer arms, officially at the camera real, and how well he has succeeded the pictures will tell for themselves. The rains define a place kick as one "made by kirking the buil after it has been placed on the ground." In Figure 1 the hall will be noticed in an upright position upon the ground. Were a game in progress the only difference would that a player of the kicker's side would be hobling the ball in his hands with the lower and of the hall just of the ground. The hall is then "placed" upon the ground when the kirkor inticates his readiness to kick.

The lifes of heiding the ball of the ground notice "not in pay." The set of placing it on the ground pule it in plan, and the oppomore lined up on their goal line have the right to charge with the purpose of blocking the kick.

For this reason the sictor, once behav said " all right."- which is the signal to take a way the instrument beaut which apports the ball-most set inunlistely. Thus, while the hall is hold in midwir he must night it stell otherwise order it fixed to monre a

Now, in will be nesteed in Figure 1. the ball stands marly upright; to be neart, the top inclines slightly toward the goal, or away from the kicker, at a given angle. This angle is deter-mined by the distance from the goal. Briefly, the marer the goal --my twenty yards—the tall is upright if not really inclined a lift present the kicker. The farther away you go the ball is inclined. away from the kieser to a certain pointhis force parts, I should say at an angle of forty-first degrees. However, who hast your made fifty and staty-pard kirks repeatedir from the coutre of the Bold, did so with SHARING MAIN!

Standing non in the kirker's postion. which he assesses to algebring the half, other points to more in the precious of the hall are three: The larting of the half is toward you, and afferds a convenient mark for the eye, for directly below the end of the lacng nearest the ground and upon the middie seam is the sped which ment be etruck by the toe in order to poors a goal. To be exact this spot is on the making assess. Andf-truly believes the Jones and of the hiring and the end of the ball noting on the

With the alone as a prefere the on plicts operation of kirking a goal is as forires: Suppose a touchdown has been made directly back of the goal. Then order the player who is to bold the hall for you to walk out twenty-five yards. Perchance there is not a nice level spot at this distance, in which case go a let farther until the spot to sun the fancy is found.

E S and C D are taugenit. Hoes to the tall at her perior line of H. which is harizontal and purallel to the range bar I I . The line A B, which bisects the angle E J and C D make at L is perpendicular to a t ut its middle pettet.

X designates the racet an the middle sexus of the ball which must be struck by the faid, and it follows that a fores traveling slong in the direc tion K. as indirated. and meeting X equarity, must be resulty wand the ball using the line A R. If perchases the import the liad natione areas from the lim A B is will by off to me alde on the lock. No, too, if the buring from not consenie with A.H. the wright of the buil will be unrevuly striked by A B, and faiture librily result.

In the erest of a touchdown off to one side of the goal the same principles govern. The space between the posts from this new justilist may held no more than two feel in wifth, in which case you samply sight the ball on a line which would bised those two feet and coincident the sense there with the middle soun of the ball.

Once inving sighted the hall, the eye welv the spet X and become fixed. Then the comound "All right" is given, which lettle signal, my, for the player helding the half to place it upon the ground confg and so shouldy that it connect change its position, keeping, the while, the upper hand on the hall to unintain its spright position. Until the first actually strikes X, the eye must never shift, must never stray. The eye, glued to that all deportant spot X, directs the free directs it to the very box. If the eye strays, the foot lesse its guide and is apt to impart a glencing blow to the ball, which in consequence shower off to one side.

> In Figure 5 the foot is descending, and se can be further observed, is close under the leely and presumably swinging to the tion & B. (See diagram.) Forthtemore it. will be nitred that in Figure 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 the eye is evidently on the ball cthat spet X)—newtorn else.

jorky nor snappy. Had the owing best a perous, jerky one the log would have, after postag under the body, became bent, and traveled little beyond the body

To sum up the pince-kick I would by some these laws : First, take pleading! fine to make all the assessmy preparations of whether kicking apot and sighting the full ; wend, is struct the holder of the ball to held the urder hand toward the opposing wife with the broad side showing. By so doing the end of the ball is removated and eas be productly held upon the ground from the stert, this climizating the element of uncertainty incident to placing it upon the ground. Even the nervjet of holders may, in settling the tall as inch or so to the ground, change its poster will rimitly to reces a failure. Third, plur the ere to the spot which you know must be struck to insure success; fourth, take the two steps to tore kicking, deliberately, never hurredly fifth, don't kick with all your sciple, yet kee as though you meant wmething ; right, there of absolutely nothing but striking that "spet."

If a wind is blowing across the field of suffrient strength to influence the true dight of the buil, allowance must be made, lest only when the kick is off so to our side that the smallest deciation will carry the ball wide. Experience alme must teach the kicker just how much to allow made such conditions.

Specking from experience, I would my that rarely, if ever, dose the wind blow so bard that the ball has to be sighted an appreciable distance from either good past say, a yard. As a rule, by kicking for the wenther goal-post line at bewaren is made for any ordinary wind.

The Union against Tammany.

White the noise, in this city, of all the elements of opposition to Tunimay is dirtated, on the port of some of the organizations concerned in it, by other notices than solicitude for municipal reform, there is no should that it is in the main by the interest of goal government. Tonorony represents everything that is prenintons harms politics and rists life, and tions one he so granion or Durwagh reform natif its hillarnee in fully eliminated from every department of the public administration. The election of the union ticket will be another important step formed the achievement of that result. It may not represent the highest aspirations and befriest importers of the best citizenship, but It represents approximately the only positive and aggreative sentiment which demands the purification of the metropolis, and that sentiment will anguestionally ilumipate; more or less determinatively, the officials whom it will carry but power. It is annothers the transf and onin a cruside for priorin to reveat the attacouble, even though that may full far about of the uttermed expectation and purpose of those who wage the buttle.

There become respect, making all due allowance for evenclass, in which this union of elements which are confinedly nutagonistic, is highly suggestive and fall of encouragement. Horometere, mercements for sixty referre have usually exhausted themselves with a single effort. It suereachd, the majority of those reserved in them have fallen buck Interfunctivity, believing that everything evential last been accomplished. (If, or the affect best they have been overfaken with defeat, desponsively and despots have withed apon these who party spared in them, and the boult his generally been that all the eigh whomse eriscom was dealered became more some not active than belief. Now, apparently, there is a spirit of persistence and determination on the part of the great lealy of the commont; in the work of reform which has survived the exchanges and american of the last compation, and which can be depended upon to emilion the warface notil the ruess; has been ditter from his hist intrenshment. In other nonds, the better show of efficient have room to make about their a single shifter against so niert and illustrous an electric as Tenning they not end the measing for fighting, and that the warfurement be persisted in resources and minutes, until he power is an effectually broken that even in the event of a partial reliapor into includence for the part of the before class of visitence, is will be powerless for any service. this hist. It is this nepert of the niches which seems to us briefford possible grounds for consuragement to these who are honestly solicitous for the complete redomption of the city from the control of the victors elements which have so long deminated it.

The Powers and Armenia.

T begins to fook as if the Percers of Lurope, under the lead of English, have at bot determined to enforce their demands for reform in Armenia and the abundanment by Futkey of the erned and apparently policy heretafore pursued broard the Armenians in Constantinophe and other parts of her dominions. Undoubtedly this determination has been bestered by the demonstratings reveally perpetual depends and armenians to Constantinophe and Techniques. In the former may warre of these untertunates, who had promitted an effect, were serent en historic and imprisoned, while many more were killed matrigle, by the police and military. Even when the threateness Armendans sought refuge in their church a tary were searcely safe from the malignant Mohammedan population, and it was only turber argest pressure from the ferriga annoused art find they were finally permitted to go to their homes monoconed. At Trebland Tarkish troops joined the populates in the work of pidage and stanguest all courses the rurable government persists in the kinding all responsibility for these courages, all-ging that the Armenian were the aggressors just as if has personal differently out that the appears of whereasts have a may in Armenian were the aggressors just as if has personal differently out that the appears of whereasts have a may in Armenian were more inventions, and that all the transless of revent years in that country have been provided by the Christian population. The Posters, however, are not develved by these misrepresentations, and they have instant so time cloudy upon the adoption of their scheme of reforms that Turkish obstinacy now scens likely to give way. The indications are, also, that Great British at least ments to see to it that promises made in the direction of reform are actually and logally carried out.

It is meatly to be regretted that in this demonstration ed sympathy with the oppressed Amerikas the Corted States has, apparently, had me part. There is no exhibite whatever that nor saledster to Turkey has an a single asmore searched in a positive and emphatic way the semiment and feeling of our people or to the Armerica aposetion. Up the condrary, while all the rivilized world is expressing its abhorous of Turkish boutably, he appears to have manifested from first to had a spirit of absolute issift femore. It is even and on apparently couldle authority, that he has permutted himself to be regarded as in sympathy with the braval Paris; and it is alleged, in support of this charge, that he has accepted towers and homes from the Suitan for kinself and secubere of his family, which here accepantly congrumed his official independence. Whether he has or his not have guitty of this offense against properioty, if is cortain that he has manifested a rebut core to push the longuist to to the attivities in Atuse. uiv, and movious metting at all, so for so appears, to supply his government with the frustmerthy information it his invited as a losis of Jatelligent action. American citlzero may well deplace the stappdity or the prevention of pulgrams, which has thus put us to the weary in his eyes of the nations and arought diagram upon us as a purple.

Democratic Pretenses.

The Democratic party is always and exercisive a period of the proteons. It was a feature to assettler a principle to which it has pledged itself if the party tourness some to demand so it a reason. A very exercisive dimension of this dependent is mining to affect of by the compriguence to progress in Kenna by I for that state the party of part at the Sente countration a pletform in layout of some layout at the Sente countration a pletform in layout of some layout and nominated a considered for Governor who has been an appointmently in originate unificated sitter colonies. At their there was a principle of orders from many of the party paper to the composition of the pletform by the gray-rangulated nominate. It is a demonstrated as distanced and disconsistent in the Fig. 1 (the protection of the postume to disconsist of the Democratic party of the Democratic party of the Democratic party of the Democratic party of the protection of the party of the Democratic party of the protection of the party of the Democratic party of the protection of the party of the party of the protection of the party of the part inconsistent attitude. But, with two exceptions, accoming to a statement in the New York World, all the Democratic papers in the State are now urging the voters to support the weak-stread randblate—to condone what was at first democrated as treaders—to order to save the State from the Republicans. And forement in this desperable betray at of principle and the sound maney cause are the journals which are regarded as peculiarly the organs of the Cleve-land abulinistration.

The reach is that the Domocratic party in Kentucky is not, and never has been, homestly in favor of the soundpanes paties of Mr. Cleveland. The declaration of the State expression and the subsequent classes of the party. press as to General Hardin's course note more hollow protendons. Really the party as such believes in the cheapmoney doctrine of the late Separat Beck and the school to which he belonged. Free trude and chosp money have been for yours the rullying cross of the purry in that State. We Carilele bimself more trained with Senator Blackburn, the Herekindeless and the rest amily this dimmetal flag ; and If he were not a member of the administration he would productly be found still in the same conquery. Most of the so-called sound-money landers are contributously. 'Baldy,' of purpose, and care appointedly sufficing whatever for emisistency. Thus is one district the "gold bug" president of a metional lank is running as a capcildate for the Legishouse in save the election of Blackburn, the Booler of the salver party, to the United States Scante !

It would perhaps be audide to assume that the President and his Rentucky Surresary of the Treasury have advised or are responsible for the smilder change of front on the part of the party newspapers as to this growest subject Het seriotely it is semewhat algorithms) that so far they have not onto not a cettable of protest against this subordsmittion of arthriph to considerations of particulation. They produce to be proboundly anxious that the Democratic party should be held two to sound-money traditions. Why is it is they are learned in this profession, that is a crisis of the party history that solicitude has entirely failed to find appreciate to Its Mr. Cheveland, arroy all, so major of a Democrat that he commit be a pairted? Does he, with all his pretendance of his sity to considerer, as a matter of fact place more party claims before and above every complete. asten of the public numbers

Accordant the many pariable exhibitions of party inches certit and polificence to portrate obligations, there has been to our recent political history most more interly discreption to the course of the abstraction and its followers to this Kentucky contrains.

Ma. C. A. PLATY, one of the few of our painters who know how to put the charm of a stretch of given country on convex; published a little book on Italian gardens, a year or so ago, that was more or less of a mar below to all simple gardeners, where intuitive lots of posics and other brustiful growing things was realized in greater part to patelies of their favorites and a few scattered and indiseriminate hedges. Very little blea of the systematic acrangement of plats and paths and borders, and the forming of courts and terraces, enters into the primitive schemes of most landscape gardeners in this country, and Mr. Platt. was probably the first to call attention to the extreme beauty of formal gardening; and what was of much more value, to sugge-1 the admirable adaptability of much of our country for the cuttiention. I am afraid his suggestion will hardly bear fruit, here ever, till architects and their patroos come to a full realization of the idea that the bonne and all its aurroundfage, gaptions, fornices, courts, and all their embellishments should be component parts, each emaple menting and supplementing the other. As Mr. Plott says, the problem which confranted the architects of the Bendsmore in Duly-all the gardens of Bonne, Planteer, Genna, Sietma, and other Southern cities are a survival from that period-way " to take a piece of land and make it habitable. The architest proceeded with the lifes that and only was the house to be lived in. but that me still a wheel to be at bond while out of doors; so the garden was designed as another spartment, the terrare and grosse still others, where one might walk about and find a plus suitable to the hour of the day and the foring of the perment and still be in that saired portion of the globe definated to one's wif." But Mr. Phat gives further than the more tells ing of bow to plant our houses to our gardons and our gardens to our houses, making them both behaviful, for way up in the hills of New Hampulder, on the Connecticut. O'd furniture made new; new farniture made old; middle-aged furniture preserved; Mark-minut/veni ture doctroped." That hist demanded positive bravery. The black walnut furniture labit-if it may be called so-dies hard, and even dealers in Chippendale and Sheraton have to combat it valiantly, sometimes at the expense of profitable patromege.

There has been much positive talk in the various papers concerning Madjesha's recent production of "Mistress Berry Singleton," Mr. Fitch's new play. One and all have, with the usual aptitude of critics, been swift to jump at the cone usion that the play was written to noter, there being a seeming analogy between Medjerka's forewell and the mimic forewell of Mistrew Bitty on the stage. I can say from personal knowledge that the plan was written before Modjoska ever heart of it, and windover other shortcomlugs it may have, it is not a piece of shop-work, but an artistic conception. PRANCIS MULATICAL THE TEN MAXITY - MESSAGE

The of the most remorkable persons who has ever offenot the circuity of the West is now drawing thousands daily to his humble hone in Denver. Pranck Schletter, the New Mexico " Montah," on he loss been cultist, is trolding leaves that are without a parallel, probably; in the life. tory of the country. He is credited with supernatural healing powers, and the faith of the people, or their Wind. cerdulity, is demonstrated dutly by throngs of visities reking to be heated. He has been the subject of automore by the leading clergymen of Deuter, women of whom call every day on this remarkable man for the purpose of divising his gift-if it can be so styled-only to go eway at once myselfod and impressed.

To all intents Sublatter is an Ignorest and incomptminded person, whose pretensions rest. Julier on the evidualty of his risker than on any devlarations of his own. Bla healing be swetters to the Pather. He speaks of this relation in an impersonal way that sloes not suply any remote smeriation with the Inviolty, but his air of com-Adence and the core potent evidence of policits who have consulted him for the laying on of hands carries with it the risks to un exteneralisary endowness. He will not be deem a into a disenselon of the measuremplayoil to impress persons with his great capacity for equing three like that haffle the actioned of modelse. He simply decises to all comen, irrespective of social or penfossional standing, that if they believe they will be curred. He has awakened the deepest medical interest, and sager of the most enterlage- ambirdle even when the elements are at their worst and the civilies in nervous complaints have visited him without acquiring any definite knowledge of the secret of his power. During the meeting of the National Public Health Assaciation, many of the delegates. Inciling from every part of Camula, Mexico, and the United States, puld fifth the honor of a visit, and were received with the same simple, impretentions air that has characterized to dealings with the populare. He shrinks from more, and does not essay to cloud his movements with any of the tricks that are the chief resource of the orbinary fakir.

Schlatter nonuners that his stay in Denver is limited by "the Pather" to the 16th of Navember, when he will be called to the East. The reported sums effected through his agency run into the hundreds, and his mall has to be hauled from the post-office in a wagun. It is estimated that he is in receipt of a thousand letters daily; and, after he has passed a day at the gate of his little home to North Denver, he spends the greater part of the night answering the communications that pour in from every quarter of the rematry. His host, Mr. E. J. Fox, says he mover retires before one or two o'clock in the morning, but so far he appears possessed of superhuman energy, for he shows no signs of weariness in treating the thousands who clamor for altention from the rising of the sun until long after the chades of evening have fallen.

His group is so strong that men and women who have had treatment have cried aloud, and the sensation is described as acute pain that darts through the body, for the moment cousing intense suffering, and then relaxing into a delicious current that permentes every fibre of the frame. Baldes in pain who have been the hang of the mother's life have become suddenly molified with the touch of the fienier, and have relapsed into sleep for the first time in works, even while the lands of the stranger have been upon them. Fifth may have cured many of those adults who leave flocked to the shrine, out medical mon are staggreed by the testimony of cures effected in infants only a few weeks old. One particular case has been loudly heralded as nothing short of the infraculous. It was in the person of a balic three years of age whose mind was a blank from birth. The purents are unoug the best known in Denver. They pleaded with the healer to come and me their shild. For sever the strongs man departed from his rule and much a visit to the longe of the little patient. A number of prominent men eyes present at the time, and after freedments lasting I am works the lasty give signs. of neogration and use enough with give. At the conrimon of the fourth visit the light of intelligence camelines the little one's eyes and childish effection was monifest. for the first time since it came into the world. It laughed and characted in huby give as it bugged its mother, while the tears of jay streamed down the happy woman's checks.

Regiment who have experienced bracilt from the healer are soming the stally eathern, and there can be un question about Mode recovery, as they were all sufferers from de-Souther risdom that deprived them of their places on the Atlantic and Positic Rullway. After tentinent they fully provered their eyedght, and on autmitting to medical examination by the expert physicians of the milroid, were priminted.

But said: from all this is the fact that the "Messiah" has get accept any remanderation, nor will be allow any of the people around him to profit by the demand for attention. Birts and preve are on the some plane, and wealth so for his not been able to induce any discrimination. Schlatter is without a cept in the world, and has scarcely sufficient eligibling to product him from the wenther, yet he proceeds, regardless of undramingical conditions, in his daily house. turrents descend in an avalanche.

Schlafter these months ago came into notice in Albuquerque, New Mexico, by performing cures among the simple Mexicuts, and then his reputation passed beyond the morney contines of the Territory through the agency of the newspapers. He concluded his wonderful enteer by indulging in a fast for forty days, and then was induced to go to Denver. He is a shoemaker by occupation, and in his dress affects the conventional appearance of the Son of God. He professes to be a Catholic, although he is variously reported as an atheist and a spiritualist by those who knew him before he claimed to have any divine attributes. Whatever he may be, he has been successful in attracting the attention of the entire Western country.

A TALE OF LOVE AND WAR.

UNDER THE STARS

HERK was a purple sky, spen which the stars shone like geme. Uninappily, they were not as propitious as they were beautiful. Once in a way one of them would flash into spece, type of many a burnan life productines to suffer oclipse within a few short days. The night was sweet and still—made for love. The trees whispered is the perfunct air. Mathilla rode by her husband's side. She could hardly realize the significance of their me prompts excursion. Joseph centered on ahead.

De Fournier felt strangely in his bourgeois gear. It helped to give movelty to the effection. He looked none the less pet-suresque in his ample coat, his three-cornered hat, and his broonded vest. Mathilia had combined her new attire with some ancient costimus of the farmer's wife, a rechty-line. egit clock that was an heritoom, handed down by her grandmarker, and a hood of brown velvet that because the young bride's vare complexion.

The narrow way from the Heroit a wound along toward the main road through the forest, with fields on one side and woods on the other.

"We are Citoyenne and Citizen Duval, by Monsieur Bertin's orders, Joseph tells me," said de Fournier, in a tone of mirthfulness, after a gullop over the half-league of read that brought them well into the forest. "You have changed your name, dear, already; to me it is a new sensation."

"It is like having a sweet secret, to be so disguised in name and dress," said Mathilds, with an effort at cheerfulness.

"Another act in the gracious comedy of our bensymbou, Mathible, and this excursion a gallant masquerade," said do

Fourther, "with a kindly startight night specially provided by Nature's own stage-manager."

"You give life and hope, and make things bright that otherwise might be too sad for words," said Mathida.

"Why, my love, we shall never be happier—two ardenslovers in the first days of their honoymoon. It seems a very puralise, youder Hermitage; so teamble, yet so built of pastoral dignity. When France is once more in repose well visit the farmer and his wife again, and hold high feetival in commemoration of our bridal home."

All that was gentle in de Fournier's character made itself manifest under the influence of his young wife. Hitherto there had always been a certain tone of the grand seigneur in his working—a dash of the soldier, a something of the remance that belongs to lare and feathers and high estate. Now, with a teach of adversity and in close communion with the woman of his heart, de Fournier had discovered in himself a new world of thought and feeling. He had, furthermore, discissed to Mathible a new coarser and a naturalness of demosnor that, making her still more fend, also increased her fears of the shadow under which they had found a sometime of their own.

"When France is in repose again?" she said, with a sigh.
"You say that with a heart-ache."

"I feel no heart-ache to long as you are by my side. To ride under the stars out into the wide world, man and wife, is fulfillment of my best dreams."

"But if they take us—these men who may be even now upon our track ! My heart stands still at thought of it."

Mathible stretched forth her hund to him. He hald inid upon her bridle and stooped to kiss her.

"They shall not take us," he assessed quickly, his hand on his sword, but the next moment falling by his side, with the qualifying remark, "if God and the Virgin defend us."

"But if it be God's will to give us up i she said, with a sigh.
"Why then, door heart, we will bear our misfortunes with courage. We must not expect to have all the sweets, and none of life's littlers."

"No, descr," she said. "God is giving us hitters already to

"No, dear," she said. "God is giving us hitters already to check the clay of our present except."

"Let us only think of the bissings of the time, and take no note of fast. Our bearts had long been one. He has permitted that our hands, too, should be joined; with this sembline let us be soutent."

"Content." said Mathide, with a eigh, " It is bard to be hunted, yet only to have deserved well of those who are our ensuries."

"Harder if we deserved ill of them, Mathide," de Pournier regised. "Oh, for a free command with a throughout such spirits as the two Delaunys—ofer and cadet, as de la Galetierro called them! I would sweep Paris free of Hobsepherre, Danton, Marat, and their vile crew."

"Pear Henri," said Mathido, " if fate offered you the one to fight I would not stay your arm; but there is a time to fight and a time to retreat."

"And a time to love," he said, his face aglow; "and come what may, we have bad our supreme, our happy hour."

"You are very good to me," said Mathilde.

"Hist | Joseph is riding back to us."

"Parton," said the faithful guide, "but it is who that we push on."

De Fournier released Mathide's hand. The borres advanced into a measured trot. No more words more spekers. They were now in the open read, and approaching Evrieux. There was a light in the distance.

"I will recumentee," said Joseph. "If all is well I shall return at sace. There is a merrow read half a league on the right of the village, and a stretch of forest; be so good as to await me there."

Joseph galloped on. It was a straight read for half a league, then it swerved to the right. They kept him in sight to the bend. The light disappeared, to come in view again when they reached the mirrow way which Joseph had mentioned. Here they drew within the wood and sat quietly beneath the stars.

" You object to emigrating if said Mathible, presently.

"It is cowardly."

"But it is no more than a retreat before overwhelming forces," she said, "such as is permissible in war."

" But one does not retreat and louve one's captain behind. said Henri.

"You mean the king," said Mathible, " But he has haid down his communica."

"There is the quete, shar." In answered,

FAILURE OF NEGRO COLONIZATION IN MEXICO.

THE first and only attempt ever made to establish a colony of American negross in Merico has recently come to a sudden and disastross end. In February of this year the Tlahualito Agricultural Company of Burango, Mexico, shipped about one themsand negroes, men, women, and children, from Alabama and Georgia to the company's ranch, fifty mike borth of the city of Torreon. Within five months after the arrival at the Tabushio haciends, two hundred of the negroes were dead, four or five knudred were quarantized in smallpox cumps along the American side of the Rin tirande, and, with the exception of a few who remained on the ranch, the rest were scattered along the road between Durango and Alabama, footnore and weary, sick, and dependent upon charity for substatence.

The history of this Mexican experiment with in ported magni labor is full of interest, by company undertaking it, the apparently favorable conditions for the negro at the outset, his total failure at self-government, and the effect it has buil in Mexico upon the social and hasiness standing of the negro race. The Thiontiln Company is a great concern, its stockholders representing many millions of deltars. It is issunted a vich company in a country of many enterprises of great magnitude, requiring incredible amounts of namey for investment. The Tiahundilo tucienda comprises over two million acres, and upon this broad decisin five million. dollars has been expended for improvementa-An irrigating ditch from the Name Biver feels

The nulroad stations were lestoged by crowds of colored people anxious to go. Two special trains energing the one thousand negress were reshed through the North, across the Rie Grande into Mexico, the negroes chanting plantation sours or they work, happy in belief that they were traveling to a land flowing with milk and honey. Most of them took a few homebuild goods, which under Efford onession were admitted free of days.

The ordery was seen organized and work care mened, the company furnishing everything It was the great and raiding a change for the negro, however. Unprecedented late and rold raise set in, the water they drank was from shallow wells that in the alkali-imprognance lake hed, their new dist was better and freshen core, the people about them spoke a strange tongue, no white overseers kept them in check, religious frentise interfered with the work, and a disorganization that, later on, was to prove complete set in. To add an element of terror to the situation, a strange disease broke out among them. The beaties of those afflicted over-tiof from waist to knee to encrease size, and death stalled abroad in the releasy with historia familiarity. Ot a hundred were were burnet. and the indexty was punic-stricked. Hepath enced to smak away in the night. Notwithstanding the fact that several thou mrd Mexicus, men, women, and children, call this ranch their home and dorive their living from company employment, the labor question is a serious matter in this laguest country. The ecupanty considered many schemes for supplying this deficiency, but finally made a contract with W. H. Ellis, a well-known negro columner, it with Aspert per hond. Ellis was the owner of a convention from the Mexican government allowing him to import twenty thousand American negroes under meet favorable terms as to exemption from duties, taxes, etc. The company paid the transportation charges, amounting to twenty dollars for each negro, and agreed to advance a certain sum of money such awaith to the head of each family until the first crop was made, half of the net processls of which the negroes were to have.

A settlement was planned for them distinct from that of the Mexicans. Neveral hundred adobe buts were built, forming a hollow square, in the centre of which was a store, church, and school house. Ellis went into tisorgia and Alahams on his recruiting tour, and caused great excitement among the negroes of the entire South. The planters became alarmed at the threatened exodus. Figure 4 gives a freat view Just after the balt has left the foot on its way to the goal. The blur which the feet spakes shows that it is still in motion upward, proving that there has been no awayard, snappy sirk. Instead, drapty an susy, seesping mavement of almost quiform force from start to near the finish:

Figure 5, which depicts Charley Brown, of Harvard, making a drop-kick, is highly intoesting from the fact that it shows a plain clobtion of the rule of keeping the eye on the ball, and not on the goal sought for. While Brown has been encrossful in a way with his dropkicks, he has never made any record of note. Purhaps it is this one defect—a most serious one which has lather to kept him buck.

I have said that a kicker should from the very sump of the ball heep his eye offere on the ball. It seems mivimble to qualify this statement in this way ; Suppose the centre-runk is bothered in snapping and in this particular case the quarter gets the ball proviy, and the fact communicates itself to you instantly that a poor and slow pass is likely to follow. In such a ease it is the part of discretion - particularly if you know your opponents to be quick line breakers -- to take a sharp glame about after you have the ball occurry in your hands. the lastant, you may see the chance to kick unmolected and kick, or you may see oppomonth allered the beat upon your in these ter euro quirily to one side, then kick. As before explained, the limits should not be statted from their first grip on the ball. The report of this is that time in valuable quantity in drop-kicking, where even the lowed a fraction a second may menn a blocked kick is wasted, maximen as the result sought for in changing the lambs can be gained by a simple movement of the arms.

Harvard-Princeton Football Game Arranged.

An event of great interest as well as importours in the college first-ball world will be the Harvard-Primeton match et Princeton, New Jersey, on November 4d Primeton played Harvard last in 1990, once which time there have been so meetings in heir half between the two. The score of this game was forty-one to Officen, and the Harvard men were as petting by defeat and augered by a number of disagreeable happenings during the playing of the game, that they told Princeton almost directly on the spot that they desired authing more to do with the players from Josep.

Having broken off with Princeton, it was Harvard's date to wave the office branch this This she this by challenging Princeton, firteds, Princeton could not accept somewark, as ingre was she to try remrissions with the criment eleven, and while a few Vale men wen to think that Princeton but the chauce do refeeling the challenger to make a februit of Yake for life, the majority of find-ball area feel sure that Princeton's athletic advisors noted whele.

Because Yalo and Harvard failed to patch up their difference and arrange a gaser is no reaour why Princeton about I have registed the spectonity, which she has longed for slow 1980, to demonstrate further for superiority over Barvard on the feet-ball field. Baving were the Harvard truss play a grow to which the chances were monoscop to get a too up her strongth, I rather feet inclined to the bellief that Harvard's challence has come at a poor time for Princeton. In other words, Harvard looks to be in line to retrieve her hearth hat its years age. 1933, first-ball games are torrestate things sare energic, and in this consection the fact must not be lest sight of that Princeton will derive great advantage from playing on leave grounds.

THE YALL TEAM THEARS & RECORD.

The Yale tree who on Saturday afternoon, October 19th; at Orange Ocal, allowed the Orange Athirtic Chili tenn in score two tenchdowns on them were right in feeling in they did after the game-that they tool disgrared themselves. Harvard and Princeton teams in the past have in more recourses scored as many as two ion-belowns against Yale, but for a frame of men who, on several of finding engagements, get in about a vector's practice to a college man a lever, to accomplish such a frut. why, it is simply inexcusable. To be sam, Vale's aggressive game was good; but that is all that can be read faithfully of the team.

The exhitation which Pull-back Letters gave of kicking grade from a plane kick would have shaturd a whireft boy. The Science of Dropkicking in Foot-ball.

DESCRIPTION Is related to place-bloking in mount estain way, manusch at the same principles underlie toth. The science of place-ki sing was frested of in last week's number of Lan-Lik's WHEELY.

The playing code defines a drop-kick as one "made by letting the half fall from the hands and kicking it at the very instant it rises." It would be more exact to say, kicking it at the very somest it function the ground. This is a distinction with a difference, which is hardly approvable when time alone is considered, but of consequence to a proper application of force. That is to say, if your foot meets the ball the moment the ball strikes the ground the force you put into the kick reants for more than if you caught the ball after it had left the ground; not the farther the ball gets away, the loss beautit can be derived from the contact and consequent rebound from Mother Earth.

As I have suid, the drop-kick is related in no uncertain way to pince-kicking. The differnace-nominal entirely—is that the drop-kicker takes the pince of the holder of the bull for a place. Link, arranging the half with his own bands. Once out of his han is the ball swin the earth, strikes in the exact position it would have been placed in for a place-kick and kick of accordingly.

But whereas the place-kick is always accomplished in detail the same, drop-kicking the score is a tio, a goal manu certain victory. On the other hand a tourish we is quite impossible in the short time left to play.

So the signal is given, and the full-back of tunes." A "drope back to the thirty-yard line, or ten yards back of his own line. As he does so he first deficiely in his mind line. As he does so he first deficiely in his mind's ape the sense focusion of the peal and througher his eyes become glood to the badl, at the time under the hand of the map-back. When the hall is anapped the eyes follow it into the quarter's hinds, and with cut-like vigilance note its flight into his very street or hands, so in Figure 1 that he hall been passed into the left side the left arm would have exciteded it while the right hand would have been chapped over the top), then as the ball fails to the ground the sym centre spen that charmed spet "X"—that is, a point midthe hands in the numbered position in which they have caught the ball.

The planting of the right foot signals the retens of the half. I supplasize "release," to call particular effection to the point that the hands are drawn away from the half; that is to say, there is no spaceastic movement which implies that they too the half away. Most drop-beckers towthe ball, and thus lay themselves open to the evil of a ball not under control, for the moment they toos it the ball falls bally, and eventually strikes the earth in any but the right way

In Figure 2 the hands can almost be seen to move us they release the ball with a movement similar to pulling out the two parts of an accordion, and the ball shows a position similar to that which it later assumes in Figure 3.

owing to varying conditions, embraces a number of different ways of handling the built upon its receipt from the quarter-back. If a drop-kicker were always allowed all the time be seasted to accomplish a kick be would perform the same always. In reality, however, as the drop-kick is used for the most part from a down in an artempt to severe a goal from the field, up-presents greatly hurry the kicker in their attempts to block the ball.

Let us now imagine a case wherein the drop may be employed, and follow in detail the several inevenients of the kicker.

Team "A" having forced team "B" to the latter's twenty yard line directly in front of the goal, dwelfe upon a kry for a goal from the field. Insometh as there are but two minutes mees to play during this, the second half, and

So they dreamed on, and said ranght to each other about their journey, nor of their hopes. They were ingether; for the present that was enough.

The next morning the farmer and the partner of his joys and services and their are properties; many to the dear to hid their greats asies; and add their thermap. "Citaren," and Larvete, "on my own behalf, and by despect Meanure to Capitaine and his return trivagers and those whose servants we are, we thank you for your hospitality; at the same time it is well that you should know you are hable to arrest, and your property to confloation, for your previous hardening of countries of the Revolution."

"No to assument," whitepered the farmer's wife.

"It is death to give source to the common of France; and that you have done," continued Larretie, as he threat his pictois just the bulleters by his combenium smalls.

"I am ready to suffer," said the old man, looking steadily at Laryche, "If it is a crime to succer the unfortunate."

The servant-man, who had been in the family of the farmer's master, Muscleur Hertin, stood forward, oben'tly subscribing to the former's loyal scuttured.

"Moreover, it is my disty an exact by the middless; they have about by me and mine."

the Fourner thanked Larwele, and taking the bridle of Mathilde's locus, led her through the celtage gate into the path which by and by joined the high read to Mr. Germann

It was a monotonion tide to Paris. No include on the way recurred to make it memorable. Joseph had from St. the main more of loss in the bunds of the new authorities. He had been much to approach Monoton Bertin's home smill midnight. Then he climbed the park wall on its less frequented side and made his way into the butler's room, where it was understood in case of need he would fluid an unharced door. He learned that the house was in possession of a company of Municipal Guards from Paris. Their chief officer had only that day informed madame that if Monsieur Bertin did not give himself up within four-and-twenty hours, she and her daughters would be removed to Paris. Mathilde and the Fournier were spared this depressing piece of news.

Their spirits fell us they entered Paris and noted the crowds of strange people, armed and noisy, some marching in motiey companies to join the troops at the frontiers, others singing vile songs and brandishing their compone in a mad, imbecile kind of way. Within the barrier of the Champs Elysess a fresh contingent of troops joined Laroche's civil communit. They were positful, for, possing along the line St. Hotore, a vast crowd surged against them, greaning and hissing, and shouting hideous threats. The new contingent brought with them. new captives. Every conceivable noise seemed to be in the sir sa they peaked their way along the streets, some of which were still as death It was in the leading thoroughfares where their course was impeded. In the back streets those who resained in-lows had meetly largended their bours. All the slops were closed. An atmosphere of terror was over the city, all the more threatening in its silent streets than where it was most apparent in storm and stress, thu wild ferment of pikes and the rolling of limurrectionary draws.

XXIV.

DE POCESSIES IN REPARATE PRINCIP.

True and a vestless people have waped out the architectural landmarks of the Presch Bereletton; but the spectrus of that awful part remain.

Ven may trace the real feathboard the Terror through street and alley, to park and square, though few of the once familiar surroundings any longer remain. The very names of the insteric herdithe have been changed. The glasticare there oil the same, and in all weathers; in the smoother, in the rain, when sename winds make genthe rippins in the river, when wintergules have stiffly about the grim towers of the Palain in Justice, and the same falls thick upon the adjacent quarys and whitens the Tuileries gardens—still the same and numeries cling about the beautiful city.

So long an autions have a history, so being will the story of the agony of Paris teach the universal heart and appeal to the spivered imagination.

A word or two by way of historical recoins. concervill serve to explain to the general reader the character of the Constorger's and the singularity of its name. It is on integral part of the Paints de Justier. Organally a fortres, it because a royal palace. Kings, as well as republics, most have prisons. The French menarch who fired at this stately should on the House in the carry days preferred a handy one; so be enlarged his palace in that direction. He built a residence for the governor of his house of detention, with its dungers and its testruments of torture, and they called here the "concurred" of the palme; his special department therefore came to be known as the Consterperin; home the manual the historic prison to this day, and in the present revisiony of divmostle life in Paris the "conclurge" of our day may be said to inherit the autocrass metinets of his more distinguished though less ground produces on the bracks of the Meine.

Prior to the Revolution the Conciergorie had a history which for misery and bloodshed it would have baxed burner invention to rival. During the famile of the Armagnaes and the Issarguigness the "calasthiens" broke into the juil and killed every prisoner, man and woman. They are must be pained yard with corpus, among them the Count d'Armagnae, Constable of France, six bishops, and several members of the Paris Parliament. The place was hearly burned though in 1776, but a few years later it was restored, in time for a revival of its evil reputation.

There it stands to this day, with the two resinted powers, and all its remeantic and ghastly memories, on the banks of the Seine, which during the Terror run with blood, conveyed in a guiller constructed from the guillotine's first establishment in the Place de Greve. If it is difficult in these brighter days, standing by the guely-freighted river, to realize the coming and going of prisoners contemned ere they were tried, one daily procession of fair women and noble men, on their way to death, you may cuter the awful gates that now swing to amil free for the admission of the curious. You may see the cells and voines, the stone dangerns that everjucked with prisoners of every class and grade, With an endinary effort of imagination you may hear the ribald shoulded frenzied men, the sight of insulted womanhood, the defaut songs of reckies soldiers, and you may small the steach of it; all too terrible for words to describe

Here, one and day beward the latter end of August, 1750, came de Fournier, in the custody of Larvelle and an except of gendarmer.

Other prisoners serived at the same time. Two of them were revalished distinction, who had in their day been precedent among the most (flustrious of Frenchmen.

De Fournier, in his comparatively humble clothes, attracted no particular attention from the crowd that had gathered around the approaches to the Palais in Justice. Through its guarded gates and beyond its grim court-yard the Consistantia was hisbles.

The majority of the crowd were women. They occumed and yelled and blood the two rayaled pressures, whose mobility of demonsters and at the same time quiet schemistreness to a creat declary neight form a send realizary increases take into silent respect.

But those were not ordinary murtals. They were travesties of somewheed; waters freely in hammi shape. They more creatures of the night, who, on the tenth of August, had dole blod their bambs in the bised of the king's goards in the Taileries partieus; dabbled in it and drank it round the insurgent files, in which the firsh of hornic soldiers and stricken aristo crats had been flung with the wrock of royal spartments. They had nembed to perule bleeding heads on four-cone piece. They had placed the part of printeuns at sterem feasts, and taken awful native at division assemblies Already their shadows were falling upon the immediate future of the Unarrangeria, when do Fournier and his follow-yletims aftracted their inthonytion.

If was only for a few minutes that the prisonses equated a slight diversion from the business of the morning, which must to salute the procesation of death on its way to the guiltidian. The tundrike wave already drawn up totally the gules. Prisonally they would saler, and return with pule passengers, many of minus would suffer their bitterest measures in the every time of the mids.

If was not intil his secont tail been increased by a fresh contingent of more on entering Paris that Laracha had informed in Fourier of their different destinations, his wife to be delivered ton the custody of the governor of the Yempie, he to the Osmarapa is.

Mathible had behaved with womanly fortitiale. It was de four-mer who hooks down with gitef and passion. There is suffer designate took passession of blin, with a letter underlying exrent of bearing for a great covering. He was right to thinking that they must their separation to ferbanyal and share constituable indignity that his imagination result unvest second possible from his cival, who bated him, by recens of their blood relationship, and who would have been the more that her seen action had burried on the more that her seen action had burried on the marriage it was his rised desire to prevent.

Wherever might have originated the trite saying, "When Greek meets (Freek, then comes the lag of war."—a far meets (Freek, then comes the lag of war."—a far meets threek, then was the lag of mar."—the spirit of it is no old as reduction, civil war, and family quairwis. In the Preset Berestotten the bitterest and meet an originality continue to the trites of French against Freets. The story of the trace is one bourly illustration of the muligality of bottle factions, and removable containing constitution, one is aemobilisting the other with a fee meet thouly malify than Freets broom showed when they not their foreign force.

The duitest imagination could conveive the numerity with which tire-based and de Fournier night small such other should opportunity offer; and am follows their true better in the great tragedy of Puris with a lover longe that Fate may still have in slore such a change of destiny for the new primare of the Conservation as shall place him free and fine to face with his powerful enemy.

Gribageal was one of those persistent lovers, so milled, who, failing a logitherate-direction to his arrived desires, is willing to large overs hatred of the woman he affects to worshop, in order to oncompass his such; and who makes presenting affire an object of a base probe and a sear rempease. The war charter of skippers who shed their newdling bride and go down with their to the depths in their plantens slope have no more fragic impulse than Grehowed could showly out of stat ours might have feet a removable instinct of lane. Experience of the attricities of the process within the effect time between July and the September we are appropriate had stelet his treat against all the fluor emotions that might have had a place there. When Griffanical barried that Manachihad occuped him through the church at St. Germania, windower sentiment of a hely passion might at our time have tone-had his heart, hourover faintly, dried on; and there remained only the warmwood of desappointment, the gall of last, and the desire of very sauce.

The prison was full to coordiowing when de Fournier arrived there. Almost every thay now victims and fullen before the Revolutionary tribunal; but the work went on too slowly for the numberpal authorities, who were now in full power. The Commune had receased the National Assembly, Grebanical in the Chamber had supported the numberpality when it came to the har. He pained in the cry of "Vive in Commune " when the galleties applicated Tailieu's defaut answer to the Gircoslist chief, Verguiand. De Fournier, therefore, arrived at the Commergeries at a most dangerous moment, though Grebanical's chief interest was in Machida.

It was, however, by a stroke of greed fortune that de Peurtuez was flung into a reil with four-teen others, among when was Monsieur de la Geletierre, bis commule to the retreat to St. German. The citizen Multicree informed him that he had been at first placet in a dangeror with two marderers for companions. By the virtue of some gold-puren, and the interposition of a friendly transcriped, to had been transferred the next day to be prescul-quarters.

"And what is more to the purpose," he said:
"I was in time, as you are; to participate in a selector of except that promises success."

"Brage Paul de Konraier, " with the secret

"Yes. When you arrived the fear was that you might be a say thrown in among on. Put you not a size the unite of culief that went resmit when I know you and we contracted?"

"I did not milite it," said the new prisoner;
"my faculities are asymbol. I am broken, dear friend; broken?"

Von shall be set up again; we are yiel in this cell, done concerds. Six of us have money roungh to provide decent feed and mederately good wine. We keep up our quirits, and shall revive years. My wife is not far away; Unque to join her very seen. Ab, my don't lear, if you had a wife you might be ranged for surprise.

"About I have a wife; it is of her I am thinking, not of suyerif," and is Finerair; and than the fore-act down upon a beach beneath a whelve looking upon a small open space that was only separated from the Scine by a loss with and the Foursier related to blier all that had impressed show they had parties.

Mosnicur de la Cinistierre understood and ajrelated his friend's feary for Mashilds, but fitted bins with a new hope. The window above them was not far from the ground. It was you terted by less bars, two of which had already been seen through, and could be maily recorrect. Two others would ambress similar operations at might, and within two or three days the course would be free. The even in which they were confined now a makeshift. prises, and once outside the window, there simile be an difficulty in earspine. There were for promotion spaint sways. At first first taid a terrible onner guard to fear. Two dogs were the austinels. The counterps relieved his officer at night by trained founds, mangreb level brusts, built movered, half bloodbound, tippt were let lesse to the murt-pard. Two of the brickes were period to the small open space bemoth the window through which the Ingreen my last resident to climb. Their leader, a case of athletic strongth and a curtous and varied horseledge, had sensed the stobbering four-field of guardises of the night. For days not pieces of ment as world be ignored wore accommissed for the deg-tamer, who exercised other powers term the animals. On the special ovurdence he had obtained acress to them. It was not every difficult to get into the court yard, but up pris more were carried to can the risk of below york to pares. The prisoners miled their loader Daniel, and no flow den readd have been more than person than the court-yard of the Concorgotte after dark. But Daniel went holdly into the mide of the toutes. He set only parapered their appetites, but he last a knock of seiding a dog by the five paw, and by pressing a evenue perve between the first and second claws, but the animal at his merry. It seemed as if the influence spread from one in the other. A paw left's based, the they would here! and webs the band as if it would guess it, but it ended in melting were than a rough findling, and thusof was the dig's master. And so, Moustour do la Violetorre explained, the road was riour when the window bars should be removed. He further informed de Fentmer that all sats of people were permitted to enter the primutaron nutters, readers of various muon, noney changers, and others. In the daytime the court-yard was a tenderyone for friends of the procures who were not about to exhibit an interest in them, which between new and then led to their arriest. Bemiles were placed alreaded the readed barrier, and here all day lone, resummaination with the outer world was maintained, meetly by friendly interivanse, offen, hewever, through malcontents who retifed the privaters and feds them prepare to and race for have qualitating.

As a conclusion to these particulars, Monoisur de la Galetierre, laying his hand affectionately on de Fourmer's shoulder, exclaimed: "And you come fast in time to participate in our scheme!"

" And to perish if it fulls," he replied.

"In that use we shall only anticipate our end by a day or two. The work of destruction has begun in terrible carness. Every day the provession to the knife is recruited from the Conciergarie. We were twenty in this narrow room when I was brought into it. With you we are now fifteen."

Further conversation was interrupted by the arrival of supper, which was spread on a bug, rickety tuble, and paid for by the " treasurer. as an aged viscount was called. In these early days of the Revolutionary tribunal and the tright of the denical Ponquier-Tinville, the regimen was less severe than it was later, though a more ragid discipline followed. At first, while only too often political prisoners were mixed with ordinary malefactors, there was the alievintion of mutual help. The rich were allowed to feel the poor. While the Commune denomeed the noblesse for every crime under the sun, they exemulated the poor in unet of the prieses for the tember mercies of the rich, and estabfinded within their forces of shrantism an of most model registion-for here all classes were threen legether. Companions in misfortme. they became also friends in their adversity. Men and wemen of the upper classes felt in with the bardamard economy of the princes, and schapted thems lives to their grewactae surroundlegs with a grace and fortitude that communied the respect of their bundler companions. and even even the selects of many of their bleselthicaty juillers.

The pigett that followed was a terrible one for de Pouraier. He believed that he had not slept a wink, but he had doned off frequently, his brade service and alive all the time with every kind of distressful invention, in which Mathilde meded the belowed protection be could not give her, and always with the langual meeking hou and leading Mathible with compliments were tion death, and her mediur urging her to accept the protection which tirebauval offered her. We we function and more awful possibilities than even these took hold of his tongination, and from groups and sight brought him at last upon his know in prayer; and when his friend awake, with a streak of blurred smalight coming through the bare of the window that now only held together by a remnont of mafflot tem, de Porruler was asloqu his boad between his hands, his knew still heat upon the Boot.

"Find has been good to him," said its la Galetirere. "For the present his troubles are over; if he wate dead they would be eached altegother. And yet, what a torrible thing it is, the thought of going to deep owner to wake again."

Dr. Talmage in Washington.

THE introduction of Her. T De Witt Talinage to Washington will Jurnish a boxelty to the religious world of that city. There is no smentional prearing in Washington, and none who has the qualities of a popular speaker. The nearest appeared to pulpit accontinuation known there one furnished some years ago by the "Blind Chaptain" of the House curv chapiniu of the Senato, Dr. W. H. Millourn. Dr. Militern legit in fouch with public affairs, and our lines, when the House was 10 a legislative dead lock, he prayed so bervently, from the speaker's disk, for the men who were obstructing public beauton that they raised a protest. Or, Milliorn was unrued that he must not direst his appeals too particularly to public at-Intra. Since that thus his praying has been tense and menquestively numbereding to the galleries. Dr. Talmingo takes a fleely interest in all public questions; he knows a great many public men, and he is quite likely to make Congress the subject of sense of his sermons during the coming winter. It he does, he will become a more completions figure than he has been in

I asked Dr. Tahunge, after his acceptance of the call in Washington, if he intended to take a hand indirectly in public affairs. He said frankly that he did not know—that he had made no plans. He selly knew that he was going to Washington to prouch because the finger of Providence pointed that way. "There is no cont about me," he said. "It assured to me that the fuger of Providence pointed to Washington, and I accepted the call."

THE DRAMATIC OPINION OF THE MATINEE GIRL.

San is frequently very young and oftentions frivations—the matines gart—but she has some characteristics which make her an internal personage to the actute and thoughtful manager as he fingers the hox-affire receipts; her learing to task, stubborn faith in her own illugical spinners, and fibelity to her proferences.

The matinio girl is begion, frydra-headed. You find her a school-girl, all good and abenity: a westery girl, who after a few sensors tofas or a semi-distillusioned way of life; the girl of the professional strata who smatches a Saturday afternoon from her work or study; the young afternoon from her work or study; the young married woman, who may give a futtle eight over the importations of her business your pared with "him" on about the impotuph show over. She is a posterful theater patron worth cultivation. Her upinton is a golden one:

To do her full justice, she is centrent only with the levt. No man who is only himboure, or only a present in after fashionable challen, the lades her into scending for your king. He must totals and thrill ber, make her feel the reality of his net, make her eyes given must or win her himbour, before he gets the hearty appliance of her attale-overed hands.

Then actors now appearing in New York in very secreeful plays hold the nation of girl in builing strongs, done there, who were a land ago, around his boad in "Christophas, Jr.," which she "comes miles to see", Bothorn in his new departure into the realise of pure consuses in "The Prisoner of Zenda", Joseph Holland in the society smooth that in "A Social High worman."

Mistaken Leniency.

HE growing evolution of the sicome classes for the restraints of hrw, and the authority which marks the perpetration of some forms of crime, are and unitedly due to the mistaken besiency of officials who are charged with the execution of the penal statotes. Thus fact has been strik. ingly Dissented in this and others of our larges office, where-nutrages upon the bullet, instead of being mule odious by judicial fidelity to official ubligations, have been actually encouraged by a elementy amounting as practical symparity with the offenders. It has had illustration also in the after failure of the yourse in punish us they deserve individual and corporate francis and embezz lements, and to enforce the penulties of the law in the case of excise stolk tions, breaches of efficial reast, capitalistle and fabor conspirodes, and many other forms of wrong-doing. Where the courts or these in authority, fall to modified a real abborrence for crime, it cannot be otherwise than that if should become more and more definit and aggressive

Nowhere, perhaps, has this personness of authority hees. more distinctly manifest than in the stocke me of the purdening power by national and State expendition. A Curious Epidemic in England.

A trition - epidemic has proken out in England. Almost every town with a duke or a bonf frenz in its neighbordered has been besentling his eros or his lemislage to honor the town by becoming its major for a year. The epidentic and its beginnings to Sheffield. Next year Shefepidenic and us regiments to the Queen, and in order and suggestions of women who have effect the colors. that due dignity might be given to the occasion the municipality appealed to the Dake of Norfolk, a book as half the town, to serept the office of major. The duke is a force men. He is postmuster general in the Salisbury government, and is the quafficial spokesman of the Catholic Church in England in the House of Lords. He was, less ever, woursel that he meet not attend the accretings of the aldermen or try persons charged with heing drank and disunderly, at the puller cours. These duties usually full upon the matter, has if the duke would only accept the people of Shefficial assured him that they would see that there was a deputy mayne to provide over the addresses and attend to the police court. On these terms the dake assented.

As seen as it was known that Shellout had thus captund a doke. Longton a town to the grimy, bluck country of Staffordshire, net out on a shotler search. Next your Langton is to be the sense of the Bayal Agricultural Stviete's show a guthering the Prince of Wales usually atrush and it street the people of Longton that if Shellichi, could serve a dake for the Queen's risk, they could serve use for the coming of the Prince of Wales. An appeal was recordingly made to the Duke of Sutherland. His other was with the groups in the Highlands of the time, but offer three or four days completeling le accepted on the same may terms so those made at Significial for the Dake of Nortolk. Next the epidemic lanks out at Hetherium. That it should brook out there was natural, so Botherburn is less than a dozen miles from Sheffield. In this inclume Lord. OF THE PIRST PARHIONABLE GATHERING OF THE AUTUMN SEASON IN NEW YORK .

The "Kaffir" Speculation.

THE so-called Kaffir gold-mining boom will become distorted as an important feature of the world wide liquidation which has been going on ever since the Baring crash. These mines, located in South Africa, have been utilized as the basis of the formation of stock companies without number, whose shares, listed on all the great European exchanges, have within a few months figured in the most extraordinary speculation of this contary. In England espe-cially has the crase for Kaffin named the attention of investors from other stocks and securities, and it has also perceptibly influenced the American stock market, resulting in a grently diminished foreign demand for "Annericans," and seriously weakening the local buying, in anticipation of a general breaking down of the Kuffir movement. The rush to buy Kaffir straks has been encoraged by their frequent and large fluctuations, never less than 2% percent, and sometimes as high as hift, per cent. Besides this industrient to those given to speculation is that of over half a hundred mines and development companies which have paid dividends of from 6 to 150 per cent. Doubtless in many cases these dividends have not been carried. Even more convincing has been the sharing of the output of the mines, which in [801] was 2,054,060 minors; in 1886, 1,478,000 comes; and in 1892, 1,210,000 mines. Owing to the chespening of methods of gold extraction, whereas but 50 per cent, of the gold in the from 80 to 85 per cent, to possible ; at this rate it was capable of proof that the production in lett, worth 17,500,000, yielded a profit of over 213,560,000, of which A1,500,000 was justil for dividends, the rest going for development. These Source apply to the Witwaterstrand district. the chief rented of operations in the face of such statistics the Kaffir prorestors had little difficulty in floating companice to work the mines. It was here that the artificial character of the Kaffir losses showed itself. Mines were "exploited," which had never struck a voin of gold, and whose only ares was some numbinary and the doubtful properts due to their attation in the gold distree. Mines that had never passed out an comes of the yellow metal were "grouped" with others that had, and the "annignmetion" or "reconstruction" was mostly expitationd, becomed, and the stock but up to sympathy with the general spream tendency. The Lambon mayapapers have all had to devote special articles covering the Kaffir boom and answering quantum for mations Kaffir specphotogra. The number of these resignative runonly be guessed at. Some of them have lived but for a day and were then swallowed up in some presulting re-grouping. In many came the market value of a stock has been at a preminm of 500 per rest. The shares of the Band. Mines, Limited, one of the most important groups, note quoted one day at forty three and a half times their face value. This inflation has electriciscized the entire list, or that the total expitations value of 190,000,000 of all the South African companies emolled to a market valuation of 1240,000,000, an average premium of 2000 pair trible

The investigate character of all such ignestments some not to have recurred to the parchances of Kallley Their feverish desire was not milike that of the miner who has found hor flost magest and works night and day, digging with the freezied and that is been of the investcutton of new formal fortune. In reply the Kaillir manipulators submitted the report on the mises of Mr. Hamilton Smith, an engipoer whose conclusions were published in the Landon Traces. He agreed with Dr. Schmeiswe in estimating the value of the gold yet unmousl at between three lengtest million and three tamered and tirty million pounds. Other coperts have just the figure even higher. The gold-tenring formations are believed to exist down to a depth of ever freely hundred feet; in which there to twenty five bounded free. This but her may with the theory that the good distried was note ago the bottons of a sea wheregold a problemitial as sediment, whose outrospe ning contrast in practically unbroken reefs of great antiferent richness. What are known as "desp-level," companies are at work exploring these roofs at great depth, the field of the premoters being that the deoper the level the richer the yield. It remains to be seen whotise they will not, in these oig holes in the ground, dig their own graves as well as those of their coufiling English backers. Meanwhile there is a steady output all through the South African region; twenty-seven hambred stamps are merrity crushing the rook, lifty thousand native and eight thousand European diggers are at work, and the Kaffir gold kings are builting the European markets and trying to avert the growing tendency to bring the Kaffir stocks down to samething like a reasonable asking price.

Of these Kailly kings the most compactions. the richest, and in all respects the most inter esting, is "Barney" Surnato. Exploring some claims which the rest of the miners decided to have been worked out, he picked out a thirty-must show, paged out all the neighboring claims in his own mans, sold them prevenued at executing profit, and colared, from this single discovery, over one million purpose. He is melay one of the largest stock-healers in the De Peers syndicate, which controls all the discount mines.

in the Johannesberg gold district Barnato bought claims from miners who could not afferd to work them; many of these were consumely profitable, and he repully came to the front as the luckiest value-owner of the day. His rapid gains gave him a pisce smong the Kaffir gold kings, of whom more is trocks may richer, and excepting Used Ehodes. The og-Whitechanel Crosses arrived these tenes ago in Loudon, and has figured as the leader in all the big recrutions which have characterized the recent speculation. Philadelphia may be as slow astrolition has declared it to be, but it must be an awfully pleasant place to live in, for it is still American to the own-it is punffected, it is neighborly. And there is something distinctive about the Restonium also-a something indeed which may well be called distinguished, even though from the New York standpoint it may appear a trifle provincial. So it has evene about that among the frequenters of the horse shows in Madism Square Garden the whole country is represented by those othe make in its chief wittes the Jashions and the social laws. In such a place every student of life will find that which is substitutely interesting, and these who go to admore and those who go to some will both find abundant employment.

As us the forws that are to be seen in the runs it may be said that they will be more numerous than ever before, as the entries exreed those of any other year. This year thistern insufred have been referred, and they one brace the very best animals in the country, borring out those in training for rounding and trutting races. The tandem and four-in-hand rians, always very popular because the skill of the drivers enters largely into the success of the exhibition, will be quite full. This may also he until of the rendstors. It matters not how much we run after foreign models, there is always in every genuine American teart a very soft squit for the American trother, the ideal roudster, the perfection of a burge horse. There will be exhibited a splenchil lot of each nationals, both to single and deaths harven. Last year the winners in these vondater classes were so based like in appearance that there was awareby one of them which would not have been mistaken for a rimmer in training had the hartem been replaced by a mobile with a jorkey to it. The enddle-horses, too, are numerous, and their continued popularity will total to continuthe the frequent statement that the because Ind to throwing the untilledown until fayor. The jumpers have always supplied the soundthough feature to these shows. This year there will be more of those than rure, and as there but been one-b once honting then wend this nationing it to contained to expect that we shall see some appendid performers over the hardles and the thater.

As a west purple and as an equinc exhibition the electric boson slow is likely to estipse all of the productions. And when it is over, the masses of 1905 may be said to have becomined to have beengin with it the ment rewards and disappointments. These more tagetims of fath which add spice to life as it is fixed.

Flowers at the Vanderbilt Wedding.

These has move, perhaps, been a more magnifloent floral display at any wolding in this one time that which marked the Murtherough-Vandersall working at 50. A BOTTLE DEVIDED AGAINST PINKLE.

O-MORROW came. But it was not the tomorrow which Jaffray Ellicott had heard for. It was to have given family indoesement to his segugement with Marie Brayset. Larcete had invited himself to be present in the seriation. He could not have any heatile intention. Juffray noticed that Laroe he had asked permission to come with an unusual and strange submission once with an unusual and strange submission pose of manner. The proposed union had already the approval of Madams Leverhe. He not Marie had loved each other from that first encounter when her garret had become, as he had since felt, the amis-room to his great good fortune.

About Tariff Revision.

Tax overwhelming Republican victories achieved in the neous State elections are interpreted in various quarters as a popular command in court legislation which will restare the industrial conditions existing at the time the Demonstra-y-"reformed" the builf Unbouldedly the industrial protestion and general husiness depression coased by the passage of the Witson bill had very much to the with the Deninegation continue of this your and the year behave and it is true also that the people desire the prostabilishment of a policy which will at once afford sufficient revenue for the government and secure adequate persocition to one great productive interests. At the same time we include see how the Republican party care under present conditions, acrompitals this would. While it has a targe amposty in the House of thepresentatives, it country as mixture agend, pass and comprehensive fartiff measure, I want on Mepablican lines, through the Science, and oven if it could the heatility of the President to the presertive priorities would prevent such a measure becoming a low. Deeper and it appropriate ably eight to judicate its sympathy with the popular demand be proposing modifications of the existing less us to certain industries which have been next heparinessly offacted by the Depresentic payolou and it stands put upon the Democrats of the Senate the responsibility of reporting them, but to attempt mathing beyond this would be of

There is a sense in which nothing will be really less by the party's including to effect at one out it would the to accomplish in the direction of torial rendjustment. The of fects of the Wijson lith will become more and many apportant with the upper of time and the work of eparting more enty legislation, when his beauties of the great number of possible out control, will be a mismail all the contents of that persistent with the characteristical first tender and that persistent less. With the Wanter in Republican lessals the danger of but begindation is effectually retracted and the country much be concern for the present with the normalization of roller thus afforded.

The marmore had become greater, the charper tonce yells and how's such as endow might make; but they were man's voices, and mingiel with the services and faughter of women. The evanuation no limiter moved. It no longer marched - it was state mary.

Then there was a synshing of doors, a wild. hosting, penetrated by the cross of men in deepair, and a sublen burst of people into the court-yard becouth the harred window of Mathibbe's cell; a bellowing, fighting, cursing, yelling mult, with torobys and pikes and sworth, and among them a company of priests, who were being murdered with every kind of barbarity.

Every minute fresh victims were drained into the court-yard from the carriages in which the prisoners had been brought from their misorable don in the Hôtel de Ville.

EUGENE FIELD:

PHILIP THE DREAMER

PHILIP the Dreamer is dead, is dead!
He is lying now in a narrower bed
Than ever should yield such a leader rest—
For Philip the Dreamer should have the best;
Purple trappings and cloth-of-gold
Only should Philip the Dreamer hold.

Yes, he should be lying in garb of state.

And pale-faced mutes by his bier should wait.

A kingdom he gained, but an empire sought;

Strong was his hand in the things he wrought,

But open the hand that his bounty shed— And Philip the Dreamer is dead, is dead!

Dreamer of doings beyond his time, Dreamer of fellowship's utmost prime; There should all grace to the dead be done,

With moaning music and minute-gun And wet-lashed eyelids of those who knew

Of the life that was daring and strong and true.

He had his dreams of a better life, Of generous deeds and of lack of strife Save that strife only to see who can Do what is best for the other man.

This was his thought, in his vast soul bred—
But Philip the Dreamer is dead, is dead!

Philip the Dreamer a man was made: Philip the Dreamer was daft at trade:

> The clink of money was naught to him,

The prate of the changers a chatter dim;

Pence-getters all, by a nose-ring led— But Philip the Dreamer is dead, is dead!

Philip the Dreamer had noblest mark. But Philip the Dreamer is lying stark! A dead one great of a brotherhood Generous, fighting for what is good, Only the good, in a bad thing's stead— But Philip the Dreamer is dead, is dead!

Philip the Dreamer knew what was soul;

Philip the Dreamer knew what was whole:

Philip the Dreamer by God was led— But Philip the Dreamer is dead, is dead!

God help us when such as our Philip dies!

God help us in all helpful enterprise!

THE EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY OF MRS. ELIZABETH CADY STANTON.

TURKEY AND ITS CAPITAL.

THE FIGHTING RESOURCES OF THE EMPIRE.

What the Turke remain in Constantinople! is a question which for years past has been discussed in nearly all the countries of the world. Again and again, since the Turko-Russian war of 1878, it has been amounteed that Russia was mousing by troops and was ready to march upon Constantinople. Nearly sighteen years have passed, and the Turke are still in possession and are likely to remain so for many years to come. Not that it would be a very hard task for the great Powerwof Europe, albed together, to conquer the old capital of the Dynantine compire, but, once in possession of it, they could never agree as to who should hald it, and the compilications which would lieu arise would undentately loud to a general European war.

Leaving usade for the present the Armenian question, it may be said that Constantingule is one of the most interesting and picturesque of cities. No one who has been furtuints enough to see it, from a distance, on a beautiful, somy day, with its greet markle pulsers, its glorious misques and picturesque minurers, will over be able to forget what many chain to be the grandest eight in the world. I, for one shall always remember it as the one sight which is my travels perhaps impressed me the most.

It would not be possible to understand a description of the entrance to Constantinople without having that a clear bles of the configuration of the city. The steamer being to the Bouchorus, the narrow water way which separates Asia from Europe and unites the Sea of Marmora to the Black Sea, we had to mar right the Assatic shore, and to our left the European. In this last, between two kills, is a wide opening, a part, having the shape of a here, and called the Golden Horn. On one side of this, just where Hymener used to be, view on erven hitle Standboul, the Furkish city, and opposite it, Pera unit Galaria, the Frank cities, while on the hills of the Astatic shores stands a fourth city, Neutari. Plus Constantinople is made up of four great cities as near to each other as Breaklyn, Jursey City, and New York. And these many hills are covered with markle pulsees and beautiful gardens, above which tower gigants: mosquan with their great dones of hind and obelisks of gold. There is the Mosque of Ahmed, with its neven minarets, that of Soliman, with ten domen; the Monque of the Sultane Valide and that of Malesmet. 11: then the Mesque de Selim, the great touve of Oodeta, Saint Sophia, grander and more benotiful a bundred times than St. Poter's of Boxos, and above all this the white tower of Security, dominating the continents of Europe and Asia from the Dardandine to the Black

It was Thoughtle Gautier, I believe, who said, that to see the Baest sight in the world one ought to come and look at Constantinople from the ship's duck, but never to hand, maker penalty of seeing the worst night in the universe, This is, of course, an exaggeration, for there are things of great beauty in Constantingula; but it is a fact, however, that open landing one is greatly disappointed. The first trendle comes. at the custom-house. Ah, what recollections ! These who dore to complain of the customs offieach here had better go to Constantinople, and I not willing to wager my life that they will return with the claim that our officers are the kindest and next polite in the world. Those In the stantiscole are mule and impulie to the extreme. In addition to this the traveler is amonged by the most stupid and raticulous laws. se can imagine. For instance, one is not alloved to take a single book into Constantiumple: Your novels, guide books, your prayerbook, if you happen to have one, will become fiscated. When one leaves the city again by on the levils can be claimed just before our burking, but should one be obliged to go by rail they are list. I had in my value a small yelnone of Lord Chesterfield's letters, and "Lee Américaines of Clarette. These were probably consciered dangerous literature for the safety of the Ottoman empire, for they were setzed by the officials.

Since the fighting between Armenians and Furks, and the reports and alread of the massacres of Christians, musty all the newspapers have been utusing the Sultan aurenervoilly. He has been accused by some of being the most crist, theselfdirsty, ignoriant, barbaric monarch to the world. Nothing could be more unjust. With no thought at all of attemption an apole y for the policy of Turkey in Armeula, or he in dealings with the Powers of the world, it so tast to me that the Sultan himself has been represented for what he is not. In fact, the great treable now is that the Turks themselves find thin too kind, too legicnt, bee anxious to do right.

These who have uset Abdul Hamid II, and are assumined with the condition of affairs in the East, the furnism diplomate who have resided at Constantingle, all know that he is not a crud backerian, but, on the contrary, the most enlightened Sultan Turkey ever had and that he has done his utmost for the advancement and development of his empty— in many lines his influence has been above. The old and well-known industrial stablishments, such as the manufactury of military visities at Ferhane, the superir workshops of the Grande Mattrie of artiflery, and others, have always form product by the Sultan, while many new manufacturies one their establishment to his selicitude. In the last few years many improvements have been made in Constantinopie: Gardens and purks have been opened to the public, together with a mological and hotanical gardon. Waterworks, gas works, brameays, and a down other improvements have been made. In his desire to do much for Communitiesple and the large cities the Hulting however, did not mer be if the interests of the suburian and remintry people. Money in Elections.

HE conflictes of expenses tiled by cambidates in the ferral election in this oil; and State are very engered ice and significant. They recent a complition of affairs. expectably as to judicial and Logishtive offices, which is full of memory in the high. est public interests. We use ileratual perfectly well that elections invalve expenditures of noney, and we see no moson why party condidates should has make reasonable contributions to the support of the party campaign. But these contributions should in all cases he violantary, and should always be remined to the big timesnewspities of the canvoss. No encellibrate cheekl permit himself to contribute, under durest or otherwise, to any general fixed capable of being applied to other uses than the payment of the actual expenses of printing, pull matching, and the like.

The sworn sistements, filed with the Secretary of State reveal the fact that in handrads of years contributions were much by conditions visite in cargo at any real mercally One candidate for a supreme comes pulge-skip paid out $1,000, snother paid $5,150 will auraller expended $1,167; a condidate for justice of the City Court gave $1500 to. Turnmary Hall, and expended nearly one thousand makes on his own vectored and a Fasion consisters for the some office paid $5.047. There is no conceivable justification for any of these paramists. If there is any one office as to which the layest expenditure of insure is wholly instance sible it is the fudicial. That, of all prolithers of trust and responsibility should be beyond the yor's of our mate whose perception of its dignity is so low that he is republic of trying to tue it. The some thing practicly is true of expenditupes for some to the Legislature. One combitate for Berndor swears that he spent $2,288 to secure the office, Timothy D. Sudivan places has expanditures as a careficine for the same inflice at $2.000. Still smother consists for Seguitor, Who was defeated apont $6 300. Various could dates for Assembly owner to having expended onto room ing Insin five furnitied to one thousand duties early. These Who expenditures were in nearly exercises like glatimate should any man so cover a place in the Separc or Assembly of New York to be willing to put four elemental deliars. or eyen five hundred dollars, however h ! It goes will sent saying that the motive in only such cose is a memoring row -that the time to spent as an inco-drawnt on who has been return is expected in the form of "bonds." Yest much of the deliminate in highestion, the blockmining of corpermisses and the belinger of the tights and interests of the people, which have much. Aftern merecasis high its tappart in the greet which have be war into the Logislatics suffice in The manner berg-disoboses.

The law requiring publication of the expenses of case didnes has done something. It more he, for abote the coulcomplained of. but the result has not in any real sense but filled the expertations of its framers, and it is obvious that the subchievous practice need he shall with in some more director fushion if it is ever to be appreciately acreated. The question as to less this is to be done is not equity answered. has excitable the problem to not involuble, and we may be sethat some effective method will get be derived for limiting the use of money by cambidates consistently at once with their personal rights and the true interests of community

The Meaning of the Atlanta Exposition.

Time wonderful thing about the Atlanta exposition is, that it exists. When we remember that thirty years ago the city lay in access and that the shells of Sherman survey were hostling. over the Piedmont Hills, where the exposition new stands, we cannot but be supposed at the energy which has received and carried out surconfully this great outerprise. It is in overy seme a romarkable object-lesson of Southern progress. If sets forth the industrial, educational, scientific, and secul development of the people, and proclams their purposes and separations. It affords no ellectration of the recoperative energy of the American character, which is in itself a prophecy of coming dominion. Its effort upon the fature of the South will be immone. but its effect open the nation at horse will be even greater. Its jamediate offers will be to dissipate meconceptions of conditions at the Seath which have operated by its linet. It shows as conchadedly that the cotton States have accepted inschen bless and are determined to make the most of their opportunities and resources, that capital must investibily flow in, and the general prosperity of the country bevasily incremed, as the result of growing our cord in the prosecution of enterpress of commi-Interest.

Francisco Sintes in all are more or her prommostly represented in the organition. Threeof these have buildings for exhibition purposes, and four offices have expertures designed for the entertainment of visitors, and for the representation to a minor may of their permine inberests. The chief interest of the expesition as an ambedience of the weaterful pergress of the South lies in the exhibits of the States of Georgia, Leniviano, Alabama, Arkamas, and Florida, theorgia, in the nature of the case, hubbs the van. The great heibling of the Georgio Manufacturery Association is a revolution of what has been accomplished in that State during the last trenty five years, which mentestemble over a rigitor. Recay article exhibited in the building is the product of fivergine will or of thorgan cot. Of come the exhibit of system manufacturers forms a peculiar arresetion. It shows in a wonderful way how rapally these manufacturers are advancing in that Blate. One could speed a week in this building whose in studying the results of theorets someprise and industry William calumating the subject. But it is not soverely in certain and worker falseles that one flash very much to surprise him. Practically exercitions that is necessary to the presention of the various forms of industry and to the comport and convenience of seriety is made or grown in this State. All lurge of dischinery, some of it of the most deligate emateurs in, saw-null hardwares, those and corn will machinery, pumps, gain and colton presses, legther belting, furniture of every kunk entraceed oil and by products, fortilic ers, stover, sloss, pottery, brick and tile, with many other lines of manufactured productsall the variety of articles, in fact, which enter later use and consemptions are on exhibition. and one, confemplating the entitles easily realizes the justice of the claim that Georgia is now, and is bound to be in the fature, the emple State of the South

The exhibition has a proudul value as reventing the resources and possibilities of States about which the people of the North know little or nothing. Take, for instance, the exhilds of Arkinson. We selden hear of this State except in connection with a lynching-less or some couption of prize highters. The general iden is that society is disordered, that lawlessness is prevalent, and that the State is nowing little progress. But in some respects the exhibit of this State is even more comarkable than that of Georgia, especially as illustrative of agricultural development. The fruit display. for instance, is a revelance to north-nitureste. Then are nearly sevent's varieties of upples, all er lang sees hard to unme ban seguillees system quisite flavor; pears, grupes, and many other varieties of fruit which are grown in the State

Agrenitorally the State is equally rick, growing as it does all the products of Opin. Intime, Illinois, and Kames. The expection exhibit includes fifty-one varieties of corn, vegotaldes of every nort and theoription, and of marvefous size, dairy products, etc. Therener, beckies, flor samples of the mineral wealth of the State. AT IS SAPOLIO?

It is a solid handsome cake of scouring soap which has no equal for all cleaning purposes except in the laundry. To use it is to value it ...

What will SAPOLIO do! Why it will clean paint, make oil-cloths bright, and give the floors, tables and shelves a new appearance. It will take the grease off the dishes and off the pots and pans. You can scour the knives and forks with it, and make the fin things shine brightly. The wash-basin, the bath tab, even the greasy kitchen sink will be as clean as a new pin if you use SAPOLIO. One rake will prove all we say. Be a cleave homsekeeper and try it.

THE LARGEST BREWERY IN THE WORLD.

"PABST-MILWAUKEE."

An artist traveling abroad went to Germany to find the artistic side of the browing industry. Upon his return he declared that after diligent search be feel been " unable to find a brewery." From common report, he had been led to believe that Germany was supreme in the production of a beverage which is an characteristically Teutonic as pulque is Mexican. A traveler in England determined to see Burton. He found a large collection of small, dingy buildings, a series of long shods, a network of railmod tracks. large quantities of empty barrels, and withal an aggregation of energous lusiness enterprise, but without other once and without the immunity of the establishment making itself apparent. It is indisputable, popular impression. notwithstanding that the browing business, as conducted. in America, is incomparably in advance of anothing which the old countries can show, and there is not another comtry in which can be found a collection of massive, imposing, practical, and elegant buildings equal to those Phystrated in the bird's eye view of the Palat Browing Com- all of which was consumed locally, most of it in one small pany, of Milwankee. We of America are modern; we which have passed Contrary again to the very general impression, in the browing industry to day there is most absolute and serupulous cleanliness. Cleanliness has become a scientific necessity. A mult-house to-day has become a mechanical triumph; It is one complete machine where even the air is washed and filtered before it is permitted to touch the sprouting gmin. The yeast, with which the housewife used to be familiar, is grown from the single, microscopic, selected germ found by experiment to be perfect, grown in ster)fixed apparatus our pure culture, and is the production of as intricate and delicate electific investigations as are necessary in the determination of a trace of organic matter in the crystalline water of a living spring. Even the cold, which is "manufactured," that the silent storage casks containing the amber product may remain at the proper temperature the year through, is produced by a medousism of ico-machines so excoolingly intricate in their development, it seems as though the mechanical engineer and the physical scientist had been blossed by the god of invention.

Think of a single business imilitation which uses the product of a hundred thousand serm of toricy annually; which uses nearly two million posteds of hope, which our sumes a hundred thousand tota of coal; which ships daily to all parts of the world an average of seventy-five car-lends of layer beer; an institution whose empty packages, if packed into care, would form a train one hundred and sixty polles long; an institution whose production is so enormous that, although but twelve per cent, is bettled, it makes over forty million separate packages, mostly quarta. Such an Institution is the Pulst Brewing Company.

Fifty years ago, when the Palist Hrewing Company was founded, their product amounted to approximately three honelred barrels per year, none of which was bettled, and garden. To day the product is three lendered burrels per have seized every scientific attainment of the century. hour. It is useless to go into the details of enterprise, of put it to practical use, and have developed a perfection in listelligent application and business development, into the show to day, a recent of the scirure of every new idea, applying experimentally every theory of progress, holding to that which is good; and a round of broad-minded; greezservined in success.

It therefore ceases to be a coincidence that the largest brewery in the world should be located in Milwaukee, but is the natural sequence of cause and effect, made possible by an intelligent approxistion by the brewers themselves of the advantages which the location offered.

It is the Pabet Browing Company which has made Mitwasker herr famous, and while there are other brewing compunies there which have followed in the wake of the larger institution, the Palest Brewing Company has not only maintained its prestige as regards magnitude, but stands at the front in quality also-a fact which is conceded by connilaseurs. It is awing to this fact that the knowing ones usually designate their preference by saying Pabst-Milwaukse instead of merely asking for Milwaukse beer; for there seems to be an irresistible temptation on the part of certain retail dealers in this product to substitute any other Milwaukee beer, or even a beer brewed to quite a different city, for the original product, unless the consumer. sees to it that the name of Palist is on the label. It is curiwhat it is, became it is simply a record of progress which. In fact, there is in a Colorado city a brewery named the is characteristic of every great industry which America can Milwoukes Brewing Company. It is simply truling upon the regulation of Milwaukee, and is a fraud on its very her, but the public is not sufficiently apprised of the imposition which is being practiced upon them. The clearing was not large. Around it circled the dark for est walk with the railroad chaving a narrow around through on one side and the shid coul on the other; while a suvering line of suiver-dappled affect jointed not the way that the cross

The Summe Brown residence was what is known as a "shark."

Di was larger than most sharks, however, having three bedrooms, a kitchen, and a dining-room. If was made of "shakes," which gave it a picture-up took. It was lined and ceiled with strong, white muslin to prevent the entrance of saw-dust.

When Mr. Gilder enterest the dining-room his glance went to the neatly-laid table with a bowl of eglantine in the center; from that to the white walls with wild " languag-backet" vonetrained over them from the lattle painted cans in which it grew, to the pale drifts of unableadair fern growing in circums; the wild hop-vines climbing over the open windows. There was a vasc full of scarlet columbine, and another of wild, resecolured clover.

Then his eyes came with sudden surprise to Hidenie—and went no further.

After suppor that evening Mr. (idilar walked around the receiving aimlessiy. He had his hands in his packets and was sucking a cigar. There were at least seventy five men in the cump, and not one with whom he could have a thought in common. They were assembled in various shacks, playing nords and drinking whisky.

He walked down to the creek and set on the bridge, and asked binself if he could endure a year in each a lode, even for the fortune he expected to make. He walked a tiltie way out the skid-road, but the skids were grossy; so he torusk and went lock in a terrible diagram.

He told houself that he would go to his shack and write to Constance—he expected to marry Constance—and describe the place he was in: Elle was a sweet and tember woman. She would sympathize with him.

On his way to the shack he passed the shells, open on one side, where the huge built used on the skilt read ways resting in their stalls. He paused to look at them.

Something light in the duck of one of the stalls attracted his glance. It moved and came toward him.

It was Midonie, in a short, full skirt and high leads.

"I've been in to see the buils," she wild, simply. "I remeevery night. They all know me, but old libre 's my favorite." Gilder would have laughed, but something in her value dept him silent. She stooped and justled the buil grathy, the turned his bood, breathing heavily, and licked her hand. "His broath is sweet," she said, banding upon him. "He likes to have me at on him. tile turned for head with a sion, easy movement; it struck him that it was set upon for absolut, bandtiful throns like a lity. "I read and study. And there's always the forest,"

"It must be very lonely," said Ollder. He was leaning on the lare, looking down on her. His eyes were full of her compelling beauty.

'She united. "One one't he landy with the formt at me's door," she said. "Of course the mill and the whole clearing are....."

She stopped, laughing. Gibber's glance followed here over the supplied dwcks, the ugly mill, the tell, dusty brakes, and the great charred examps lifting their black forms overywhere to the smast. Not one thing of bondy—except the one to which his eyes returned with a thrill of pleasure.

"But fifty yards in any direction," she went on, bringing her glance buck to his, " and you are in the forest. I than't believe you know what our forests are like. They're as deep and dim and still. The mose is like a pale-group velvet carpet, and the great trees go up, as straight and close together, two bundred, three hundred fort—"

"That is one of your 'bosm' stories," he interrupted, with an amusel smile

"R's a true cos," she replied, uniling, too, but breathing stilly. "And the smallght only gets through enough to its on the cose in they, gold shapes. Gilder would have been annued had he not been so touched.

A man who is both touched and amused is interested.

He walked with her to her door. All the windows showe out like brass. The dusty forms took on a sublem quivering glory of color. Amethyst clouds were breaking spart in the full tous of the trees. He followed her into the dining-room.

"I'll coming in to see your backs," be said.

She hesitated. It was a real blush that came now. *Preset very many," she said; she still stood hesitating. Then she lifted her head with a movement that would have been laughty in any other woman, and walked to a door at one end of the room, he following her, and thoug it open.

"This is my study," she said, with the air of a queen. "No one has ever lessn in here. It's not in order for visitors; but you may some in."

"Thank you," he replied, entering.

It was a tiny room, not more than eight feet square. The floor was covered with blue-striped matting. There was consmall window, curtained with some thin blue stuff. Deticate vises were outlined against it. The walls were fined with leviz. In the centre of the room was a small home-made table, painted white. A wooden chair, also painted white, was drawn close to it. Gibber walked about the room, looking at the books. They were all good, but some of them around him. He had expected to find Langfellow and Whittier; but he was unprepared for Resettl, Tempera, Dante, Milton, Hugo, Eliot, and translations of Virgil and Goethe.

Sidenie sat down and rested for ellows so the table, emking for chin in her pairs. She looked at him stendily as he went about the room; there were burning questions in her open Presently be brought a chair from the dining-room and satdown opposite for.

The table was littered with magazines. A book lay open, with the leaves pressed down.

"You have read all those books it he asked.

" Many times."

He foolt another look at the shelves.

You have read more deeply than most college women.
What, of all these leads, is your favorite?

She hald her hand, pulse downward, on the open book. It was the fillible. It was open at the fourth chapter of Solomon's Song.

"I thought you would name Tomyers or Longfellow," be said, after a surprised allows. "Or. perhaps, Rossetti. Toertainly expected that you would name a pect."

"There is no postry like that." She kuned toward himpressing her hand in the book. There was a fire in her eyes. "There never will be use pasts like the men who wrote it. They were not afraid."

moring in she majesty through the trees. The little clearing was beautiful in the well light. Samehow the place did not seem or mescherable to Other as he sat on his front steps, smoking, far take the night, and thinking of the girl whose light shows out through the vines that climbed over for window.

The following day was Sunday. Every one size and breakfacted when Gibler resched the dining room. He was connaives of a feeling of disappointment when his breakfast was brought in by Mrs. Sumus Brown, justeed of Stdonie.

In a few minutes the girl rame in. Her face was glowing; her hright hair was damp with dow and fog

"I expected to find occurs of flowers in the forest this merning," she said. "But I came upon this one beautiful orchid, and then I desired no others. Builde it all other flowers seem pale and not worth carrying home."

Six lab! toward him a most beautiful specimes of the Origins haven's, as orchid found in deep, damp places in the Washington forests. It was of a rich, vor purple. Its fragmers was at once ravishing and elective.

Other examined it with delight

"I found it these miles from here," ment on Science, glocfully as a child. "It grows in a disp glee, short in by dark, old trees, with a golden-green mose all over their tranks and over the carth; and long, silver nose beings from all the branches. There is not a would in those; even the birds come and lock at you and do not sing. Don't you want to go with ins scene Sunday !"

Mrs. Susses Brown opened the door.

"Well, good grieve?" she utrialisted. "Where yet him !
It's high time you come! If you git any finetish read! I bet you fooded the whole mornin' away an' never our! thought o' limetish road."

"I list forget," said the girl, slowly. The glow went out of her face. She took the could from Gibber and went into her room. He heard the door close between these.

"I power see her best!" grunnlikel Mrs. Samus Brown.
"Always a gittin' her feelin's hart over nothio."

Then Silder fell to thinking seriously of the girl and of her

"Bhe is like the orchid," he thought, "that has sprong up in the deep, dark forest and wastes its delicate beauty and fragrence."

Two weeks later Gilder was loaving the dining-room and morning when Sidotic come in like a whirlwind. She was breathing swiftly with excitement.

"Oh, come?" she explained: "There's just time! They're coming! They're bringing up old Ginger."

She was gone like a flash. Gilder followed ter. He had not the faintest surmbe as to what or who one Ginger was—it was sufficient for him to know that the girl bade him come.

She sped before him down the skid-road until she reached a curve at the top of a long hill. There she poised on a skid, in a quiver of excitement, and looked back, signaling him to histen.

He reached her side brouthless with his run.

"What is not

"It's said Ginger!" she punted. "I've been so afraid I should not be here when they brought him! Oh, look! I lan't it grand! I but't it worth coming males to see!"

tillder looked. Twelve splendel boils were straining up the sleping incline, dragging behind them an immense tree—larger than anything be had ever imagined in the tree line. Several men—look tenders, built-punchers, skid-grousers—ran behind it, grossing the skids, grading the built, poshing here and pulling there with cont-books. There was much shouting, noteh creaking of closine, much straining of noble animals and switting of his postrie. The must be stood out in their backs and mide like ropes, their eyes rolled, their feet dipped and clong and swantide to now factions. The blood sported under sharp, and often crud, pricks from the stool goals. The lugge color both sled, grossing and creaking up the skids. The grouser run about of the built, steeping constantly to drop aphades of grosse on the skids from long vession publies.

"They're a comin' " he yelled to Submic " Better git out of the way! Leed-on out three! That and 'Il fig around an' lait yell. Hey, min! Look-se out three!"

But Sidonic pressed preklessly near until titlder, in whose verse some of the girl's eatheriness was communing to burn, took a fless hold of for arm and drew Ler adde. She was troubling with excitement, "Oh, see old Blue!" she criss! "Br's the off-winder! Just in made!" And she waved her her hief possibly in the parting brute struggled by.

With a final, triumphout effort and plunge the tree was beene to its destination and by notionless on the skills.

The breadding went soldenly out of the girl. The fire died out of her face. "What a pity?" she said, looking down gracedy at the fathen coder. "Oh, what a pity! And we have been enjoying it! Let us yo hards."

As they walked along the looked back regretfully. "Poor old Vilager ! He was the king of the furnit all those years. Two men het their level bringing him down from the skies."

"Ah!" said Other, with our markens confirmation. "One doesn't think of a place tile this having its tragelies?"

"Oh, doesn't one?" flushed out the girl, instantly, with a great some. "I know what you think. You think we are riods. You think we are in a proces? Let up tell you that you are in a green, two-a givery me narrow and so does that you'll sever get out ! You have no joy in nature ; you have no for in yourself ; you have no joy in Got ! You look at a thewer or a word, and you say it's bountiful or ugly, as you think; you look at a molds amond, or a great forcet, or a warlet somet, and you see nothing but the thing itself? You do not see God in anything , you have no religion. You belong to some church, probably, because your father does, or your author dust, or your great grandmother did before you were born, and if you were usked what you believe, or what your church believes, your realists's till of William warred. "You have no joy is present," went on the girl, pusicentely. "You can't he above an hour without being burel. You have to be amused like a child !"

More sprang up the steps, lost Gibber rangin her hand and half it, everything her to turn. She looked down on him under frowning brown. Her two aboved; her ayes fluxed with a blue fire. She was must be notiful.

Older smiled at law with that bruderness that comes to a man's face when he is beginning to have unconsciously. "You're a bayer," he said, thrilling deliciously as her hand struggled to release itself. "You're very, very terrible, and I'm afraid of you."

Then be let ber go. She gave him a florce look and flashed into the brane. He went away, still aming. "She's perfect new," he said. "That little sport of temper has made her needed."

Mrs. Suress Heaver come into the dining-room and act down. She was beating butter and onger together. Sidenie was arranging the table for dinner.

"For puty's sales?" exclusioned her mother, "What a little dals of purkles? "S that all yub're u-gren' to put on?" "Sheli-h! There goes Mis' Gesten Brown by. I wonder what alls'er. She heated in box sour 's swill. I guess she's last a boarder, an' 's booken' in here to see 'I we've got him."

It was September. Gilder had not only endured three mentles in the least of a Washington forest, but had found them in he the happing months of his life. He was in love with Salvani.

Constance was his cousin, and she had promised to marry him. It was a kind of family arrangement. They had a mild, comfortable affection for each other-most confortable. (Hider, for instance, had move felt murder in his boart while walching Constance waltering in the arms of some other man. That is the surest test of love. When a man can be indifferent to that, either his love or his nature is of the milk-and-naternort. Gibber, considering walting a bore, was grainful to every some who took Constance off his hands at a ball.

He went to see her regularly; and kissed her dutifully, with much calcules and a certain ploisure. She was a pretty weman, dataly and patricism. But all her kisses distilled income kiss could not have sent the delicious fire rolling along his veins like one touch of Sidonic's small, firm hand and he was absolutely sure that she was the kind of girl to hold him to his promise.

When he had left Roston to make his fortune in color shingles there had been the understanding between them that he was to remain a year and then return and marry Constance.

Now he knew what love was. On Puget Sound the summer nights are long, purple twilights that soon after midnight silver into down. At one o'clock the birds other their first drower notes, and dawn is felt, rather than seen, coming up the oust. Night after night, as the summer went on, Gilder had sat with Sidonie in her tiny study till midnight. There was no society. here; no one to suggest impropriety and steal the pure sweetnew out of their intercourse.

Gilder had taught the girl much; but she had taught him more. He had drawn from her the sublimity and the exaltation of love, life, and thought. He felt himself rising, a strongor and a better man, out of his old self. He had the sublime exultation of one who mounts into clearer and higher air; who climbs to great and lonely beights, and finds the world well. lost for the passionate, still runture of being alone with Coand of seeing with new vision the beauty and the majesty of His smullest work.

And the girl who had led him up these heights—he loved her so be troubled when he went into her presence. He worshiped her. Often he could not lift his eyes for what was in themwhat he dared not let her see. Often he could not speak-for what he dared not let her hear. He had not forgotten Con-

The thought of her, and of his aflegiance to her, tortured him. He could put it from him during business hours and cares, and during the sweet, delicious hours he spent with Sidonie; but when he was alone it became almost unendurable. Constance—after having known Sidente / A pale, odorloss tilly-after having found a rare and fragrant orehid in the kniely place where field himself had set it! Who would go back and dwell with the many in the valley, after having dwell alone with one other on the heights ?

As Mrs. Sunina Brown spoke, Olider passed the dear on his way to his shack. She saw him, and cout a shrowsl, curious look at Sidonie. "Yub needn't binsh so."

The girl went on arranging the table.

"I say I po'u'dn's blook so! There's no call for bloshin' so se'ry time yob set eyes on him. Yuh'll have the whole camp a-outlithed it. Year face willow flow. It will be different I held spoke up. But he ain't yet. Has be ?"

The girl was silent.

"I my, bus be ! Why don't yub answer me! Aich?"

"Oh, mother I" exclaimed the girl in sheer hitterman of ecul. "If you ever ask me that again I'll go away and never econe back.

Oh, yuh will, nigh ?" Mrs. Brown had a frightened look; but she kept right on sagging. "That's a pretty way to talk to your mother. I'd title to know 'f I also't a right to find out his intentions. I can't open my mouth but you go to flar'n' up like a suigher match. The so 's love with you he can't keep tile eyes off o' yets, so' I don't see why he don't speak up. I don't go much on men that make love an' make love, an' never speak up. First thing you know he'll up an' learn on' go back East, an' the Gustien Browns 'll go round a-tre-house b'exuse Sidende's face turned white. She went suckingly out of the room. Her respect for her mother was beautiful, and her patience great ; but this was unbearable.

After an early suppor that evening Gibbs went into the ditie entry. "The commer is going," he sald, "and you have never taken me to the place where the cretails grow. Let us go tonight. The moon rives at nime." She rase instantly, "We just the night to go," she said, potting on her bat. "We will go down the skid-road. The men are still at work. They've been falling all day. If we burry we may see the last true come down." They walked as rapidly as the greated shife would permit, and were seen down in the furnet. Presently they beard shouting so if in warning. A voice yelled, "All right. Go it !" Then there was silence, broken only by an ane beating through the heart of a tree in regular, rhythmic strokes. "We're just in time," eriod Shionie, joyfully, springing around a curve. A mighty fir was ready to fall. Already there was a toppling movement among its highest bengles. The men had all withdrawn from the place where it was agpected to fall, save the one who was giving it its last blow. They were roughly-clad men. Their flamed shirts were relied back from their brown, bairy breasts. Each shood with knotted bands on his hips, resting one knee, like a horse. They breathed grandly, with swelling threats and chests. They wure their rule elething with strong, unconscious graces.

Every man took off his hat as Sidenie flashed into view, with a gleam of sublen pleasure in his eyes. Two or three beat down the tall brukes with their fact to make a place for her. She glided into it smiling. Gillifor stood close beside her. Then all eyes were turned upon the tree.

There was a last blow, a warning shout, and the chopper sprung backward. There was intense stillness at the slim top started downward; then a soft noise, like the far-off shivering of the sea as it comes up the tide-lands, swelling gradually honder and londer, as the tree cut its way swiftly through the air and the tops of other trees. At the last it was like the roar of surf on rocky cliffs. It reached the earth with a crush of thunder that went echoing away in long waves of sound through miles of forest, and laid its beautiful tip three hundred and fifty feet from the spot where it had stood for a thousand years, with the sap throbbing out of its several volus, Shouting and jesting, two or three men leaped upon the prostrate body, and soon the saws went rasping through the bark, feeling their way roughly to the wood underseath.

"Let us go on," said Gilder. They turned into a parrow path or trail that led into the deeper forcet. They were followed by the clear ring of an axe beating its way into another tree. But soon this sound, and all others, grow fainter, until they ceased altogether. The early sunset was upon them, and already the sweet coolness of evening had sprung up about

It was midnight. For three hours they had been lest in the forest, wandering aimlessly. Now they had paused in a dim gien, into which the mescalesma struggled faintly. Their feet were in a curpet of selt veives most. They were corrounded by great trees, from whose branches long fragments of moss descreed. Here and there glimmered a dappled, gleenly alder.

"It is like the place," said the girl, with a troubled sight but not it. We may as well not a while. I am very tired."

Giller trembled. "It is a beautiful place," he said, "but I think we ought to go on. Lean on me, and we will walk

But what good will it do f' she said. She leaned on bito tike a child, and they walked a little way. "We may only wander farther from bosts. It will be better to sit down and rest till daylight. Tu se tired."

We sight to go on," said Gilder, uncertainly.

You're afraid they will be sueasy about us," she said, earnestly. "They won't. Mother never worries about me. Ourse I was lost all night and she didn't warry ; so, of course, she wen't when you're with me.

Filisher was salend. She felt his strong, deep breathing.

Let us sit down? she insisted, gently. "The mose is so soft, and Pos so tired."

He tends off his reset and spread it on the passe. He sunk tion it and drew her down beside him, beeping her hands in his warm palms.

"You are cold," she said; "you are trembling." "I am not rold," he asswered her.

Then they were look allent. The night was very sweet. After a little she said, low:

"I am afraid. Two perer loca afraid before." "Lean upon me," said Gilder. His voice shoul with bendermost. "I will take care of you." "I know," she whopered. She knelt up leaning her soft shoulder upon his broad and turning her face from him-"How award it is !"

"Aye," unit Gilder, "It be sweet,"

He pushed her shove to her elbow and strained her arm as a tender father might have done-protectingly.

"You are trembling," she reported.

He had level for passionately for three months, yet had searcely leached her basel. It was small wunder, he thought. that he should trouble.

They sat then with the public stillness of the forest upon Neither speke. He present his hund, still with that careeding movement, upon her arm. His tips were maken to atlant, doep ondary to low fragrant hair.

Homelimes there arises a moment of great and exalted passion that changes a whole life.

Only the day before Other had decided finally that he must save the girl he leved. A letter had some from Constance. He had laid it away corpored. When he answered it he would tell ter be was coming bouse to marry ber. But first he would barn a few short lower of happiness—a few short hours with Mid-tale. Only to in near her, to look at hir, to feel her gown timely lates as she passed -that was all by asked. The nurmoring of execution insects swells into one harme choir-but all so well, so far owner! It is all and it is all silence. One hours the fall of the timed needle on the gree, the coroning pressure of one leaf upon another, the curve of each blade of grass-if one knows how to hear God's

After a long time Gilder spoke. His tone was that of a year who stands, rapt and enalted, lifted out of himself, on some noble mountain bright-the world, with its little fevers and passions, its petty hopes and ambitions, beneath his feet.

"Dearest," he said, " we are in Areadie; but we must go and from it."

"We exact," the answered. "It is ours forever."

"Dearest, dearest! You break my boart! How can I will TOO BOW !" You can tell me anything-new."

He presed her to him with passionate, despairing tender-

"I learnet "-his voice trembled-" I have trial to keep away from this hour ; I know it could not last."

" It will last," she east.

"Sidenie, Stienie! I cannot marry you." The wuris struggled from him.

"I knew that," said the girl, simply. "I have felt it all the summer. But it does not matter. It cannot take this hour from us! It cannot take our love from us! What one we ask that would be greater than only to have loved each other ! Itis our hearts and our souls that love; the world cannot separate thrse. Wherever we go, this hour shall go with us. There is nothing we may not endure ason."

He leased his mouth down upon hers, and presend it there, ectioniess, and prayed ellently-with a choke in his throatthat much have shaken the very angels.

So they set until presently there came a white glimmer along the tops of the trees

"It is the daws," breathed the girl, stirring happily, as a hird does in its nost. "Now, I can find the way. I know where the east is."

There followed a wretched week for Gider. He keet away from Sidomis. He watched her going quietly on with her work, pair but serone. There was an anfortunate girl with a young child in a shark near by. Her parents had cast her off, and no woman would go near loy. No woman save the one Gitder loved! She went constantly, day and night, to care for her and the calls. Meeting her sometimes on these errands of divine merry, Gibler was struck by the new look of austority on her face. At such times he could have fallen at her feet and kined the bem of her gown. She reminded him so keenly of the woman she had meet wished to be-the motion of Christ.

At last a night came when he nerved blinself to write to Constance. It was a warm, purple entures night. The sun had gone down in a crimon haze, the twilight had deepened to fluid. He sat on his doorstep watching the light in Sidente's window, over which the vines were still green.

Crickets chirpsel in the new growth of form that had sprung up since the late rain. A night-bawk sunk upon the air, utter ing its mouraful, musical note. It was Naturday night, and all the animarried men had gone to Whatcom to spent salmen; every one else had retired. Only that our little jush of light glimmered across the darkness, leading, Gilder thought, to beaven the heaven from which he was abut out forever

He rese suddenly and went in, closing the door. His tamp was lightest. He thing himself into a clusir and seized his pen. His lips were set together, hard.

Then his eyes fell upon Constances letter that had lain, uniquened, a week on his table. He opened it mechanically-

Ten micutes later he was groping like a blind man to Nidenie's door. Before he reacted it she came out, on her way to the mother and cidid. As he met her he took her in his arms and drew her close-class.

"Let me go," she cald, sweetly and gravidy, "The child newla me.

"I med you, too," he whispered, in a shaken voice. "Let me go with you. I have the right. There is no reason now why I should not go with you to life's end."

He felt the quick, responsive pressure of her hands then.

"In there not ?" the naid.

" Rearest, trust me. I do not choose to tell you what was between us. There is nothing now, Will you trust nin without knowing serve than that ?"

the cont upon the treast in her sweet, childish way. "Why not ?" she said. "It is at fashion to wish to know little things. That is for little natures, I wish to know only great things—and the greatest of all I already knew—that we live each other."

Then fell upon them one of the sileness that (loci loves-because there is nothing like them cutede of heaven.

THE HOMEWARD JOURNEY ON CHRISTMAS EVE.

An Coristman Day approaches there are evidences of a coming festival on every side; evidences which almost a blind man can see. On the day before Christman those evidences are no general that he is a murked man who has not a burdle or so under his arm and whose perkets do not bulge with my derious packages. As for the women, there are none such so distinguided; every one of them, no matter what her condition of life, has with her a tell-tale parcel, a brunch of boily, or a sprig of mistleton. A female who makes no proparation for the great axisi and religious feetical is not really a woman ; formantely there are so few of them that we need not bother to invent a name under which to classify them. In the streets, in the stops, on the horse-curs and the cable-cars these bustling men and women may be seen intent upon the business of the season. But it is in the elevated cars that the most interesting of them are to be encountered. When a person lives so far from the shopping district that so elevated train must be taken, then you must be pretty sure that that person will do all the buying possible on each venture from home. Therefore when they go back they are laden with all their gathered spoils-laden as at no other season of the year.

And so it has be his Christman picture. In his selection he showed discriminating knowledge. He would have been luckier, however, if he had made his sketches on the train that went before or the one that followed the one represented, for then he would have been sure to have seen a real typical elevated railroad-train load on the day before Christmas. On his train there is too much room, even though not all the passengers have sents. On the two other trains mentioned the reader may be condident that there was not even standing room remaining. It is a curious thing about elevated-railway travel that every now and again a train will pass by comparatively empty. This is probably due to the fact that sometimes one train follows another so closely that the waiting pictforms couplied by the first train will not have had time to fill up before the second comes along. So the passengers in the first are crowded unduly, while those in the second train are in comparative comfort. It was in such a train as the second, no doubt, that the artist made the sketches for his picture. But the train following this would again surely be crowded, for there would have been a longerinterval, in all probability, before it came along, and the waiting platforms would have had time to fill up.

A COUNTRY CHRISTMAS IN THE SOUTH.

HEAR the fiddles hummin'—
Holly hangin' high;
(Knowed it was a-comin'
Fourth o' last July—
Christmas b How the fire
Blazes, red an' blue!
(Take your place, Maria; Who's been kissin' you?)

Christmas in the country
An' Christmas in the sky;
Mistletoe is temptin'
An' the holly hangin high!

Banjos—fiddles playin';
Almost shake the shed!

(Moll. what's Dick been sayin', Makes your cheeks so ted?)

Now the dancers rally—
Liveliest set in town.

Trip it light, Miss Sally!

Come in, Betsey Brown!

For it's Christmas in the country
An' there's kissin' on the sly;
Mistletoe is temptin'
An' the holly's hangin' high.

Music's goin' steady—
Now, the figgers call.
Ladies, are you ready?
Swing your partners all!
Lively, now! . . . Miss Molly.
Come in with the girls!
(Dick's been kissin' Polly;
Rumpled all her curls!)

For it's Christmas in the country.

Music in your feet!

An' the kissin's mighty sweet!

Now the dancin's over—
Fiddles stopped their fuss;
Talk 'bout folks in clover—
Take a look at us!
Hick'ry-nuts a-crackin',
Egg-nogg—apple-pie;
Pretty lips a-smackin'—
Heaven on the sly!

For it's Christmas in the country
An' it's Christmas in the sky;
An' the mistletoe is temptin'
An' the holly's hangin' high!

L THE COURSES CREEK.

The cold December night was setting down over a stragging little Russian village that countried desolately in the snowy wilds a day's journey from Samura, when a troibe, or three-herse sleigh, containing a single traveler and a driver, brought up before the one ma of the place, with an imperative half to the invisible proprietor of-" Sumovar!"

As the traveler, somewhat stiff from the cold, burst into the earm public room, closely followed by the half-frozen john, a crowd of evil-tooking does and pessants that were hovering about the clay store scuttered limitaly to make room, and began weartly speculating among thurselves, in far corners, regarding the stranger's probable rank and wouldh.

What with the foul-smelling sheepskine of these poblics and monifolia, and the steach of only working that was going on in the next resiz, not to mention the nosaume squalor of the some Belf, the atmosphere of the place was snything but appetiting. The stranger, however, appeared not to notice his mercandings, his interest centring on the hasty preparation of his test and the contents of his mean-time.

He was a large, powerfully built, tandesone man, young, and with the bearing of a notdeman. He was soveleped in a large shubir, a fur polime reaching to his bests, while his bend was protected by a fur cap and maddif—the latter a third cloth hand-piece with long ends to wrap about his threat.

Having eaten and drunk his fill, and placed a descu repreke to the witherest pains of the service old proprietor, he announceset has randimen for departure.

What I boulght I' oried the somest driver. "On, one of noble birth, not to-night !"

Yes; to-night-now " replie the traveler, impatiently. "Were you not told that my minded is important, and that I rould not stop before reaching frincian !" "But, O Lord God, not to-night !" exportulated the fright-reset insuchit. "There will be a soow storm - it is already beginning—and we may be ket and frome. It is all of teenty would be the cost stopping-place; and sh, master of cohis birth, there are indices! For the love of that, let us remain

"Here—in this vils pince i" and the traveler glaunid around with an expression of diagrest. "Comm now, you shall have ton ruliku extra.

Ob, excellency, you are most kind; but it is impossible ! I should be from it outen by the waves."

With an oath of exequipment the stranger turned away and approached the proprietor, who was aim the village postinnater:

"I am making a formed journey from Ogdenburg to Sizeran, and I have not a minute to loss," he explained. " Here is my podorejwaya (passport), which community in the maps of the Car, that I be supplied with post horas. You have seen the eriminal cowardee of my driver. Can you not provide no with senther who is not afraid of a little wind and asser ?"

Ah, I have my fears, your excellency," was the reply, given in a early tone. " It is a buil night-a very bad night. But I will see," and raising his voice by called out. " Is there any one here who can drive the noble courier of the Caar on his way to Bizeran ?"

There was no response from naming the spilen manifely and Hebrew peddiers.

"None of them knows the way," muttered the old man, apologetically.

That's a lie?' said the traveler ; "but the deell take you all ! I'll drive myself. I know the way, so fetch the horses. Here is aliver. Hurry,"

Although surprised, and perhaps not approving the plan, the postmaster could only obey the order, and in a short time fresh learness were being harnessed to the sleigh.

At this juncture one of the Jews, who was obler, better dressel, and more cleanly than his fellows, and who had swinn sibly been occupied with his devotions before an elect that hung on use of the low walls, approached the traveler as be was adjusting his wrops, and made a profound obesance.

What would you?" demanded the noble, burshly,

"Most high and excellent favored one of God," was the humble reply, in low, guarded tones, and with the accept of the Pole," I am a wayfarer like purredl, beaud for Perse and Moseow. Site made no direst charges for for sityiline revolutions, but accepted presents of rubbes, of which, it was told, she had a marvelous sufbestion. And pose of her putrem-a fact that but collaboral the juquiar interest rescuenting her -- received more of her favor than another.

It was unid in some quartery that her fortune telling operstime were only a made for her real rading-that the was a Rosdau spy or a nibilet. Others surmined that she had been banaled by the Car for other than political reaces

It was known that she had lived so the same style, during the past five years, to both Moscow and St. Petersburg. But with all the gossip no one even so much as suspected the truth regarding her strange life and her still stranger mission.

On many winter afterness, as size drives in the liefs behind her spirited Turtar borses, and wrapped to the chin in her rostly fors, Naida Kirshon gave a start of surprise and recognition as two men, cost of whom possessed a strikingly powerful physique, came out of a famous Parision club and stood for ment awaiting the approach of a fearer

She did not glace a second time in their direction, and in a nument they were left behind; but she had seen coough to put an end to her drive for that day.

She pused up the steps of her hotel with ners hants than was much with her, and, passing only to discard her wraps, ascended the grand staircase to the door of a room at the extreme year of the boson

Her knock was answered by a feeble command to outer. In a led at the far side of the room, which was comfortality but not elaborately furnished, lay an old man, sallow-ringed and naciated, and with the unmidakable feature of the Jew. He roughed and tried to sit up as the gypey girl entered, but fell back on the pillows with a mean of pain.

"It is not well to tax your strength so much, little father," mid the serves, with a trace of pity in his voice, as she stoud booking down into the invalid's exterious eyes, "You may need it all sucm."

"Alt, you must be quick," replied the shi Jew, weakly. "Old Skiavinski is not much longer for this world. You must find him som-very som, pretty one, or it will be no use-all will be town?

His eyes cleard, and be gave a Jong sigh of mental and physimi sagnish.

Suppose I should tell you that I have found him now !" The invalid looked up into her face engurly.

Tell ene; ie it so, Naida t" he askud. " No-it is too good to be true, after all these long years of search and waiting."

"But it is true-I am almost seriam," deciared the girl. "I saw him in the Bois da Bosslogne not thirty minutes ago. He has changed, but I knew hire-semething in the poise of his figure, or the gesture be made as he pained facing me, was like his attitude that night in the hibitho as he held out his under land and mid : Will you busings it, little enter i ith, I could mover forgot! it by giving you all the beautiful stacks of gold! Skinvisski, the merchant, was rich, pretty one; richer than any one knew and he is rich yet, for all he was mercilenly rebied, and has lain on his tack holpless and dying since that awful night when he was thrown to the walves, and churg for long hours to the limb of a tree to escape the ravenous brutes. And all he has shall be yours, pretty one, very som new. You seemd his life. that morning-you and the old grandams-whom he dragged his half-frozen losly into your warm kilettin-saved it for a little while, at least, till be could punish be numbered. It seems to me that this thought of revenge is the only thing that has kept me alive so long. I shall be glad to die, to end my meking, pain, after I have killed him who killed me. Oh, the joy it gives me to know that you have found him at last, Naida, little laughter! I shall keep the feeble breath within my body now till I have paid him my debt. Lure him to me here, by whatever strategy you please, pretty one, and then-then-not part but all, of the old Jew's gold is yours !"

The Pole lay deathly still from exhaustion after his labored speech, and Naida passed her hand seethingly over his house.

"I will go now," she said, after a manuscit's silence. "All will be as you wish very exec. Is there a notice in Paris," she added, proudly, " who would not obey the summons of Naida Kirzben!"

She passed from the room and along the intervening hallway into her own splended boudsir, where she rang for service and distatched a brief message ashtressed to "M. is Marquis Deschavelles, Jockey Cith."

"I wish to ask you," she said, an hour later, to this celebrated boulecardier, " who was the Russian in whose company I saw you this afternoon?"

"The Count Sergius Malakoff," was the reply, "who, five years ago, incurred the disfavor of the Case and found it best to place binned out of reach of importal authority. I am not informed as to the nature of the trouble. He has been five years in America. Last night he lost a bundred thousand fraction of the control.

"I wish him to call on me at once, mondour.

"That will be readly arranged, made misside," answeres the marquis. "He was much impressed by the passing plicaper of your boarty this afternoon, and impaired particularly concerning you. He will be only too happy, I am sure, to present himself at any boar you may designate."

"To-night, at nine," said the serven; " and I beg of you, measieur, to speak of the matter to so one save him."

The Marquis Descharelles bowel gravely.

"I am delighted to serve one se beautiful and giffed." he replied, survely, "however curious I may be of Court Mainkoff's good fortune."

"Tosok you ; not now sellen, my friend," she said, smiling.

"We gyption are strange people."

Aye, strange indeed; and Nable Kirahan, though cutwardly clauged and refined by her intellectual and worldly advantages, still possessed all the innate characteristics of her wild, Count Sergius Malahuff, promptly on the hour of his appointment, was unlessed into the magnificent reception-room of the grpsy's home. His patrician face betakened pleasure as he found himself amid familiar surroundings. Enurasous bearskins covered the floor, and the walls were hung with Russian works of art. The place eviscoed just such a fitting commingling of semi-barterion and civilization as might be expected of the Kleubin princess whose wealth and weird attainments had made for the talk of Parts. Count Malakoff turned at the sound of a step behind him.

"To a Russian who has been out of Russia for five years," and Naida Kirshan, "the eight of this pince should prove

He looked at her searchingly for an instant, and then his face lighted with recognition.

"You are the little Kirghin girl who dressed my wound in the kibillo that night?" he excluded. "I have not forgotten you. Your face was familiar when I first saw you to-day, but. I thought it only some chance resemblance. You were but a child then—you are a woman now. And what a wesnan!"

Her eyes fell before his admiring gase.

"I remember that you said you would not forget me," she said. "I still have the two rubbs that you gave me for my service, though the grandame criterated on her death bed that they were accurated."

"I recall that the grandame was not greatly taken with me," smiled Malakoff. "But you must tell us of pourself, and how you come to be in Paris with the world at your feet. I am flattered that you should have recognized are and asked me here."

A Significant Reunion.

Three have been many exhibitions in this country, in royal years, of a brombulay national spirit. But there has been nothing which compares, in significance and impressiveness, with the resvenient initiated by the forement husiness men of the metropolis, and indorest by the Southven press and heating representatives of Southern opinion, for a Joint garage in this city, on the 4th of July west, of the betermoof the Civil War.-I alon and Confederate.

What a speciacle such a authors' reason of the survivors of the glustic struggle of the statics will present to the world? No struggle in blancy everappealed so armely to sectional feeling or so intrusified; for a time, sertional positive and resentments, at that, it fell everywhere a stull of blood and trury - on the our side presents and desputy, and on both shottered house, without losel, orphonage, and open womals. In other lands struggles like this have perpetuated themselves for comprise to recid antagonisms. In social distintegrations, and aff the areagreism of intermedia strife. But here, with the interm of peace, the men who find fored each other in stabbors bottle idpoted themselves to the new conditions with no throught of further control, and now, at the end of a generation, there is not one survivor of the conflict amove the some quished who would not resent an imputation upon his liquity to the thig and all it stands for,

It means much very much, for our future is a nation that the patrosic spirit the ambelying sentiment of brotherhand - is their parassions and information the mustry force in our millional life. A people who you thus security to eye and close facility for grantee. Full-hearted Diendship over the graves of their itsul, slain in protocoted sectional conflict, and treat with confidence and hope the destine that sweets there. Herely allowing the lunks to lave ten per cent more poiss on the same deposit of bonds than they are not enlittled to will not bely the matter when the banks do not want what they can now get. The real hurden is that bankers in States where capital curus from seven to twenty per cent, cannot afford to make its that investment in a three percent, bond, in order to obtain outes of which it can make only one han and after that the notes based never return again to the bank that issues them, and consequently give that bank no facilities for further noteleading except such as are possessed to an equal degree by every other member of the community,

Of course the banks us a whole are not helped toward tothe ing the government of the function of isoning and redoesning the notes by being offered the privilege of investing $500,000,000 of capital in the provenment's three-per rent. bonds as the basis of intertrelemption. That provious of bonds, notwithstanding they hear a sort of half-rate interest, is not desired by the banks, but is a burden. Nor to any such purchase of bonds by them mersoars to make their ion is been of $500,000,000 of new today sefe. Therefor Mr. Chycland's proposal to get rid of the greenback formion by puring interest on it forester is unaccessory. The totality of the banks self-and State, and private stands for about $2,000 concern of hanking capital, including depositio, which is not for from eight-fold the quantity of new lank notes pressure to fill the gap created by withdrewing the greenback and the Sherman effect notes combined.

The real districtly lies in the fact that the hooks which liver most of the expitel and deposits, and are therefore best able to maintain yelengtion on the rates, are the large city finales, which are not in want of miles. They have bard work to keep out on loss their granuitous deposits on which they put no interest, and which in a few more targe upon $31,000,000 for a slag is bank.

The President's Amazing Omission.

Ar the time of the opartment of the Wilson-Gorman Tariff has now in force, President Chardsond denomend it. as altogether unsatisfactory, and as involving "corty perfidy and party dishount " In the message recently read to Congress be applicade that turiff as positively to perfecul;

The present sariff, has been in operation for a period of lifteen untils. It went into effect under exceptionally favorable confliction. In the expectation of large reductions of shales namer the new law, merchants laid supported only such amounts of dutiable goals as were absolutely recessary, and the result was that when the Wilson Gotman set become a law there were commons Importations. and, according to the promises of its framers. There ought to have been a great increase of customs receipts. But, instead of this there was a falling off in reconse. Under the first fifteen months of the McKinky law the receipts were $351 (200.20), and under the last Offices months ($500.00) Acre, while during the same period under the present has the portpic were $178.796,600. There have been only two months in the entire history of this law in which it did not produce a regular awardly dethat. The total shows including both internal revenue and customs revenue had been approximately, $12,000,000. This is the result of a low which Mr. Cleveland commends in contrast with the MrKinby law, which produced not only sufficient recenity to meet all the expension of the government, but show hand-

The expenditures of the government under the present administration have exceeded the receipts by $197.037,234. During the same period the bonded half-bridgess has been increased by $182,815,400, astersibly for the purpose of preserving the greenlack relemption famil. The estimated expenditures submitted in the annual book of estimates for 1897 show on increase over the escionics, for 1996 of more Haar #10.500.000, and nearly: #21.000,000 ever the appropractions ands to the last Congress for the current year. The supreme question of the hour is as to how the grave financial convigency thus presented shall be met-from receive adequate to the needs of the government shall be provided t. But as to this matter of dominant notional concern Mr. Cleveland makes no suggestion whatever. Prom the beginning to the end of his message and one word of recommendation is offered concerning it.

But amoving as this ambision on the part of the President certainly is it is not more astrophing than his refund to recognize plain and obvious facts when they conflirt with his personal opinions. Thus, in face of the ligarenshowing that the McKinley tariff produced souple receive for all the purposes of government, he dockree that it was "imillebed" for that purpose. Then, with the same perasked contempt of the frath of history, he clarges all the industrial depression and distress, the measure deringments and the embatrosments of the trensury, of the list from yoursely more, to the greenbacks and Treasury mores! It has often been claimed for Mr. Cheedan! that he is ironn. of resurage. If obstinar afficence in opinions which have mathing in brasen or last to support them is an existence of muraginus character, then the President's Interpully is undenliked. But to most people his treatment of the floar cial and industrial questions will, we suspect, be regarded as a littler homest nor contrageous. It displays rather the ambetty of the arrogant and headstrong man who believes bimself to be the one who can in all the world-

The Prevalence of Crime.

Wa seem, just new, to be passing through an epidemic Spirities, inuplers, hurgaries, betravals of trust compliances against the rights of person and property, or portainst everywhere. The saidfuld manin is reportally scare and widesproad, extending to all sorrs and conditions of each and wence. Men kill themselves breaker they are avertaken by procetty and cannot provide for their families; others, troubled by marital intelicties, will their wives and they take their own lives , a father kills his body girls and then blows out his brains because he is troubled by debt; a bridger takes his life because he has been wronged by a dichosest partner; women swallow prisons because of being disappointed in law, at to escape the exposure of illicht affections, or for some other reason equally inadequate. In on day recently, as many as tour would-be antitudes were insugget before a city maley, one of whom had taken pulson became his friends had "forest" lateral sear his fortherms Beauth awarb of learl but barree a slidar egarrone gai liseages as he sold, his wife was a "new woman."

Not a day pusses that the newspapers about bring us the story of some firsh crime tegetten of despair, or had, or greed, or a spirit of vengeance barking in some desperate soul. So violent and marked, indeed, are the criminal tendencies of the time, that one having only a surface knowledge of our life as a people would conclude that we are as a nation given over to the control of the coarsest animal instincts; that contempt of life and its secretiress, and of the moral law and its restraints, has become a notional passion which dominates every condition and class of our popula-

It goes without saying that such a conclusion would be an utterly mistaken one. The vices which flaunt themselves so sirily, the crimes which startle and menace, are not the outgrowth of conditions inherent in our national life. They are chaormal and exceptional. Our real life is that which finds expression in aspirations to the higher levels of achievement and enjoyment, and in a thousand forms of henevalent activity hosking to the elevation and betterment of mental, swist, and moral conditions in hospitals, schools, churches, charities of every sort, in economic, selsutilic, and sunitary schemes for the diminution of the discomforts and sufferings of the individual, and the enlargement of his expecitles and opportunities. The supreme aim of modern social effort is to minimize the force of the degenerate tendencies which munifest themselves in spectacular crimes; and the ministries of the spirit of human brotherhood were never so broad its scope and so persistent in action as they are to-day with us. Back of all the crimes which sometimes startle us, and the scamials and definicheries which confound the pure in beart, there is a pervaling righternaness which forms essentially leth the basis. and buttress of the national life, and which, in the long run, awares the wearity of every precious social interest. as well as the stability of the state. It is tamentable, indeal, that vice and crime should exist, and that the Sirknerged Touth of our population should so largely misconceive the purposes and possibilities of life; but it is erroacous altogether, to assume that the class of offenses hereig referred to reflects a dominant malimal tembricy.

Wholesome Suggestions.

Is a recent communication, Mrs. Eliza D. Keith (*) Dr. Vernon"), a member of the Committee for Public Instruction of the National Connett of Women, makes some singgestions relative to the practical application of pairfotic. principles to child-life which are endocatly worthy of consideration. She insists, for instance, that the American flagshould be displayed on every school-house, and that all ached children should be required to minte the flag in the school room daily; that along with this they should be laught that good citizenship consists in obedience to authority, and the cultivation of self-relinove and fidelity to conscience as among the qualities of trustworthy character Especial care should be given to their training in the mature of citizenship and its responsibilities. "Help each child to feel," she says, "that he has an interest in his block, his street, his town." In Sun Prancisco there is a buye mighborhead club, whose object is to cure for gardens, plient shade-trem, and heartify the neighborhood. She believes this is a model worthy of emulation class here. Children should be invited to take part in all actional selebrations, and to contribute to all objects designed to diminish the getts of mismie, "Celebrate Arbor Day, and argo the children to cultivate the school grounds and ruise flowers for local festivals, so the children of Coliffornia have done for their festus. Make the children feel that they are a part of the body-politic." Other suggestions of the writer relate to the literary training of children and youth. They should be kept informed, she thinks, as to current events, and on this point she says :

It is a good thing to pass a good pictorial around the riase in school: out h for idelance, so Lucius's White L. even when the children are quite toning. Potash in Agriculture.

THE farmers of the Calted States are especially interested in artificial fertilization. In all of the Eastern, in the Southern, and in many of the Western States, the lands have become exhausted or worn out by over-cultivation without return of plant food. The result is that artificial fertifizers are now a accessity, and millions of dollars are expended every year for materials to replenish the soil. In fact, the larger part of the work of the agricultural stations in the different States is deveted to what are called "field tests," or experiments with artificial or commercial fertilizers.

The three most important substances wanted in wornout and poor lands are: Nitrogeo, phosphoric seid, and potash; and fertilization or plant-teeding consists in supplying the soil with these elements. The recent investigations of German scientists have thrown new light upon the processes of plant growth and plant nutrition, hence new light upon the whole subject of fertilization. Indeed, it is only within the past ten or lifteen years that the success of potash fertilization in increasing the quantity and quality of crops has been demonstrated by an immense number of " field tests" in Europe and in the United States. The bulletine of the experiment stations for the past five years are full of information for formers on this point.

The only two available sources for a commercial supply of potash are: (1) from the various kinds of word ashes, (3) from the famous Stassfurt mines in Germany. The first-named supply is limited and decreasing in quantity; the second is practically inexhaustible. The Stassfurt mines were originally worked for salt, but they now supply the agricultural world with potash salts, amounting to handreds of thousands of tons samually. Thus these fertilizers have reached even greater importance than the Peruvian guano did some years ago.

The Armenian Situation.

Tue situation in Armeda does not improve. Fresh massacres by the Turks and their Kurdish allies are reported almost daily. Mesowhile the representatives of the Provers as Constantinoph: residence their efforts to secure from the Porte the enforcement of the promised reforms in Armonia and adequate protoction against further disturbamove, but they are mot as usual by prevariculass and all possible methods of delay, and it has come to be believed that nothing short of force will induce the government to carry out its cogagements and put an end to the role of violence. It is gratifying to observe that the opposis of the suffering Armenians for help are finding a ready respouse in this country and threat Britain.

An interesting article on the Armenian attention, from the pen of a gentleman who recently made a journey scene. the recentry, is printed an another page.

Furse to the gualistine, Mathible to the visits of forchanced and the stience of the Fournier—the eternal silence, as the believed.

It is not difficult for the moder to conjure up for himself a sufficiently plansible whome to account for the absence of the Fournier from Pure. rensonable and affertionate than me had ever known her. The surveillance of the Hitel da Fournier had been much relaxed as time went on. Grebnaval was a constant visitor. The duchess had not ventured to usk Mathible to see him, but Robespierre himself had called more than once in reseputy with Grébauxal. St. Just had also paid his respects to the duches. who was acknowledged as a true repullican and received in the questionable society of the time. She continually explained to Mathillie that nil this was shore in the family interest; not about that they might live, but that they might retain at least a portion of their improverished estates.

It is quite possible that Citayennesie Loccet spoke the truth. Always an opportunist, from the first days of the Revolution she had been systematically warned of what was going to lingson by the man Gerbanesi, a platform in whose ambitting was mirrouge with her daughter. In these latter days Ordinaval's passion for Mathible had wanted. There were many Instincting ladies in Paris who were delighted to give what firebanval radiot his lave their most complainent consideration. He had no lack of admirers among the belles of the republic, but this was not enough. He must be the husband of Mathible. It was part of his revenge for the newtont of his Earth. He sever for a mement doubted the doubt, of the Pourniss. The truth was only known to Juffrey Edicath and the Committee of Three at the Cerelo des Bestone Blancs.

And now it was the New Year. The old one had note out ragged and torn, cult and gashed, a weary and futured pilgrim, fact age, linertsure, therepit, not put to bed calculy with the chiming of shursh-bells, the singing of surels. and the scent of opiced wines ; but thing headlong into his graye annicht the teitlewings of the Herodutionary macistrom and declarations of war from the four corners of the surth, ancircred with Danton's "gage of buttle, the head of a king," and noth other portectors incidents and common to prophecy might well have seen in John the Divine's vision of the opening of the Fourth Seni.

XXXXIII. A ORDER BIT OF HISTORY

This classic has of suspects made it possible for the manifer of prisoners to become about Culimited. From time hundred they row rapidly to three thorought. They were the posed of the Mairy, at La Force, at the conciergurte, us the Abbuye, at Saint Princip, and of the Madelconethes or women's prices, and in all the state-persons. There and other throniclers describe how at that, mixed with ordinary maichartors, they were thong upon straw. For a time their condition was pitiless. At length there were, us no have already men, affectattone in the surflest stars of the Revolution ; and, as months wont on, the changes yours still more compatible with human existence.

First was letter served. The table was set with some regard to slegamer. The relations between the prisoners were caster. Intimaries and from bhips were established. Middertones brought people closer together. The Duke do Lauvet and Joseph, his ralet, were even on familiar terms.

The male med female prisoners were enabled during the day to held communion together. An open railing only separated them in the hours of recreation. The women's court-yard was lively all day long. Before unid-day they washed their lines at the prism fountain, after which they premembed gentle and simple alike many of them beautiful and in the beight of tashion, some unimated with a light-hearted disregard of circumstances, others pathetic in their frame and surrows.

Marie Bruyset Incl. acress to the Compression nt all Somes. She had, first, by her father's infineury, and bestly, by the mark of her own percoul force of character, become an institution of the place, welcomed nitke by inflers and total cay is ; and she had, on several occasions, had totreviews with Marte Antoinette. Closely as the outen was granded, if was a common thing for consens to be allowed to see her, but not alone. The pair women was noter out of sight or bearing of the two gendarius who watched her dur and night. But they became so used to the concerns and going of Marie Bruyset all over the perceptibil piece than case she had obtained mayor to the queen without excesses. When loss Majesty was in field of dressing, the was examined from the officers on duty by a screen. Marte had slipped behind this temperary pertition and sat with the speen twice without observation beyond the menot recognition. One of the gendernes, who seemed most in authority, had made himself particularly agreeable to Marie, and she ball responded to lea attractions with a significance that gave him the highest satisfaction, not to say lone. He wight well he provid of his consumer, for Marie Bruyset was orthy of even the far nobley admiration that she excited in the court-yard of the male prisoners, not to mention the conclerge binnelf. Whe was a toman street of supshine in the prison, and she dressed the character with artistic cars. She were her dark hair in curicalcut her low, compact furnhaud thathered over her ears, it was redied us increa bunch in her neck. Her houset covered the head, closely trilled, and was tied under the chin with a bow of ribbon. and in Marie's case was decorated with the republican colors. The dress was long-wanded and full, with long narrow sheres, the material bluish-gray and striped. High-hooled show and the manners of an aristocrat completed this bright, unusual figure, which (firmusated the Conviergeric a concession both to the prisoners and their guardians. Marie brought for pencil and her broshes and made studies of fintic. and also played the part of coquette to perfection, remeidering that her limit was devoted to Juffray Elliests.

While this life of apparent garety went on, very day carried fresh victims to the goalbitine; and it was the knowledge that my moment might be their last that fired was prisoners with a rockless courage and kept there equally depressed. Dauban, it his " His tory of the Prisons," gives an extract from a letter written from the Convincente to the Duke de Louvet to kie frient, Mouniour Bertin. who, in the character of a worksum, had succonfest in living, with his daughter- undiscoverni by the police, or regarded as dead-to a pear room on the with every of a house in the Marain. The prosident formally demanded of them, " Das there existed a comparmy against the suity and individuality of the republic, against the liberty and the salety of the French people? Are Hosenber guilty of this con-

In the few cases of acquittal the reply would be in the negative, the first jurier alone speaking. In the case of a combessoution the formal reply was "the my hour and on my ore: reteice, the fact or arquestionable"; and, in words of represely and containely, rentrace of death was promounted; and when justice was in a special hurry the victim would be taken straightway to the guilledine. "I TELL you, he's a cute one," is the way a cition of Forsland, Maine, expressed his admiration of Speaker Thomas B Book, in conversation with me last signmer. That is the estimaterial Mr. Roed which, I believe, is held by a great many people. Wintever they think of him politically, they relative him for his quaint. sayings and clover design, and for his shreadmes in touking the most of every opportunity. This estimate applies to Mr. Beed the individand quite as much as to Mr. Rised the politician. Larking almost enturely in that personal magnotion which draws a great army of unknown friends to the suggest of some men. Mr. Beed still continued admiration which is nowhere stronger than among his fellow-townsmen. His sharp tengue has driven from him a great many sensitive. men who should have been his friends. Mr. Riesi's tangue wanted are like a rapier's threats shop and hard to heat. "Tithoness" has its value. but it often everlie its own panishment.

It is not opposed for the keep-tengued man to be soutitive. Mr. Book is a good doub of a phitempler, but he is not thick skimmed. He has character enough to resect his hart to most own; but his cuticle has been painfully emped at times when he has several most calm and self-existained. This was especially tenedaring his experience to spenker of the Honor. One of the political traditions of that period represents Mr. Reed penneling a pillion vigorously at night. under the impresson that it was the land of Springer of Illinois, or Rogers of Aristonia

The test by which a public man in judget. best is the test of private life for too many men figure in the ambitouse in false characters Many goin a reputation for wit whose convercution is chall and boxy ; many his homesty of purpose, whose only thought is policy; and, in firet, there is so insets show in public life that one who has seen below the surface is likely to take a cynical yew of all flui he see above it. View few paddle near followed lane prevate life. present their accepted characters. Mr. Book it one of the few. Conversationally he is as beight and entertaining so in mor of his public species; and there is a genuinense about all he says and then which examined admiration.

I spent a very phosont day with Mr. Boot. hast summer. I went to Portland on a months which was only half accomplished. I wanted hi see the ex-spenker in his home. To hearn how he was specifying the summer days; and I wanted to get from him on insurview for publicathen. I saw Mr. Rood, but I did not get the interview. With characteristic frankrise he told me that what he said was so often misconstrant that he had been shilged to alandon magazine work. He could havelly hope that a newspaper publication would escape similar traisconstruction and criticism, and he for limit flatly to be quoted on my topic, however terfling. Be do fitted, nist, to be "a party" to the set of luxing his photograph taken either falus office or in his library. These things being charly understood, Mr. Reed and his interchang found themselves a little undurenced Dir a ellent minute. Then Mr. Bord relieved the dination by suggesting a drive about the beantiful city of Portland.

Mr. Royd is found of Portland -so found of it. that is how he bought a summer home at Franch Beach he made a serious enumerical in the wishes of his wife and daughter. Portland is a good prough summer home for Mr. Real, and he epends the greater part of the warm season there in the lang recess of Congress. He is a man who the emphy capty a bir bount; with likes to spend the long days reading or writing in the halievens on the servert floor of his house, which he ses us a den ; and who luxurates in the view it the classicanced White Manufacine which on he seen on a chear day from the read of his conding. Mr. Reed is a dimustic man and a student. He spent the about of the past numnew with his family, and during all that periof he was reading and writing stendily. His chief exemption has been the study of law. He is keeping in touch with his profession, so that be will have no overpation if he should dropout of nublic life. Mr. Reed has no disposition to retire to private life at present, but he realines the uncertainties of politics.

Mr. Reed to a named liberal education, and among other things to is a linewist. The speaks and reads French thornty, though whether his speed is timbered with that twang for which his English tongue is famous. I do not know He knows some Ballian and Spanish also among modern tougues. He is well informed in general liberature and he is especially well remed in the political history of England and the United States. He is not above remaining provers. and he finds especial relexation in the French neivel.

Mr. Road writes when he is in the mood. He sets inmed not task. When his has magazine work to do le often postpone it till the last number because he is not "v the mood." When his impiration come be writes eiten far into the night. His timugide flow freely, and he makes few recreetions in immunerly).

Writing in a severy exertion for Mr. Book. for he actually writer what he componen. He then not the automorphism, and to write in a slow, square, legible band. That for the mental explication which it brings him. I am afruid Mr. Reed would not be tempted often to take his pencil in hand, for he is of aloggish physical disposition—not as uncount condition in a manactive ineutally.

Mr. Reed keeps an office in Portland, but he then not practice late. We Congressional duties make segrent a demand on his time that he fiels he caused serve another master, so the law practice waits on that time when he shall he retired to private life. The busing Congression is an absorbing occupation to a removanthing man. Mr. Rend is removanthing He keeps his promises, he makes good all his rentructs, in fue kept himself few from ention. glements with doubtful business ventures. This ing his first incomplemey of the speakership has even sent back to the railroad estopational but. one of the normal passes which were thousand on him. In the case of one rational Mr. Rost's sense of homes asserted that! The road was or fair West that it would have taken three or fine days traveling to enable the speaker to me his privilege. He thought it was harrily worth while he spend two counts on that pass, so he kept it. Mr. Reed talk ton of the pass services. in the course of a long convenation in his rooms at the Shoreham Botel, Washington, more years ago. It was a conscionation which was not introduct for publication, and I have sever seen Mr. Reed quoted on the unbject of public non and railmed passes. He does not criticise other public men who accept privalegos from railroado, fost busines and believe in arrepting there for himself. I thus the is characteristic of Mr. Roed do do what is right because he believes it to be citale, and not became of the excell he may gain for doing it.

Mr. Herri's personal turnes are sample. He he lieses in confort without regard to more than the devent correntionalities of life. Noman of Mr. Boet's persitor build would have put on a colored, slide and a such if he had had a reast tave regard for public opinion. Mr. Steed has a mild contrast for what is known as: rirty," yet seeial interesure with bright people prime of the most valued recorations. A "Transtion." In de-pies, but a mail parliering of reagenial men and momen or a jobs and party be thoroughly regime. He does not shrink from jubile criticism or admiration, but he didden "present!" feeture of daily generalism, and he would be easily indicated to the editors if they would let his mustarde and his barycle above. The mustacke, by the way, has disappeared from his face since the pertrait of him. med in connection with this article, was taken.

On the whole, I have found Mr. Road as please ing a study personally as he is politically, and quite as admirable in one respect as in the other. As there are two accepted views of Mr. Reed politically, it is perhaps as well made that I are one of his warmest, political admirers.

The Armenian Atrocities.

A wirness other just upon the stand is experhal to fell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the broth. There are many pers for when have told the truth, as far as they we a able, about the Armenian quotien; there retions as yet wite layer here while to get at the whose truth, and very few who have told nothine but the truth. Three magnestime on the one hand and suppression of the facts on the other have been name possible by the nature of the situation. We do know, however, that the Armenium have frequently been induted in their imaginations for their facts and to their over-amultive fears for their above. Their rry of wolf has proven so often groundless that it was difficult in the present real dauger to arouse the Western world to a realization of the gravity of the structure. We also know that for years there have been formed arrest such eties among the Armenium, and that the represortatives of Armenius parrietic councities in two or time cities in continental Europe have been moving about Asiatic Turker Irying for rouse a reveal benning there believe men by inflamendary bisroture. It is such there, 5 think, that here largely to laring about the orien which now threatons the overtimes of the Ottomar conpitre, and the mi doub, was the digest for which they were intended; for over and above the deare to be relieved from alleged Turkish tyrasmy there has been been growing among the Armenium a sentlement of national autoomy. They have also convalued and savertravegant hopes of a bright future for their equatry, when the Tarkish emotive as they trust, shall have family ermulded away,

It is this previously within that has noticed ad the unnorses. Armenium agitation and perc-Inhounty wanties, and they have followed out a personal police to this send. If is my humblecontinue, derived from exceed months' expertence in Turkish Armenia, that the care conflict. new going on hos been becomising with this growing informs entire at, and that the preout outdown't would have nevertal somer or later, even without the occasion of depreda- Protestant missionaries, have been erected in tions for the Kurdish remade.

But I am fully aware that "it is a condition and not a theory that confronts us." However the present crisis may have been brought about. it is certain that we are now face to face with a cries of the most cruel atrocities that the civilhad world has been called upon to witness. I would not for one moment attempt to abate the denunciations that are being elicited from all matis mulitles and all religious sects by these unparalleled acts of Inclurity. I heartily concur in the spinion that the most every and sine many pentilement should be inflicted upon the perpetrature; but I must demur in a measure from the windessie and one-sided judgment that is now being so freely expressed, exparintly by the American press, against the Theres ther and above the quick responsiveness which the Assertean people have always given to the sentiments of humanuty, they have had a special reason for looking a warm interest in the Armenian Christians Nearly everything which has been show in these aurient were of Chrismanty by molern (bristian mitims his been done for American polysomerou, whose reliable and redeges, planted in various parts of Western Asia, have re-kindled the flame of knortwhen and eliminated the native Eastern charries to recome the intellectual activity which serve detinguished them. We do not wonder, therefore, that the sufferings of the Armenisco layer evided as much sympathy from the American people, but we are necessiat surprised that they should make them the persons for a refurnis crossede against the Musedonia race. It is a fact which is admitted by every Protestant commercial index part in Americ Turkey, that the Massalican, while and convertible from his one factio, in for more telerant of the prosence of mindomeries in his country than the sullive Accordance, surroug whom the uninconary prone bites are exclusively unde. This converting of the Armenium from our form of Christianity to auction has aroused against the Probation minimum previously the opposition of the mytive Accomism Church, which if it had its way. hoday, sould drive every minimum y from the remotey. The flue other hand, I have had direct existence of the believed attitude of at least one arbitraried. Turk toward this question of religious difference. On venturing to thank my host - due for his hospitality speared a stranger, and cross foreigner, he said that this world orregard to small a space in Unit's dominion that provided well affect to be brothers one to aurater, in spite of our individual beliefs and "We may have infferent beliefs and registration.C. spinions," said he, " but we all belong to the one great father of horomaty, just as children of different complexions, dispositions, and intidbets may belong to the one tenueum parent. We should exercise reason always, and have charity for other people's spinters." I firmly believe that the primal room for the present brouble to the Sulling's desginters lies beyond any question of religious difference, for the Sunsite Manufeson has always been noted for his religious tolorance. It is, I think, dur to a mutual interel engendered by a constantly increasing Aracle emopetition.

later the Jews, whom they resemble very med in features, and to whom they are said to be printerstably evident through one of the ken ten tribes, the Armenions are susceptimate craftsnustree. It is a trite saying throughout the Levant that a Jew clients a Turk, a Grack clients a Jew. and an Arountan christs them all. In the structic for existence the Turks are heavily handlespeed, being mostly himrant and artises, and speaking their mother topote alone; whereas the Armenius and outles Greeks are dreet, this of subserfuge, and acquisited with several languages. Houset and faltidul to his pholosis word, the Turk will work to the end of his days in order to discharge a dold, a quality of which the Armenian mency-leader takes advantage to offer him fong und rotores credits at untrious instead of Indonesia.

"If you work to survived " says an Anatolian concuercial axion, "trust the Christian to one Thus trusted, the Turk less no longer anything he can call his own. Deprived of all share in the wa-larm traffic and in the industrial arts is being gradually driven from the senboard to the interior, where little remains open to him except the guidance of escatum or a purely pasternal existence

On the other hand, through the tolerant quirit of the Moscolimos religion, several hunshoul Armenium new hold by ratios and responother positions under the Turkish government, one livering even free minister of the crown They your have some rights not granted to their Most on negridace namely, the right of appeal to foreign unisters and counts, and the right to and his up I constate perspapers printed in their con busyance. More than this, they are allowed to below out with the utmost freedom their own hadable enterprise in the matter of education. Good achools, leader those of the

In the above comparisons I wish to distinguish clearly between the Turkish peasant and the Turkish official, who is preverbially corrupt, and who has grown more and more so just as he has become contaminated by so-called Westpra civilization. It is he who, in collation with the lawiess Euros, is mainly responsible for the recent atracities. From his maludaministrations. the Turkish peneant, as well as the Armenian, has greatly suffered, and with even less ability to right his wrongs or redress his grievanees. Aside from the recent Armenian enhanities be of all the Sultan's subjects is most entitled to our commiseration.

Already, by the force of their soperior educution and business requests, the Armenians and the Greeks are rapidly becoming the conmercial imsters of the Sultair's Asiatic descinions, and the Turks are rapally drifting back to the life of their forefathers. Long since the summone to withdraw from Europe has feen boned, and we know that the ernel mandate hips in a great nessence been continued. And now the Turks are Directoned in Asia itself. The common cry "To the Stoppes !" has licen rules), and one aske in terror, must this numerate also be realized? In these in presible reesardintion between the conflicting oir ments ! Is the unity of civilization to be had only by the secretice of whole populations, and these, above all, which are delinguished by the highest moral qualities - morightmen trath, mandiness, courage, and tolerance (

Colonna, president of the Western Wheel Works at Chicago, who issued an invitation to the whoelmen of the country to visit the expesition at his charges. A large number, representing all parts of the Union, accepted the invitation, and the cuty was for two days practically in presenting of the cyclists, unde and female. As many as one thenpund, it is stated, participated in the parades on the expesition grounds, while four hundred were Mr. Columna's gueste at a barequet given at the Kimball House. One of the within the expection inclusive. This attracted several thousands of spectators, and the scope described by the head press as one of great picture-queues and beauty. A large propertion of the whole were finely deverated, and several of the riders were dressed in character.

On the Sen ultime, which was the grand day, the wheelmen puraded through the streets, and subsequently engaged in races of the expention grounds, which are admirably adupted for this purpose. The Imagnet given by Mr. Coleman was, perhaps, the most elaborate ever spread in the city of Atlanta. The great dining-ball of the Kimball House was magnificently descrated, and the mena embraced every delicary of the season. The post juntalial exercises connisted of brief speeches by Mr. Coleman and by prominent representatives of the bi-velocy interest throughout the country. Mr. Coleman's remarks were especially felicitous. He had the frankness to acknowledge that while the constant was to him one of great pleasure, it being his forty-fifth birthday, he had designed it specially with a view of expressing his appreciation of the kindly feeling of the wheelmen of the country. He had, he said, been busily at work for a period of thirty years, and in that time had been able to acquire a competence, which he swed to the wheelmen of America. He had arranged the "little dinner," as he called it, in order that he might become personally acquainted with as many as possible of the patrons of the wheel. Mr. Coleman, in his visit to Atlanta, was accompanied by a large delegation of wheelmen from this and adjacent rities, for whose entertainment, he numbe ample provision in a special cur-

University over rewing is receiving as little attention in a speculative, goasipy sort of way now that the foot-ball season has closed, even to the after-discussion of interesting points which came up in the less games of the season. Of course, as every body knows, thereard unit Valentii not mosel at New London, and while the former has an engagement to row thread. Vale is quite left out in the cold, though it is generally acknowledged by old Valencew men and conclusion that the body in time.

There can be no question but that the splitup rentests of the past that is, Yale rewing Barvard, Barvard rowing Pennsylvania, and Pennsylvania trying conclusions with Cornell is montisfurbory to many lowers of the sport. But so long as Barvard and Yale continued to most there assessed little prospect of a change breast three lowers. Now, naturally, Yale does not once to lot a year go by without a case—in fact, three is not one chance in a thousand that also will do so.

Already it has been proposed that Harvard. Vale, Cornell Columbia, and Pennsylvania arrange to actic all differences among themselves and med in a five-cornered bout in the waters of the Budson off Penghinepsis, the sense of the Gringular affair. Pennsylvania, tohundia, and Cornell last year, the serious birch to such a scheme would seem to be Vale's distinct to meeting Pennsylvania is friendly rivaley, but one more serious still is what seems to be fact, to wit—that Yale and Columbia bace arranged for a race at New Lendon, and will see sure to trouble about any other affair.

According to a Vale beating authority, Yale would gladly receive and accept a challenge from Cornell, and I know that Yale men, right and left, would like to see the two old rivals meet and settle the question of suprempey. It is filely, however, that Harvard would have something to say in the great of Cornell's openlog regotations with Vale for a race, or Vale with Cornell. Naturally, as flarvard will not taget Yale, she does not ence to have her opponeut, this year, Cornell, row the New Haven men. Comparisons might in the end become odiom. So on the whole, while there is likely to continue much talk and many good and sensable reasons why a five-cornered rure stead I be rowed, the history of the sensor will protectly mark for the principal events a Vale-telembia and a Harvard Cornell rure.

In many ways it seems a shows that the differences in the rowing assess of the American and English naiversity assesses should differ so, particularly this year, when Vale, because of her break with Harvard, and being the neknowledged head of university grew rewing in America, might go over and do that which Cornell failed to the defeat a dest-class English even.

Of course, should the Vale faculty permit a crew to go in February, thus giving them serveral stocks of training on the other side before the annual Oxford-Cambridge neer in March, all would be well belief. But there does not seem to be a chance in a million that such permission could be obtained. Fathers all over the country would cryons: "What he! I send my key to college to study eight through the year—not to go in vacuations betting several weeks for athletic givery alone."

If the winners of the Oxford-Cambridge race should, on the other hand, consent to remain in training and meet. Vale in July, then a race result be easily arranged; but up to this time the English rowing men have not shown a willing spirit in this respect.

YALK AND PERSELLAND FOR BALL TEAMS.

In justice to the University of Pennsylvania (asteballicom bearing in aim other game with Cornell, but more particularly recomizing the work of Full-bard bisance—I take this—the liest—appartunity to reachly it amend the statepoint imply in the observator it is some of Lies-

LIE's WERKLY to the effect that the Yale beam, was the unitspected champion of the year in college test built.

After taking a stand long ago for the teauties of the biving game and the calm of welldirected kirks, and lately having seen with plantage different teams adopting the kind of plan which at one time was adversated in vain. I am leath to let slip the chance to laye nearthing more to say, as it may be appropriately done in the process of abosing where my statement needs attendment.

"Yale, by defenting Petnesten decorrely, and Harvard, whom the latter defented, having practically outplayed the University of Pennsylvania femin, although the latter was by the lare margin of three points is the indepented champen of 190." This was the statement written by our directly after the Vale-Petnestein game at Manhatten Field.

In select second throught I would fain change the inter part, " is the undeputed changing of 1906," to—both at first plance to be the wadinparted changem of 1906, but in reality, considering that I vancylrong a passage to I trackthe dur. full-back of the year, it would be a sfair to place I vancylrong where then upon an equal facting with Talk.

Of course this mount plainty that a strong trans which possesses a star at full-lack—a player who is always equal to a kirking some gone a, can strop gonic and kirk place-hirds as they should be kirked, and withal can well and tacklesurely, becomes a factor of prime importance in any prace.

Without Breaks I do not believe that Propsylvania could defeat Vals, and in each a case. I do not believe, further, that my our would question Valse right to the title of champion. But this "if" is nothing " in poset." The fact remains that Piraneylvania had a Breaks, and supposing, so it is only right to suppose, that the two famus were quite evenly matched in other respects, then the work of Breaks would be a constant memory to Vals surveys.

Now, according to the options of good judges. Pennsylvania's attack in the Harvard good-was not difficult for their opposite to solve, and that Produc really saved the Any by his kicking. If, then Harvard could route hold beneatly ania, it must follow that Yale would do the same, and more, comparing the strength of the two teams from the Princeton games.

But just so seen in see argue Vale into a position of advantage, just so seen time Brooks step in to make all entraintages on the result of a pume latineer. Vale and Promy branks meantage.

Both might severe a templetown apters, and a successful place kirk thresh the game. Then, again, a goal from the field might rob Yate of a land which she had maintained marily to the rhose of the game. Thus, its, threshe's puncting above might keep Yate safely away from the Princette and goal-line, and she in turn might seare on Yale.

ris, to be inter, the teams of Vale and Fernsylvania should be placed upon an equal funing, without preference whatevever. In other words, for justicia, and refere

AN INTERCOLLEGIATE DICTULE RACE ASSECTATION

The movement which has for its object the establishment of an Intervallegists Heyyle Rave-Association deserves loarly support. The 54cycle race at the Intercollegiate Athletic Asociation champlembly games has as George M. Conten, of the University of Promylennia, remarks, for a number of yours past "been more or less of a farry." Mr. Cantes further remarks that " it has been production that the lest ridors are not us a rule the men who win. The region of this lies in the fact that running and beyele-riding, although at first sparts demagning the same remultients for a four test of ability, have now become widely experated on account of the advant of the safety wheel, recomatic tires, and, as a consequence; greatly incremed speed."

To a natisfield, whereas the high transition could, with its solid time, weather the turns of a running track at a trifle over a three-minutecity, the sabity, at a much higher rate of speed, becomes at once a nature and a magnet to the contestants. Some the introduction of the contestants is two-could biry be event at the incorrelegate Athletic Association games, arrelents have been both managemental serious.

But, satisfie of the impracticability of the modern bicycle race being contested upon a track which has been constructed for running events, we first another and an important reason, why a separate association should be formed. This reason is found in the daily increase in the popularity of the sport and the rapid addition to the ranks of racing uses.

Among other femilies him me would be derived from such an association a programm of events which would give the enthusiasts for homes in hierarcheraring the character rate in a race test stated to their racing make-up. As now, the apropter, the long-distance man, and the saidtle man are all formed into one race—a. two-nale race.

It is understood that an important morting of rediege men interested in this question will be held in New York in Petersary next, at which the association will be formed.

Motocycles in Chicago.

When the Furis-Bordoner motocycle race fast summer demonstrated to its astenishing record of seven hundred and fift, miles in forty sine losses the pearticability of the horse less curtiage for regular thad work, it was said that this might do very well in France on their magnifests "toroniked" highways, for "they order these things," according to Phylic Toller, much better in France"; but it was also avered that the nurlines would hardly do in the country. To prove the contrary, and in a rity which perhaps more than any other in the estantry, with the possible exception of Washingless, the Chirago Times disorded inaugurated a contest which resulted in two trials under different conditions, giving a fund of very meful information to the corruge-builders. Like considerations will bring the horseless carriage intogeneral use for business purposes, express delivery, pleasure riding, etc.

It is a curious excumentance that the horseless curriage is one of the most ancient of ideas. Homer tells us how, when Thetis went to Vulcan with her prayer for a shield for Actilles, she found the lame architect hard at work, bothed in sweal from the heat of his forges;

Thei day no common tesk his laber claimed, For twenty tripode for his fail he framed, That pieced on living wherea of messy good Woodroom to sell; itselfart with spirit soiled From place to place, arouted the should absolus, self moved, utselfant to the tesk of gods."

It is certain, however, that in 1259 Dr. Robinson radiod the attention of Watt to the possibility of constructing a carriage to be driven by a steam regime, and ton years. inter Cognes, a French army officer, rigged up a gon-carriage and a hig copper boiler so that if was driven by its own power. This said to lawe run six to eight miles an hour The earliest patent for road engines in America. was that secured by Oliver Eram, who obtained in 1786, from the Maryland Legislature, a moneyedy for his system of applying steam to the peopelling of wagons on land. In 1904 he completed a flat-betterned best for dredging the Philadelphia docks, and, mounting it on wherh, drove it by the own elemin-engine to the reser bank. Lammbing the craft, he propelled it down the river, using the engine to drive the paddle-wheels. Thus Evans's "Ornkion Any diffedus," as he named his markine, was the first auto-motile wagen and the first steam paddiented leat in America. A reproduction of the "Orakton Amphibolus," and of the Cugnot wagon also may be seen at the Field-Cotombian Museum in Chicago. Alongsule of these curious relies of the past, in the splendid nuseum building of the future upon the Lake-Front Park, new being constructed in the lake, another vehicle will be shown a carriage with graceful quadropeds attacked; and the little ones of the next century will shout with autonishment and glee; "Bee, a wagon with horses on it?" An Asthma Cure at Last.

MEDICAL science at last reports a positive cure for Asthma in the remarkable Kola Plant, a new botanical discovery found on the Congo River, West Africa. Its cures are really nonveices. Rev. J. L. Combs, of Martindurg, West Virginia, writes that it cured him of Anthone of fifty years standing and Hon. L. G. Clute, of Greeley, Iown, testifies that for three years he had to sleep propped up in a chair, being madde to be down night or day from Asthum. The Kela Plant cured him at some. To make the matter sure, these and hundeeds of other cures are sworn to under outle before a settery public. So great is their faith in its wonderful curative powers, the Kola Importing Company, 1984 Broadway, New York, is sending out large trial cases of the Keda compound free to all sufferers from Asthma. Bend them your name and address on a postal-curd, and they will send you a large trial case by mail free. It costs you nothing, and you should surely try it.

The Clyde Line Flyer.

THE Clyde Line has added a new steamship, the Consensus, to the fleet which piles between Now York and Southern ports. The Communiche is three lumired and fifty feet long, forty-ax feet beam, has four decks, and has accommedations for two hundred first-class passengers. She is equipped with all the latest appointments, and is constructed throughout with reference to the uthorst conduct of her patrons. On her maiden voyage she reduced the time between this port and Jacksonville by nearly twenty-four hours. The Clyde Line has always been a popular sun. with the traveling public, and with this addition to its fleet it will my doubt attract more than ever the best class of winter as well as summer tourists.

Is England Prepared to Fight?

Toy, negotiations between the United States and Great Hristin as to the propriety of submitting the dispute about the boundary of Venezuela to arbitration face sublenty prrived at an acute stage, and the officials in both countries, se well to the newspapers, have been compelled by the logic of the situation to contemplate the possibility of a war between this people and the English. With the mexits of the dispute this country as yet has had nothing to do; the intervention of the Federal government has merely arged the employment of arhitecture to decide between a strong and a weak power, the latter American. The British have finally devined to submit the dispute to arbitractes, and in anmeaning this determination Lord Schabury has decired that the Monne ductrine was applicable in the present testume, In polite diplomatic language the British premier has upnonreal to the American President that he was neskilling in a matter which did not in the least concurs him or his people. Mr. Cleveland of ours sent a message in Congress announcing that insensoly as England would me arbitrace the matter, then the United States would devide it. The plain and patriatic munic Mr. Cleveland coupleyed in his movinge have found an relia in the heart of every grantees American, and partiamship itself has been stilled by the appliance which greated an attenues to pired by true oursliness. These words may not mean war, but no American has felt any feat as to the consequences which may ensue.

The British press and the British people take the view that patriotion is a feeling exclusively British, and that our attitude at this time is nursly for "humanula." The London Yimo talks of the intural affortion between the peoples of the two countries. The Times makes a ment pertons. mistake. There is no unural affection between the two peoples. The British press and British people make a nelstake. There is such a thing as Assertean patriotism, and that pairfotion is in a large measure entered by distrust and dislike of that which is British, became Americans have logened by long and sail experience that the licitish are ignfair, unjoys, and untrastworthy, and that this unfairness and injustice are always illereted toward everything Amerhow wit a specially ferocious organey. (No possible event. to this courtry would be so notvernally popular as a war with that bully of nations, Great Britain,)

Old Glory.

N tecthing are those closing years of the convery more remarkable than in the swale ening of partiation. It is not no veithusians that tends to seal or bigotry, but a proper actional pride firmly fearshed on self-respect, and it is as ratable for its refusal to indulge in excesses as it is in its purpose to make the flag the real sign and armbol of the local and untional spirit. There was a ting—II seems only a few weeks aga, but of course it was longer than that—when many good people begun to despair. They looked upon politics as hopeless, upon manusipal politics especially as cres-pools of corruption which no tides of reform could clean, and there was some danger that the contary would not make it a dreary shought of postudent; but someless the better impulses and activities of the people logan to assert themselves, and in the post five years we have had an amount of real reform to all ports of the country, in every single ose of the large cities where the promise of good government was darkest, that, when considered in the aggregate, must be calinly regarded as one of the covering miracles of the times.

Now, it is interesting. If not directly a case of come and offert that all this growth in goodness and all this purificution of public sentiment and public spirit have happened at the same time with the elevation of "Old Glory" area our whool-houses and our public buildings, and its exultation in the general thought. Go where non-may in this congerty, you will see the Stars and Stripes theing. It is no easy estimate that there are more than in ally we other countries to the world. There are fully twice as many as there were five pears ogn. because in Maine, and there is not a moment of the twentyfour hours when it is not greating and illumining the thirteen stripes and the forty-four stars, saon to be forty-five.

In a recent article on President Harrison said we had allowed outselves to be laughed out of the old-time Fourth of July celebration, and he added: "It may be that the speaker was boastful, but a boaster is better than an apolished or a possimist"; and further on to his article he used these loyal and sensible words: "Do not be admitted to love the flag or to confess your love of at. Make much of it: tell its libitory; sing of it. It now floats over our schools, and it ought to long from the windows of all our house on all our public days. Havey man should unever when a nelimal air is given at a school or public most-line.

We believe that California was the first State to provide that the flag should find from all log ablance issues. Since then the whole country has fallen had line. There have been various societies that made it their work to present flags to the whoole, there have been has a making the lateling of the days a part of the school-day a paverolings, and it is now a regulation of the general government that the flag shall be displayed in all Februar Insidings, the effect of which has been be lead hard and State governments to follow the authoral example, with gratifying results to the flag-mainers and increasing pleasure to the flag-defenders and flag-mainers and increasing pleasure to the flag-defenders and flag-mainers and increasing pleasure to the flag-defenders and flag-mainers.

No more completions intance of the perival of purrattota could be given them the recent action of the Reman Catholic Church Within the part I write mention the flag has been haisted above many of its important churches and has been perindicially displayed to its muctuaries. It house in processions, and the other day, in Relitative, Populari (Hibbans, the primate of the church, and Mayor Hosper, one of the leading Methedists of the country, presided at the presuming which elevated above four of the largest parechial school house of Bahimor hig American flags prewrited by one of the Catholic societies. Pive thousand prople elected the patriolic weatherward the speakers. "How much we are around to potrodien, by the familiar notes of "The 8th spongled flumey of The Red. White and Blue." said the comitted. " And what that song is to the out the fing is to the ere. Mar it always imply every one of us; may it put patriotic thoughts into the minds and hearts of the rising generation; and it always be on onbless of justice to all, of partiality and favorition to none, the syndad of liberry without livene, of farmony, goodwill fellowship and francestry of all citatens, the guaranthe of Christian cirilization." Mayor Hosper noid he wanted the fing raised over every public building the Carbolic nestor grouped Cuttime Culvers, William Ponn, and Bugge Williams as "a tripity of humanitarium and patrion, devoted to the principles of civil and mitglens liberty, and siming to give these rights to every man," and the sentiment was enthuminerally chested. "Here, where the same of Christ is raised at the flag of my country be lifted," said another Carlolle praint, and he went on to sea that, if prod be, life wealth he given to defense of vither. This is a potent illustration, because the Catholics, facing the largest persulus of the funiquiare resident of this country, have been regarded by some as being few devoted in Asserican blook and blooks on improvious that such representes as these total to rapidly and presumently remove.

Sexation Critically, of Principles and another that he will not be a considere for to chariton. His withdrawed from public life will entrapped one of the most module personal dynastics which has ever extend in American politics. Senator Common the latter of the retiring Senator, was for mostly forty of his seventy eight years the approve bees in Principles and politics. For Oddy pears of that period he was Council States Senator, and was an aggressive and influential further in actional affairs. The normalities of Abraham Limitals for President to 1900 a go fine in part to his course in absorbining Mr. Senated at a exitical procture in the course in absorbining Mr. Senated at a exitical procture in the course. His resignation at Senator was followed by the tunnedlike election of the soo, who topon his extrement in 1905, will have accupied the plate for past twenty years.

It will not be pretended by surrhedy suitable of the immediate Comercular colorator that this processed family rigine has been marked by a single schiesement to the public service which will counts it to commission. The effectal treated of father and son is associated in coin for a solitary state-marking performance. Netter over originated or carried through a presente of real public importance. They tends no impress upon the policies of their time. They tends no impress upon the policies of their time. They tends dust illustrated never the spirit the idea of personal politics, and that has been a personal personalise rather than, a public treat, and as highest and and, are was to attraction and just which a personal dynasty. Under this system, capacity, integrity, independence of conviction, and honorable subition have counted for nothing, and have had no chance whatever in the politics of the Keystone State. Federal and State appointments courts, Legislatures, the governments of municipalities, have all been determined and chosen under the dictation, and for the execution of the purposes, of the machine which was set up titty years ago. That such conditions rould perpetuate themselves for such a period, in such a State as Pennsylvania, may well processe amazement. It can only be accounted for as the basis of a slavish popular subserviewey to the fittich of a family name, or of popular indifference to the consequences of machine domination and misrule. Either assumption is humiliating and disgraceful in the had degree.

Senator Cameron's withdrawal might to open the way for the election, most year, of a successor worthy, in the best sense, of the exalted place which he has never really fifted. But plans, it is said, are already being had in the Interest of candidates whose chief chim to consideration lies to the fact that they are purtisans of Senator Quay. the younger party autocrat, and it is not impossible that the latter element of the Republican party may again full to command the reorgaithm is deserves. It is to be hoped, however, that the field will not be absuranced without a vigorous and manful assertion of the wishes and profercores of these Republicans who, having an personal ends to serve, dosire only that the party shall be represented by its lest and ablest men, and that in all selections to public office reference shall be had only to the promotion of the highest public interests.

The Excise Question.

T may not be entirely safe to product that the Legislature of New York, at its country was alone will identifie to emait any legislation which will permit Sunday liquor selling, but the process indications certainly seem to justify such a conscious. A pull of the Legislature, made by the Herotic shows a clear majority of both Republican Semitors and Assumbly men who are opposed to local option, while the number who have only exclusively edge to be be beginned to be a publication whatever is some paratively edge! A few declars themselves in favor of an increase in the fivense his and a decrease in this number of salooms, and a number further to the intultishment of a fivense system based on population. The Democratic of course, sho here, for the most part, in favor of "reflet" for the saloom interest, but a indiscrity of that party are apparently indisposed to commit themselves in advance to such a course.

The attitude of the Republican legislatura-riest as to this to be question should not be a resitter of surprise. The party in this State has always been nested an impension. It distinctly refused to declare, in the platform adicated by the list State concentum, in favor of any latdown of the party policy on this copper, either through the convenient subterfuge of local option or otherwise. It is true, indeed, that some of the party leaders of this most tempedis. In their reservoise to rapture the solons vote. assumed a position of qualified benefity to the Scratogadeliverance, but they galand authing personally by their posithenimity, while the determination of the party at large to maintain its faith with the people was, if anything to tensited. Legislation on to the regulation and control of the liquor traffic niny be necessary; possibly the adoption of the principal features of the so-called Objective, or of the Minnespolis pine, under which selects have been excluded from the residential quarter, would be an improvement no the existing system. But whatever exactments may be had, It werns now improbable that they will embody any concessions to those who demand that the salour shall be invested. with a statutory and exceptional right to descente Sunday. at the expense of every important and all rivie interest.

Evils of Over-capitalization.

HE question is often asked why it is that, while the price of courty everything that enters hate common use has within the last decade or two been reduced, the five-cost face on attentional. One reason for this is, of course, that every strept-milway is more ar less of a monogenty, but a assumption and more conclusive answer to the question is found in the fact disclosed by the evidence submitted to the Lagislative committee which is now investigating the subject, that all the oversarations operating in this city are encomously as re-application-that, in other words they must carn disclosuls upon a fictitious capital visits in excess of their test cost.

The existence referred to shows that, according to the highest possible estimate of their rest, the street car companies of this metropolis have a total over expitalization of $33,023,550. The Metropolisus Traction system, for incluses which operates one bundred and seventy-three miles of road, represents an actual rest of $16,672,060, but is capitalized a $14,352,060. THEIR EFFECTIVE FIGHTING FORCE CONTRASTED

THE AMERICAN NAVY.

WHILE it is scarcely probable that war between this country and Great Britain will resuit from the differences over the Venevaslan boundary dispute and the relation which the British claim, holds to American dominathat on this continent, it is well to consider what, in the event of a conflict, would be the relative equipment of the belligreents. The struggle, of course, would be largely one of battir ships, and it must be gratifying to every American that, while this country heads fourth place in the areal strength of the nations, it in a ment important respect ranks first. No hatthe ships are long built that squal ours; our ermore surpres these of every other nation in their class, and we have produced sarift-going remomerce-destroyers that are the seniler of the world in ship-balls, age. We have produced other markets in war skips, and are in a pasition to accomplish specifity still greater feats. The many consists of alarm sixty runche of which one-fourth are arrivated. About, however, there is a great difference in favor of the American book. The holdren can throw 5 Act panieds of metal at a smult discharge, and or can only throw hard pointly with u smalar decharge. The fighting supercetty pa therefore plainly I've to one in farms of the American bent. That states the whole once. Theoretically has English boots are a knot and a leaf basier, but really they have the same specif, and the Asterican boots can whip the English ressellation standup struggle two to one. This is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that for thirty years the English have been building from and steel vessels, and yet up to 1980 this country had absolutely no familiates for the building of any large on going craft of the buttle-skip toriety.

A writer receitly declared that the Avenwould be king rather than goven of the seas. She is a vast improvement on the follows When the English heard of this they at rere-levided that they must try to get at the level again. So they ordered two tremesdous battle-slips, the Majoric and Majoritesal, of CARRY response such, and larger than any that ever had been built, with the exception of the swill-known agreeably Italian iron-clade. But again the English are behind us. Even the Lodition class are better fighters than these two will be. These figures tell that story; too. The Intures throws 5.000 pounds of nasal wherethe Majorie throws 5,000. War drawn four feet of water less, and of course that is an inmense advantage in navigation. THE BRITISH NAVY.

In the year 1989 England found that if Britannia would continue to rule the waves she most wake up. The Navad Defense act of that year provided for the expenditure of more than one bandred million dallars for new slops, and meet of these vesses are in communican to-day. This expenditure has given England fifteen new lettle-ships, lifty-signt eraises, and twenty-even terperto-inteliers, besides namerone torpede-boats. That was a tremendous addiffers to any pary, and, with the changes and repairs that were made in other vessels, was except to astroich the world. But that was not enough. The Defense of the Lakes.

Is the lake frontier in peril? General Miles says it is; the Secretary of the Navy mya not. Considered solely with relation to the naval power of the United States and Great Britain (Canada) upon toe lakes, in the event of a sudden rupture with England, the situation is somewhat alarming. The commercial interests alone of the United States upon the great lakes are insmeasurably greater than those of Canuda, all of whose lake ports put together can scarcely nurster a population as large as that of Cleveland, and not a tithe of the property and commercial interests of that city slone. The naval force, under the armagement of 1867, is supposed to be fimited on each side to "one versel not exceeding one hundred tons burthen and armed with one eighteen-pound camon." for Lake Champlain, Lake Ontaro, and the upper lakes respectively. The idea of a British naval vessel upon Lake Champlain is so absurd that none was ever maintained there, nor, for that matter, an American moval sessel either, since the treaty of titent. For the great lakes the United States maintains but one vessel, the antiquated fourth-rate cruber Michigan, which is the oldest vessel in commission in the Amerions nevy. The Mickigan is an iron publiswhiel steamer, built at Eric, Pennsylvania, in 1864. Blue is one bundred and sixty-three feet. long and twenty-seven feet beam, with a draught of nine feet. Her displacement is six bundred and eighty five tons, horse power three bundred and five, and speed ten and one-half knots. She carries a main lattery of four thirty-pounder Parrett gues, breed-leading rifles, and a secondary interry of three three-inch brooch landing howitzers, and two Chillings. like has a crew of about one bundred men. In addition to the Michigan there are three revensu-cutters, the side wheelers William P Fesscades, three hundred and thirty tons, and Analy Johnson, four familied and pinety-four tons, and the propeller Culumot. The two latter being stational on Lake Michigan, and the former on Lake Erie. The Johnson carries one thirty pounder Parrett and two twenty four pound smooth-bore howitzers; the Fourable two twenty-four pound howitzers and two three inch brooch-buding cities. The Column has one small gun to make a mile with. These vessels are designed " for revenue only."

The British are said to have one naval vessel. corresponding to the Michigan, but of a later type, the armament of which is not made pub-The revenue and foliaries service have three light vessels, of which the Donanion steamship Constance is the chief. This is a stied projetter, one hundred and twenty five bet long, ninetoen feet, sax inches beam, and nine feet draught. Her "official" speed is 11.0 knots. an hoor, but her engines are capable, it is claimed, of botter work. His is around with these quick-firing gum of about four imbercalibre, one mounted on a turtle-deck, forward, and one on such side of the quarter-dock, aft. A run bow gives her an additional weapon of great power. In a recent report on the subject. of the lake mavy, Communitie Wakeham, of the Demonium fisheries service, said that the Con-Moreov and her sizer-ships " are far superior to the boats ununtained on the lakes by the United States revenue department." It should be sunsidered, however, that plans for a new revenuecutter for the lakes of nine hundred from burthen have been drawn, the vessel to have not only a lattery of rapid fire gues, but a torpole sortest as well. Size will be built of steel, and capable of making sixteen knots an linex. As by the act of March 2d, 1999-1 revenue-cutters shall, whenever the President so directs, co-uperate with the may?" - the revenue-cutters may properly he classed as armed vessels within the meaning of the arrangement of 1817, it will be seen that both parties have already violated the compact, both in number of result and in weight of armament, and while at present Protain aggenre to took the superior power, the Yankess will usus again be in the ascendency.

With the mayal power it is important to conther the military defenses of the lakes, and upon this subject it may be said, in terms similar to the famous chapter upon the smakes of feeland, there are no military defenses on the

The assent fortifications which formerly stool guard over the straits at the Son, Macking naw, the Detroit, Ningara, and St. Lawrence rivers, have one by one fallen into disuse and desay. Fort Drummond, Fort Mackinso, and other reminders of reducial warfare, exist only as partures per ruins. Yet, supposing that there is a real danger to be guarded against; that Britain maintains at Halifax, us has been stated by alarmists, a small fleet of gun-bouts roady at may moment to enter the great lakes by the St. Lawrence and multitain a wor of destruction against American cities; no better protection could be deviced that a pair of rifled gums mountain upon the New York frontier on the St. Lawrency, and others on the Detroit River at Markinson, in dust the set, Mary's More, The Canadian ranals on the St. Lawrence would be may allable if the United States should choose to dispute their passage, and no renels of any character that England could place upon Lake Eric could pass gues mounted at the month of the Detroit River.

There is one more thing to be considered in the way of the defenses of the lakes. In the lake nurme there are opeard of two thousand vessels of over one hundred tous, which could be armed as rapidly as guas could be provided from Watervillet around and electron, and which would not only make an imprognable dofense against may power which Britain could send against them, but would bring the whole Canadian frontier under immediate subjection, the gathest lake sellors adding new lancels to those won by Commissions Perry and his green-

But why talk of war! Has Great Britain really made any menure that our own overrealists fingres have not themselves exceeded (Why do so equip our own vossels with troors loading rifles, Hotelskin gues, and torpedotutes, when we are on terms of profound peace with our teighboring nation ! We have let our forts decay, and wisely as, and have built great commercial cities instead. General Miles save that "in a few days the English rould place upon the lakes a force of ships of war that seight horn all the cities from Milwankse to Why he houses Chings out of the some of danger it is hard to my, but in reality mittees on longer make war by borning poweful cities. General Miles's experience as an Indian fighter has lot him to four the worst of civilized nations, and it is gratifying to know that the Secretary of the Navy does not share his alarm. For nearly a century the great lakes have been practically a mentral water way, the grandest chain of peaceful intand overs in the world, bearing a commerce as heavy as that of the Mediterranean, and memoral by not a single war-ship worths of the name Why is it mit far letter to seek weer method by which a solemn compact could be made to preserve that water way to peareful consiseres for all time to come? It will not be England's facil: if such a resupert to not made and trust, for though the may be stronger on the kigh sens. she can never to the than strategically weak on the lakes; sinken, indeed, the United States comget her in her own defense to maintain a may there, in which event, true to be surfact policy. she will see to it that it is even stronger than that of any possible sucrey.

The true protection of the great lakes in get in armounted, but in disarmoment. By adopting the latter policy we will set a magalifecus example to the sixtlines world

JOHN T. BRANKS IL.

The Federation of Labor.

It is a significant and gratifying fact that, while the organization known as the Knapter of Latine is gradually being its hold upon our industrial population, the rival organization known in the American Pulcention of Labor is shouldy gaining ground, having new a nown bership of seven hondest and tifty thereasd. organized on the tendes-union basis.

The plan of the trades unionists to of an exelutionary and not of a recolutionary nature. Its this is differn greatly from the plan of the Knights of Labor; and from those of the anprofilets or the socialists. It is the chief object of the trade-union, by means of rects methods us are available, to better the present condition of its monitors in first, to raise wages and shorten hours, and not be bring about a revobution or emidenly to change the present order of things. It is true that there are musty trude unionists who hold beliefs more or loss sociallatte in their tendency, and also that there is a faction in the American Federation that would he in favor of pretty strong measures for the changing of the present reder, if enough of a following could be secured. But this faction is comparatively unisuportant and practically proveriess, so far as the policy or the Federation grant.

The general action is of the tracks up he briefly summed up as follows. While there he no doubt room for south improvement in the present form of government in this country, set the American system, if properly administered, is the last in the world, and the Constitution of the United States is the best durantetary foundation of government extent. Workinguen can therefore produce letter results working in harmony with than in opposition to, the institutions of this country. For this reason the American Federation of Labor dies. not seek in any way to control the political netion of the members of its affiliated masses, and Pederationists are to be found in every political

These facts are all against the notion current in some quarters, that the trades unloss make for disintegration and overturning. As a motter of fact, their leaders held the reverse to be Trade-inicately offen strice, to be sure, but they hold to the right to fight for better wages and conditions. The "sympathetic strike" so-called is not in favor with them, and it will be remembered that the spread of the sympathetic Pullman strikes of last your was stopped by the Federation of Labor.

There are other features of tracks-universen with which the public is almost enterely sufamiliar, and these are educational. In this city and Broaklyn there are, every winter, many sight and Sensity who is numbrated by the arrans for the teaching of the English has guage to members of foreign, furth. In many nions the study of the Constitution of the United States is arged, in order that the menihers may understand the fundamental law of the land, and there are several unions that make it a rule but to admit candidates for embership unless they promise to become ritisome. The movement of the trades unloadeds to these directions was never sociager than at present. It is increasing yearly, and is now supported by many labor traders that might be on him stellarus turbra vere ide Jestusi even who were imistent individualitie a buil-GRAND STREET AGOS.

Evil Effect of Immoderate Rowing.

Caritmathy for vowing beacut at Yade, at Harvard, the University of Penneytvania, Co. nell, and Columbia will be wetting slown shortly to the serious, believes, and for the most part laboraton work of training for the several intercollegate cases whellaled to be decided in the ourly summer of 1866.

It is a question with many who follow this particular collaps sport, whether proper care, is observed by the markers to the wie-tim of map from a standpoint of gladity to suclerge the steals without danger to their physical being, and in the yed show only good results from such an exercise. As the fraining is more age to be coordinat than underdone, so it a catalidate who is constitutionally unequal in university rees rowing likely to recape an exemita-tion which should instantly debar him from further work.

"If I were to select," mys Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson. "from a body of young men promisenously brought together those who were best for a rowing match, I could, by proper measurement of the breathing power, of the height of the body, of the size of the cheet, peck out almost without question those men who would make in the end the best crews, although at the time not one of them had become trained to rowing practice: and this is, I think, what englit to be done in the selection of crown for great competitions, since it is very had for a young man even to train into a practice which by excessive exercise shall impair the function of the lange."

Now, rowing is an exercise which affects greatly the respiration. Observe a crew not in treining go out and pull a bard half-mile. At the end of the first eighth of the distance, as the men get into the full awing of the stroke, you will begin to notice how powerfully the breathing is affected. At the quarter it beryune rugal, and a sort of blaish pallor in the tipe and face shows itself.

To be sure, there will be different degrees of breathlessness in the sight men. The nun with the good berge clost; the tall man, maybals, and the man who by a spirometer can show from two bundred and tifty to three hundred cubic inches without fatigue, may, in all probability will, show no great amount of breathlessness On the other hand, the short man with small chest and short body, and who can blow only two humbred to two hundred and twenty-five cube lackes, will be much oppressed and gasping for air.

In the one instance rowing may be continued and the work increased without material inpury. In the latter case, where the effect of nowley shows itself in a percentant difficulty of breathing, the function of the bugs will corely be impaired and serious results follow. The disease, amply-sons—that is, rapture of the air vesteles of the junge- is thought by some to be the remit of immuderate rowing, even in the cres man not particularly afflicted with breath-sie Beginnin fückarden, however, is frank enough to admit that he has sever sea such a case, and immetly askin that a propher of cases have come to the notion of na improved developmont of the breathing organs and of the cupacity of the lungs induced by the exercise.

Rowing, when it affects the breathing, to inhic, seventirily, to rame disturtance of the circulation. On account of the position of the cowor in the boot (the lower lin.)s to a restam extent being fixed, the body best forward, those enddonly and strongly buckward, while timclost is kept in full tension) and by virtue of the performance of the different acts going to make up the stroke a considerable strain is thrown upon the valves of the boart.

The lided which has to course over the arteries from the heart must ascend before it makes its way anywhere over the body; meend myer the nortic arele and be prevented from going back into the heart on the left side by these valves, which allow the bless to essue forth from the source, but which, fulling down, check it from being returned. In the net of rewing with the lungs charged with air, the blood rising through the orch is in a sharp-begrowthrown back upon the valves. The like sexure in water falling back on a traje to which is given the morre " water huminer."

Now, it is a uniter of record that in a man who has been rowing brackly, the second seemel of his tours which is produced by closure of the three valves is often accontrated, owing to the sublen pressure exerted by the column of blood. This is a severe strain. The influx of blood cames the heart to work laborsonsly, and the great clastic blood-visual, or aceta, itself is undub distended.

This being so we are renfronted with the melition of a boart unduly large and over act No. which may become a serious memore to health. It follows that cowing should be carried on with produces and should be descensmiffer. emiliaring ment of the requiration and the circulation.

Every lot of Ivory Soap is carefully analyzed, and comparisons are made with analyses of the popular castile and tolet soaps. Ivery Soap contains less of inpurities, less of free alkali and more real soap than any of them; that is why it can be used without inj ry to the rose leaf skin of the baby, to the sheerest of linets or to the daintiest of laces.

The eminent chemist, Prof. HENRY A. Mott, Ph.D., LL.D., etc., reports:

"New York, Oct. 22, 1895.

"Furnished to request I have examined the preparation known as SALVA-CEA, and find the same to be composed of perfectly harmless and efficient medicinal constructs proceipally of vegetable origin. Chemical analysis demonstrates the entire absence of any metallic pobese, such as lead, mercury, arsenic, copper, etc., or their salts as also the entire absence of any alkaloid, such as morphine (opcum), strychnine, etc.

"It is not the office of the chemist to point out the medicual applicators of any paration; still, knowing the nature of the constituent elements which compose SALVA-CEA, I can say that the properties of the same are so well defined that an justified in saying it abould accomplish the work for which it is recommended."

Timely Warning.

The great success of the chocolate preparations of the house of Walter Baker & Co. (established in 1780) has led to the placing on the market many misleading and unscrupulous imitations of their name, labels, and wrappers. Walter Baker & Co. are the oldest and largest manufacturers of pure and high-grade Cocoas and Chocolates on this continent. No chemicals are used in their manufactures.

Consumers should ask for, and be sure that they get, the genuine Walter Baker & Co.'s goods.
